CLEAN-CUT CONCERT

Tricia Nixon Cox (center) sat amidst a young, clean-cut audience in Milwaukee yesterday at a rock and roll revival concert for supporters of the president. The show was the first of seven appearances by Tricia geared to boost voter registration.

FOR CORTE MADERANS

Open Space Is The Issue

Corte Madera residents passed resolutions ranging from a call for an open space bond issue to a change in the community's cable television franchise at a town meeting Saturday which drew approximately 200 persons.

The residents requests were formulated during the morning session in small study groups which met to discuss such topics as master planning and development, open space, town services and communication and citizen participation in government.

Later, the entire meeting voted on several resolutions on a variety of civic issues. The resolutions will be presented to the Corte Madera Town Council tonight at 8 o'clock.

The citizens told the council:

1. To develop a bond issue for open space as soon as possible. Properties named among the top priorities for acquisition and preservation included Heerdt Marsh, Northridge and the former Diffenbach ranch on the ridge between Corte Madera and Tiburon.

2. The town's moratorium on building should be continued until the town has completed plans for open space acquisition and finished the Corte Madera Master Plan.

3. Developers should make environmental and economic impact studies of proposed commercial developments and residential developments larger than four units. These studies, which should also show if the development will bring any expense to taxpayers, should be presented to the public before the needed permits are issued.

4. Citizen participation in the town's planning process should be encouraged and their concerns reflected in planning decisions, particularly those on zoning and development.

5. A park for Eastern Corte Madera is needed, as are mini-parks throughout the town.

6. The town should amend its franchise with Tele-vue Systems of Marin when its contract with the cable television firm comes up for renewal in February of 1975. At that time the council should ask the firm to make available four hours per day of public access programming to permit Corte Madera residents and groups television

Dixie Republicans Using Nixon

By JOHN DILLIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

ATLANTA — Republicans all across the South are using President Nixon's new popularity in the region to jump over century-old hurdles to political power.

Republican progress can be detected in "border" states like Virginia, as well as Deep South states such as South Carolina, Florida, and Mississippi.

The party is reaching for public-service commission posts in Florida, Alabama, and Tennessee. It is going for additional House seats — with some prospects of success — in every Southern state from North Carolina to Louisiana.

In Florida, Republicans hope for majority control of both houses of the state legislature. Control of either house would be a first.

In South Carolina, for the first time, the party will have candidates in every House race. They are also running a record number of candidates for the state legislature, county councils, and sheriff.

In Tennessee, a hotbed of Republicanism, the party already has both Senate seats and the governor's office. Now the party hopes for a majority in the state House.

Together, the Republican thrust poses the greatest threat to entrenched Democrats since the Goldwater year, 1964. The party made significant gains in Dixie that year, including an unprecedented five House seats in Alabama.

The current drive appears more broadly based and confident than in 1964, however. The movement went partially dormant after Goldwater's defeat, and the party eventually lost much that it had gained in the region. But it is flowering again now after a heavy dose of McGovernism.

This time party officials are looking for more than an election day sweep for the President. They are committed heavily to local and state candidates with the aim of laying the foundation for what could become the majority party of the region.

The new approach is accomplished by a new determination. No longer, party officials often say, will they be making concessions to conservative Southern Democrats who play ball with the Republicans on election day.

"Starting this year," says C. Kenneth Powell, chairman of the South Carolina Republican Party, "even if local Democratic candidates endorse President Nixon and Sen. Strom Thurmond, we will run Republican candidates against them."

At the same time, party officials are moving aside to make room for dissident Democrats and independents in positions of authority. For example, in Mississippi the Republicans are giving every county chairmanship of the Committee for the Re-election of the President to one of these newcomers, with the hope they will stay within the party structure after November.

In Florida, a party official says: "We feel we have a real opportunity for the first time in history to take control of the state Senate or the House . . .

"We could also pick up one or two seats in Congress. We are going to make great gains if we do everything right."

At present the Florida House has 38 Republicans out of 119 members, while the Senate has 14 out of 48. The Senate, where the Republicans probably have the better chance, is being cut to 40 members this year, while the House expands to 120.

The only statewide race in Florida this year is for a post on the all-Democratic Public Service Commission. The Democratic incumbent was beaten in the primary by Gerald Lewis of Miami, against whom the Republicans hve fielded Paula Hawkins of Maitland.

Though giving themselves a good chance at the commission post, the party also will be pouring its resources into the congressional races, where it now has three of 12 seats. Growing population adds three more seats to the state delegation this year, and the Republicans feel that at least two of them are excellent targets.

South Carolina illustrates the party's new emphasis on grassroots growth. While major candidates (President Nixon, Senator Thurmond, and House candidates) are directing their own campaigns, state party officials turn their attention to the legislature, county councils, and other local contests. For many Democrats in South Carolina, says Republican chairman Powell, the McGovern ticket this year is "the last straw. If they are ever going to cross the party line, this is the year."

In the past, he says, many state legislators were often Republicans at heart, but ran on the Democratic ticket for "they

USSR May Need Heavy Imports Again In 1973

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Soviet Union may need heavy grain imports again next year —even if it harvests a comparatively good 1973 crop —because of a major policy shift toward satisfying the demand of Russian consumers for meat.

That forecast came Monday in a special Agriculture Department report on the 1972 Soviet crop failure which led to recent massive purchases of grain from thenited States and other countries, and of prospects for additional sales to Russia.

The report said the volume of Soviet buying this year shows Russian officials intend to meet their goals for increased livestock production by 1975, even if it means large imports. U.S. estimates of Russian needs for 1973 indicate they cannot be met without imports even if Soviet production next year recovers sharply from the 1972 failure.

Marin Ends Loss Streak In Football

College of Marin ended a 16-game football losing streak Saturday when Kevin Donohoe threw a 28-yard touchdown pass to Duke Bessee in the third quarter for a 16-14 victory over Sierra College in Rocklin.

Craig Marshall kicked a 23-yard field gol with 24 seconds left to give Novato High School a 15-14 victory over Terra Linda. In another Marin County Athletic League game, San Marin defeated Drake, 28-19.

In a Sonoma County League contest Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park edged El Molino of Forestville, 20-19; while in a North Bay League clash, Petaluma shaded Vintage of Napa, 14-7. In non-league action, Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa thrashed Marin Catholic, 31-8. (See sports section for details).

Nixon Signs Bill Against Disease

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today signed a $107 million a year authorization to combat communicable diseases, including $2.5 million annually for new programs to check a national epidemic of venereal disease.

The second part of the act increases from $90 million to $111.5 million the authorization for birth control services.

The act extends for three years the government's program of grants to state and local governments for communicable diseases other than venereal disease and authorizes a new VD program of research, training projects and control projects.

Under the new authority, states will be required to devise their own VD plans to qualify for federal funds.

Former Novato Chief Takes Boston Post

BOSTON (UPI)—Robert DiGrazia, 44, who headed the St. Louis police department since 1969, arrived Sunday to accept his appointment as Boston's police commissioner. He was named to the $35,000-a-year post Saturday by Mayor Kevin H. White.

DiGrazia, who is a former police chief of Novato, succeeds Edmund McNamara, who quit in May after his second five-year term ended.

New Taxes Ruled Out By Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon "does not plan to propose any new taxes next year," Budget Director Caspar W. Weinberger said today.

Asked if this included a value-added tax, Weinberger nodded in the affirmative and said, "That's my understanding."

The value-added tax is a levy placed on a product at each stage of development. Administration officials previously have said it was under consideration as a possible replacement for some local property taxes.

Opponents of the value-added tax say it is nothing more than a national sales tax, which Democratic presidential nominee George D. McGovern has said Nixon will propose next year.

"The President does not plan to propose any new taxes next year," Weinberger said.

Weinberger and John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic aide, met with reporters following an hour-long Nixon meeting with nine House Republican leaders. The House is scheduled to vote this week on the administration's request for a $250 billion ceiling on government spending this fiscal year.

Ehrlichman said the spending limit was "insurance against a tax increase," and that the administration would reject the demands of Democrats for advance information on the cuts that would be made.

Ehrlichman said that outlining specific cuts would convert the congressional debate from the merits of an overall ceiling to the specific programs to be reduced.

Weinberger said passage of the ceiling would facilitate the process of drafting the budget for the next fiscal year, which goes to Congress in January, by giving budgetmakers a better indication of current spending levels.

Nixon last January requested $246.3 billion for the fiscal year that began July 1. Administration supplemental requests have boosted that total to about $250 billion, and Weinberger said congressional action may push the total far higher.

Ehrlichman said a federal tax boost would not be required to redeem Nixon's pledge of property tax relief.

"There are ways to help localities with their property tax problems —and to help property owners with their property tax problems —that do not involve a federal tax increase," Ehrlichman said. But he declined to discuss specifics.

McGovern Tells Editors Administration Corrupt

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George S. McGovern charged today that the Nixon administration is corrupt and the nation is deteriorating under "the worst leadership in our history."

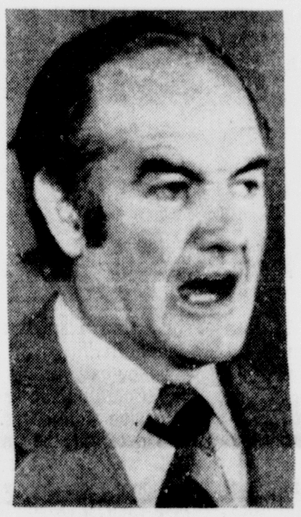
In an address to the annual UPI Conference of Editors and Publishers, the Democratic presidential nominee said the nation "is in deadly peril if we do not soon recognize that the principle danger to us comes from within rather than without."

McGovern also accused the Nixon administration of launching a deliberate and sustained campaign to discredit newspapers and broadcasters, and of seeking to replace the press corps "with a cheering section."

"I see Mr. Nixon in contrast as a man of no constant principle -a man of no constant principle except opportunism and political manipulation," McGovern said in extemporaneous remarks he added during delivery of his speech text.

He described the administration as the most corrupt in the nation's history, and added, "Today we face not merely the corruption of government but the corruption of America."

"At no time have we witnessed official corruption as wide or as deep as the mess in Washington right now," he said.



GEORGE McGOVERN
Talks to editors

McGovern received a relatively cool reception from the news executives as he made some of his harshest criticism of the campaign of the administration in general and the President in particular.

The administration "launched a deliberate, sustained campaign to discredit newspapers and broadcasters," McGovern said. "It has misused federal lawenforcement officers to investigate the personal lives of reporters.

"And for the first time in our history, we have seen the government attempt to prevent — and then to punish — the publication of critical facts — not because it harmed the country but because it embarrassed the government."

He referred to the administration's attempt to prevent publication of the Pentagon Papers in legal moves that went all the way to the Supreme Court.

McGovern also attempted to reply to criticism of his own credibility. Noting that he had

Nixon Said Ready To Discuss Troop Reductions In Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon met today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and American sources said the United States was ready to start preliminary negotiations with the Soviet Union on troop reductions in Europe.

Nixon and Gromyko sat side by side on gold colored chairs in the President's oval office. They will get together again tonight, probably for longer discussions, at a working dinner the President is giving for Gromyko at his Camp David retreat.

During their morning session lasting an hour, 10 minutes, "all outstanding matters between the two nations" were discussed, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Nixon and Gromyko both will spend the night at Camp David and return to the White House Tuesday in time for a 10 a. m. EDT ceremony to ratify formally and finally the strategic arms limitation agreements which Nixon and Soviet leaders signed last May in Moscow.

Sitting in on the White House session were Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Nixon's national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Newsmen were admitted for only the first minute or so of the session and heard Nixon and Gromyko exchange comments about the effectiveness of the United Nations.

"There is always work to do in the U.N. organization," Gromyko said through an interpreter. "It is not always productive but there is always work to be done."

"I agree with both sentences," Nixon responded.

Gromyko spoke at the United Nations last week. So did Rogers. Rogers told Nixon, "He gave a good speech."

Gromyko responded, "We closely followed with interest the speech of the secretary of state. It was an interesting speech."

Nixon observed, "That's diplomatic language."

Gromyko replied, "it's saying a great deal."

Tonight's dinner originally had been scheduled for the White House but Nixon, who spent the weekend at Camp David, ordered the change of location.

"We have a good day to go to Camp David today...the leaves are beginning to turn (to fall colors)," he told the Soviet official.

U.S. sources said Nixon was likely to give Gromyko informal word that the United States was ready to talk about troop reductions and a Soviet proposal for a "European security conference." The word would not be formal, the sources said, because the United States and its western allies have not completed consultations on the pro-

Ziegler: Nixon Is Not Hiding

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon plans no campaign trips this week but the White House insisted Monday he was not hiding from the electorate.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President "has no travel plans for the rest of this week."

Asked to comment on charges by supporters of Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern that Nixon was hiding in the White House when he should be campaigning, Ziegler said, "That is a view which I can't accept. I don't see how a President can hide himself.

Returned POW Says Treatment Humane

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Navy Lt. Markham L. Gartley, one of the three POWs who returned home last week, said Sunday his North Vietmanese captors were "humane" but his imprisonment was "no bed of roses."

Gartley, who spent more than four years in a North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp, returned to the U.S. last Thursday along with former POWs, Navy Lt. (j.g.) Norris A. Charles and Air Force Maj. Edward K. Elias. They were resting and undergoing medical checkups at military facilities.

Gartley said at a news conference at St. Albans Naval Hospital in New York City his "treatment during captivity had been humane." He then left for another U.S. Navy facility in Jacksonville, Fla.

In the New York, Gartley, in uniform, said he was not brainwashed by his captors and his treatment as a prisoner was good, considering conditions in North Vietnam.

"I have not been mistreated," he said. "Prisons anywhere in the world are no bed of roses and this one, of course, was no exception.

Later in Jacksonville, Gartley, 28, was greeted by Mrs. Byron Fuller, Mrs. Randolph Ford and Mrs. Carl Crumpler, local wives whose husbands also were POWs.

Gartley told Mrs. Fuller he had been in the same prison camp with her husband, Capt. R. Byron Fuller, in 1968. Fuller's plane was shot down in July, 1967, but Mrs. Fuller knew he was alive.

Mrs. Randolph Ford, who had no definite knowledge whether her husband was still alive, also confirmed Gartley brought news of her husband, but she refused to say what Gartley told her.

Gartley told Mrs. Crumpler he had no contact with her husband, Col. Carl Crumpler, who has been a prisoner for four years. Mrs. Crumpler said she had received mail irregularly from her husband.

LT. MARKHAM L. GARTLEY

Navy spokesman, said Gartley would remain in the Jacksonville Naval Hospital until his medical examination is completed.

Meanwhile, Charles, 27, spent a "relaxed" schedule Sunday at Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego, where he was visited by his wife and parents, a Navy spokesman said.

The spokesman said Charles has been busy reading news summaries and back issues of magazines that covered his period of captivity.

Charles will go on outpatient status today and will live at home, reporting in each day, the Navy said.

At Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala, Officials said Sunday, Elias would be undergoing medical tests "for another couple of days."

Thieu Rejects Coalition, Says War Will Fade Away

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu today rejected Communist proposals for a coalition government in his country and predicted the war will "fade away" after another North Vietnamese offensive that could come this year.

"The Republic of (South) Vietnam has an elected government. It is the sole body which has the right to solve the war," he said in a state-of-the-country message to a Congress he has rendered powerless.

"Any solution must come from the right of selfdetermination of the people of South Vietnam and only South Vietnam, based on a spirit of reconciliation, love and unity."

Thieu called for a military victory over the Communists and predicted another offensive "this year." He added, "After this last fight, the war will fade away."

His speech was read to the Senate and National Assembly while he was at Independence Palace to meet Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig, a White House emissary sent by President Nixon to brief Thieu on the latest developments in secret Paris peace talks.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Wins Another Chance

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rep. Bella Abzug won another chance Sunday for re-election to Congress by defeating the widow of the late Rep. William F. Ryan for the Democratic nomination from the 20th Congressional District.

Mrs. Abzug, whose district was eliminated in a reapportionment plan approved by the state legislature, was defeated by Ryan in the June primary election. He died of cancer Sept. 17.

She won the nomination by 200 votes at a meeting held by the district's committeemen to choose a successor to Ryan. The special committee session was held because it was too late to hold a special election for the nomination, which is tantamount to victory in the heavily Democratic district.

Garrison Loses Bid

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— District Attorney Jim Garrison, who tried unsuccessfully to prove in court that a conspiracy was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, has lost his first political election.

Garrison, who faces federal charges of income tax evasion bribery, lost a bid for a judgeship on the Louisiana Supreme Court to District Judge Walter Marcus, 104,430 to 88,406.

Preparing To Defend

BEIRUT (UPI) — Yemen urged its people today to "prepare to defend their soil" against Southern Yemeni troops who have captured the border town of Qataba.

In Aden,the Southern Yemeni government called for a ceasefire along the embattled border between the two countries, where air and ground fighting has been going on for six days.

A statement issued by the Yemeni embassy in Beirut said Qataba fell to the Southern Yemeni invaders after a 15-hour air and artillery bombardment. An earlier statement said Yemeni troops shot down two of the Southern Yemeni warplanes which had been attacking the town since Tuesday.

China Speaker Arrives

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— Chinese vice Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua arrived in New York Sunday to deliver the policy statement of the People's Republic of China in the General Assembly.

It will be the last big-power spectacular in the assembly's general debate when he takes the floor as the fourth speaker Tuesday afternoon. The foreign ministers of Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States addressed the 132-member world body last week.

Chiao is the man who headed the People's Republic delegation when it officially entered the assembly last Nov. 15.

Issue In The Way

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House Speaker Carl Albert believes President Nixon's request for a controversial $250 billion government spending ceiling is the only issue which stands in the path of final congressional adjournment by Oct. 14.

Albert's prediction was made as Congress began wading through a heavy agenda of bills this week.

The Senate must still settle tests on welfare reform, defense spending, consumer protection, another end-the-war amendment, and a possible filibuster on a House-passed antibusing bill.

Albert has told newsmen he has received assurances that if Congress adjourns—rather than recesses to return after the November election—Nixon will not call the lawmakers back to Washington.

British Vote Demanded

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) —Labor Party Chairman Anthony Wedgwood Benn demanded today that the British people be given the right to vote before this country enters the European Common Market Jan. 1, 1973.

"The people of Ireland, of Norway, of Denmark have all been consulted in referendum votes," he said. "It is outrageous that the people of Britain alone should not be consulted on this vital national issue."

Marco's Death Decree

MANILA (UPI) — President.Ferdinand E. Marcos decreed the death penalty by firing squad or electrocution today for persons using unlicensed firearms to kill.

Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad also announced for the first time since martial law was declared Sept. 23 that fighting had erupted between government forces and the Maoist New Peoples Army. He said at least one Communist was killed and eight others captured in an encounter Sunday in Zambales Province.

In a third announcement, Tatad said President Marcos had decreed the passage of a bill before Congress which is aimed at attracting foreign companies in an expanded search for oil in the Philippines.

Conviction In Shoplifting Case

A Marin Superior Court jury has convicted Tinicia Brown, 22, of Richmond, of second degree burglary in connection with a shoplifting incident at Northgate Shopping Center.

The jurors in the court of Judge David Menary Jr. returned the verdict after 90 minutes of deliberation. Sentencing was scheduled for Nov. 2.

Miss Brown was arrested at the Emporium on July 3, 1971, after a guard told police she and a companion took $39 worth of children's clothing. Police said found in their car was $300 to $500 worth of clothing still bearing the tags of Santa Rosa stores.

Codefendant Bertha Marie West, 18, of Oakland, received 60 days in jail after a plea bargain in April.

Jets Bomb Shipyard, Escape Heavy Fire

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. jets Sunday flew through "more antiaircraft fire than I've ever seen before," one Navy pilot was quoted as saying today, but escaped unscathed in a bombing run on a shipyard in the major North Vietnamese port city of Haiphong.

The fighter-bombers also braved heavy missile fire to carry out the attack, the U.S. 7th Fleet said.

U.S. B52 bombers Sunday and today hit provinces around Saigon to blunt Communist harassment officers believe may be a prelude to an attack on the capital later this month, the U.S. command said. One of the strikes hit a long-time Communist infiltration route only 29 miles from Saigon.

The command said a U.S. Air Force F105 jet was shot down Friday 43 miles west of Hanoi and that both crewmen are missing. The F105 went down in the same general area bombed the previous day by swing-wing F111 jets in their first Indochina mission in four years.

North Vietnam announced it shot down one of the F111's, although the U.S. command as usual had no comment. However, the downing of the F105 the following day raised speculation that it was on a search-and-rescue mission for a downed plane. F105's carry missiles, not bombs, and are used exclusively as escorts.

An explosion Sunday aboard the heavy cruiser Newport News killed 19 sailors and injured at least 10 in one of the worst accidents of the war. The ship was headed for the Philippines today for repairs. The blast, which knocked out a turret holding three of the cruiser's nine eight-inch guns, forced the ship from its battle station in the Tonkin Gulf. It was the worst naval accident since fire swept the aircraft carrier Forrestal in July, 1967, killing 134 crewmen.

Egypt's Premier Plans Trip To Russia In Mid-Month

By U.P. INTENATIONAL

Egypt's decision to send Premier Aziz Sidky to Moscow is the first break in the stalemate in Soviet-Egyptian relations since President Anwar Sadat threw out a 15,000 Soviet military advisers in July, diplomatic sources in Cairo said today.

The Sidky visit to Moscow, expected at mid-month and arranged through the intervention of Syrian President Hafez Assad, will represent the highest level of contact between the two sides since Sadat's ouster decree.

Sidky will be seeking Soviet assurances of continued supplies of arms and spare parts in his talks with the Soviet leadership. But diplomatic sources stressed the talks are not expected to result in a return of the massive Soviet presence in Egypt.

A military source said in Tel Aviv today the Soviets have halted their airlift to Syria after delivering between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of supplies in less than a week. "We don't know yet exactly what kind of equipment has been delivered," the source said. "As far as we know, there have been no flights for three or four days. I would estimate that between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of equipment has been delivered."

There is no indication whether the equipment has been deployed for use against Israel, he said, but the Syrians have reinforced their front line with Israel and kept it on full alert.

Mild Quake Shakes Northern Utah Area

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A mild earthquake shook the Salt Lake-Summit County area in northern Utah Sunday, the University of Utah seismographic station reported, but no major damage resulted from the tremor.

Officials at the station said the quake measured 4.0 on the Richter scale and was reported at 1:43 p.m. The epicenter of the tremor was centered between Kimball's Junction and Park City, in a rural area 20 miles east of here.

Satellite Launched For Communications

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced today it launched a communications satellite, Molnia 2, on Saturday.

The Tass news agency said Molnia 2 will be used for international relay of telephone, telegraph and television services.

French-German Missile May Be Used By U.S.

PARIS (UPI)—A sophisticated missile developed by France and Germany may soon enter the arsenal of the U.S. Army, the largest world military market, French military officials announced today.

The Roland ground-to-air missile for use against low-flying enemy aircraft was produced by France's nationalized Aerospatiale firm and Germany's Messerschmitt-Bolkow-Bloom in their joint company called Euromissiles.

The French officials said two American aircraft companies, Hughes Aircraft and Boeing, had teamed to buy the license of the Roland to test it and produce it in the United States if the U. S. Army finally decides to order it.

The decision of the two American companies to buy the license was considered here as a sign the U. S. Army already had been impressed enough by the secret performances of the Roland to go one step further and test it itself.

10-SPEED BICYCLE FREE!
Your child can earn a $90.00 bicycle while he improves his reading and math skills!
Sullivan materials have earned a reputation nation-wide for motivating children to learn and for developing reading and mathematics skills. Time magazine, for example, comments:
"(Sullivan's) step-by-step procedure helps a teacher spot precisely what is puzzling a child—and the method frees her to give such children help without holding up others . . . in careful comparison with children taught by conventional methods, programmed reading has consistently come out on top."
But even the most exciting and innovative teaching materials cannot consistently hold a child's interest . . . especially when they are supplemental to a regular study schedule. "Learning for learning's sake" is often not enough.
At Sullivan Educational Centers we are well aware of this problem . . . and we have done something about it!
We have arranged to purchase 10-speed bicycles (which retail at up to $113.50) for our students at $90.00 each. Every student will "earn" one free "BIKE BUCK" for each hour of instruction that he takes between September 20, 1972, and March 1, 1973, at any of our twenty Sullivan Educational Centers. Each "BIKE BUCK" is worth $1.00 toward the purchase of his 10-speed bicycle. If he accumulates 90 "BIKE BUCKS", he will receive his own 10-speed, absolutely free!
Of course, any number of lessons may be taken, and any number of "BIKE BUCKS" redeemed to purchase a bicycle, the difference to be made up in cash.
BICYCLES ARE ON DISPLAY AT ALL CENTERS.

Nixon Campaign: Mood Of A Vacation

By COURTNEY R. SHELDON
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WITH THE PRESIDENT — President Nixon is treating campaigning this year almost like a vacation. He dines at the best hotels, talks endlessly with his friends, and stays up late.

And like other traveling Americans he fondly remembers his home and reminisces about it more with each passing hour.

Some of his aides have wondered if he should leave the White House at all this campaign season. What can be done on the road to defeat Sen. George McGovern that can't be better accomplished in Washington, they ask.

They may be even more convinced as the result of Nixon's first midweek campaign tour to New York, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

The most impressive headlines of the first part of the trip were from the announcement that Henry A. Kissinger was again secretly meeting with North Vietnamese negotiators.

If anything, the presidential politicking detracted from the peacemaking image that the Kissinger mission gives the Nixon administration.

The visit to New York did offer Nixon an opportunity to reaffirm his support for Israel to a group of Jewish supporters.

But Nixon could have obtained equal mileage from greeting the same men in the oval office of the White House. They probably would have been even more impressed.

The hazards of campaigning as the front-runner were apparent on two occasions:

While he was trying to demonstrate his interest in ethnic groups at a ceremony at the Statue of Liberty monument in New York, a handful of anti-war demonstrators momentarily interrupted him. The President's voice was noticeably tenser. The demonstrators called attention to their cause. The atmosphere was not quite the same thereafter.

The New York audience which contributed $1,000 each for beef and blueberries was unusually leaden. Only the several hundred youths brought in to liven spirits saved the day. The wealthy contributors appeared to think that Nixon should be applauding them for their support. His speech was mostly a rephrasing of earlier campaign remarks.

One day of one trip doesn't make a campaign, and there is plenty of time for Nixon to evoke the kind of wild enthusiasm that usually accompanies presidential campaigns.

For now, it can only be said more of the mild cheers are for attacks on McGovern than for Nixon's stated accomplishments. Foreign-policy declarations spark the biggest reactions. Domestic claims seem to leave audiences unmoved.

Though his speech to the Victory '72 dinner at New York's Americana Hotel — televised by closed circuit to 26 similar dinners — broke no new ground, Nixon's conference with his Jewish supporters did.

For the first time, Nixon warned publicly of politicizing the plight of the Jews who are anxious to leave the Soviet Union but cannot because of the heavy tax on their departure.

He assured the Jews that he was dealing with the matter appropriately through diplomatic channels. As Ronald L. Ziegler, his press secretary, reported his views, the President felt that "harsh confrontation" with the Soviet Union "would only serve to be counterproductive."

In none of his political speeches thus far has Nixon mentioned the differences between the Soviet Union and the U.S. over the Middle East.

Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, in his talk to the victory dinners, did hail the two-year truce in the Middle East. Administration officials say almost nothing publicly about Soviet relations with Egypt and the withdrawals of Soviet personnel.

In Nixon's there is an apparent desire to say what the Jewish community would like to hear, but not to the point of jeopardizing the new relations with the Soviet Union.

A further effort to corral support from the Jews was Nixon's statement issued en route to San Francisco.

He said he was "gratified that the United Nations has agreed to take up the urgent matter of terrorism."

The U.N. debate is an outgrowth of the tragedy at Munich when members of the Israeli Olympic team were held hostage by Palestinians and then shot.

"There are those who would tell us that terror is the last resort of the weak and the oppressed, a product of despair in an age of indifference, and that it seeks only political justice," said the President.

Republican officials estimate that the countrywide victory dinners will net $5 million. Clark MacGregor, Nixon's campaign director, says rather modestly, "I believe we will have the finances necessary to wage an effective campaign."

Steam Powered Bus: Good Marks

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)— Steam buses may have a future after all, the AC Transit District reported Monday

The district said a steam bus it has been testing for the state just completed nine faultless days in revenue service, covering 353 miles during its last demonstration period with no stops for operational problems, water or fuel.

The only problems were occasional fumes from a mixture of fuel and air, which some passengers complained about. But most riders weren't even aware the bus was powered by a steam engine rather than an internal combustion gasoline motor.

During the early summer, AC Transit returned the bus to its developer, Williamm M. Brobeck Engineers of Berkeley, for modification and improvement after problems with water consumption, noise, fumes and repeated breakdowns during its first runs.

But a spokesman for the two-county transit district said the bus ran 3,403 miles after the improvements, demonstrating the operational feasibility of steam and its acceptance by the public. The bus tested well below the state's 1975 minimum emission standards.

Two other steam buses were also tested under an $8 million federal, state and local feasibility program. A bus manufactured by Lear Motors of Reno operated for three weeks in San Francisco. A bus built by Steam Power Systems of San Diego was tried out in Los Angeles.

The testing period ended during the weekend and Scientific Analysis Corp. of San Francisco will prepare a report on the experiment during the coming month.

Passengers interviewed on the last scheduled run o the Brobecker steam bus agreed it operated more smoothly than a regular vehicle and seemed to have faster pick-up.

"It feels like a plane and I think it's quieter too," said Mrs. Anne Carvalho of Oakland. "It's a lot more comfortable," added Joseph Henry of Oakland. "It feels like you're on a cushion," said Ashton Lofton of Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stead of Oakland were perhaps the only passengers who knew they were aboard a steam bus.

"We were on another line and saw the steam bus sign, so we got off to try it," said Stead. "It's pretty good. It's about the same as another bus, but it has more take-off and power."

The future of the vehicle is undecided. Developer Brobecker may buy it back or it may be returned in original operation condition to AC Transit.

The California State Assembly, which sponsored the testing program, has applied for Urban Mass Transit Administration funds to continue the project until two preproduction prototypes can be engineered to determine technical suitability. The proposed $11.5 million program would run for 42 months, then private industry would have to decide whether to produce steam-powered buses commercially.

Brown Act On Novato Agenda

Attorney-client relations as affected by the Ralph M. Brown act will be discussed by the Novato City Council when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Community House.

The council had met in the office of City Atty. Clark M. Palmer Jr. to discuss the city's role in commercial flights at Hamilton Air Force Base. No notice of the meeting was given the press though the Brown Act requires 24-hour notice of such meeting.

The council will discuss the future policy of the city regarding the maintenance of median islands in the streets. At the present time, some are maintained by special districts and others are not maintained at all.

Other items before the council include the selection of a site for the proposed second swimming pool for which the city is asking authorization to sell $500,000 bonds, a report on the city's insurance program, a report on the grand jury proposal for consolidating police services and purchase of the Richard Connell property at 1523 South Novato Boulevard for a street project.

been attacked for such things as his handling of the dropping of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton from the ticket, McGovern said:

"We can ill afford to debate this issue while death continues to stalk the face of Indochina and our own nation deteriorates under the worst leadership in our national history.

"I have never deceived the people of this country and I have never ducked the hard issues of war and peace, of military spending, of tax reform —and those are three of the sacred cows around this city that many of my colleagues have not yet touched."

McGovern insisted that "the war could end at any moment if we would only break free from the brutal regime in Saigon."

"Our sacred honor," the senator added, "is laid at the feet of dictators, dope runners and gangsters in Saigon —a government that subverts our ideals just as eagerly as it steals our aid."

Prior to attending the conference McGovern charged Nixon with using Social Security checks as a "political ploy" to win the votes of the elderly.

In a statement, McGovern bitterly protested that the next Social Security checks, which include a 20 per cent across-the-board increase, also state that the extra money was signed into law by Nixon.

McGovern said the "28 million recipients of Social Security benefits are rightly disturbed that Richard Nixon, who has neglected them for four years, is trying to use this Social Security increase—which he did everything in his power to prevent—as a political ploy to win votes in the upcoming election."

Gromyko is in the United States attending the United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York. His consultations with Nixon, officials said, also was aimed at making agreements in two commercial areas:

— Soviet-American negotiations on settling the Soviet World War II debt to the United States. The debt originally was estimated at $2.6 billion. Both sides now appear ready to settle for about $500 million with repayment over a 30-year period at low interest.

—Talks on a maritime agreement under which ships of the Soviet Union, the United States and third countries would be able to transport large amounts of American grain to the Soviet Union.

Groundwork for the meeting was carried out by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger, who went to Moscow last month; and by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who met the Soviet foreign minister in new York last week.

State Department officials said the United States was prepared to meet in Helsinki starting Nov. 22 for exploratory talks on the Soviet-sponsored European security conference. About 30 nations would participate in the meeting, which would try to improve the political climate, increase trade, and bring about further scientific exchanges.

Preschool Proposal Approved

Marin County Board of Education will be told at its meeting Wednesday that state approval has been given for a preschool children's center at Pilgram Park, north San Rafael.

The center has been planned for the last 18 months, according to assistant county schools superintendent Robert E. Spain, but has awaited state approval.

Also before the 8 o'clock meeting will be a report from the director of business services Joseph Amato on the effect of redevelopment projects on schools' financing.

Edward Brennan, director of special services, will report on a V.D. education project under which the county schools office will work with the state education and health departments in educating teachers and the community on venereal disease.

Dark Skies, More Rain May Come

Marin and Sonoma skies were dark and chilly yesterday, catching weather experts with their forecasts down and disappointing yachtsmen and everyone else who had counted on a sunny day out of doors.

The culprit was a storm that sneaked into the Sierra Nevada from the southwest. Its fringes brought overcast and a bit of drizzle to the San Francisco Bay Area, ending the Indian summer that held sway Friday and Saturday. The forecasts had called for the delightful weather to continue.

Lightning, hail and rain were widespread in the Sierra and western Nevada; a bit of snow fell at the highest elevations.

By 8 a.m. today, .08 inch of rain had been recorded in Sausalito and .02 inch in San Rafael. Novato and a few other areas reported a trace of rain, while many communities had none.

The forecast for tonight was 20 per cent chance of rain, with clearing tomorrow.

College Conferences Wednesday

The seventh annual Marin College Night Conferences, open to parents and students from all high schools in Marin, private and public, will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at San Marin High School.

More than 20 representatives from colleges and universities, public and private, are slated to present information about their respective schools, according to conference coordinators Ralph Del Sarto, Novato High School counselor, and Donald Nicholas, San Marin High School counselor.

The conference will include three separate sessions so a student could get information about three separate colleges or universities during the evening, the coordinators said.

Several University of California campuses and most state colleges are to be represented along with public and private schools.

Future Road Plans On List

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce will discuss future plans for improving Highways 101 and 17 at noon Wednesday at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael.

Speaking at the meeting will be Ray Weiss, a senior design engineer for the California Division of Highways.

Topics will include improvement of Francisco, Sir Francis Drake, Bellam and Kerner boulevards, the Francisco Boulevard interchange and overpass replacement schedule.

Redevelopment Hearing Slated

The Novato City Council will hold a public hearing on the formation of a redevelopment agency at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House.

The redevelopment agency would be similar to that adopted or considered by other cities in the county. These have been opposed by other taxing bodies in the county. It would freeze assessed valuation at its present level to the other agencies until any bonds sold by the agency were paid off by any increase in assessed valuation.

The council will hold its regular meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Community House.

Scholarship Deadline Nov. 20

California high school graduates have until Nov. 20 to apply for 11,200 state scholarships for the 1973-74 school year, it was announced today.

Applications are available from the State Scholarship and Loan Commission, 714 P Street, Sacramento.

Awards are made on the basis of need and scores from the Scholastic Aptitude Test which is scheduled for Oct. 14 and Nov. 4.

Lumber Taken

Plywood tongue and groove sheets worth $250 were stolen from a construction site at Fifer Avenue and Lucky Drive during Wednesday night, Corte Madera police reported today.

SOUTH

"The Democratic label has not been objectionable to them in the past, or they could hide behind Gov. (George C.) Wallace. So, for the first time this year, the label is not so attractive."

So worried are some Democrats, he says, that they are running with "nonpartisan" labels. At the same time, Republicans express unusual optimism from the top to the bottom o their ticket.

President Nixon will "annihilate" Sen. George McGovern in South Carolina, says Powell. Senator Thurmond is heavily favored for re-election. The one Republican member of the US House is unopposed, and Republicans are running in the other five districts, with victories possible in at least two of them.

In legislative races, the party is fielding 102 candidates for 170 seats — somewhat above the previous record of 88 candidates two years ago. The party also has full slates of county council candidates in Greenville, Charleston, Richland (Columbia), and Lexington — eomething that has never happened before, says party executive director Gay Suber.

Suber notes that campaign funds are flowing in plentifully for many candidates, including the US House, auguring well for November.

Although Republicans are not on a fast escalator in every state in Dixie, there are indications of political ferment in most of them:

Georgia is watching a hard-fought race for the Senate seat of the late Richard B. Russell. It pits Rep. Fletcher Thompson (R) against Sam A. Nunn Jr., a young lawyer who upset David H. Gambrell, a stand-in for Russell. Republicans are also making one of their strongest bids for additional House seats.

North Carolina sees Republicans closing in on Democrats for both the Senate and governor. In addition, the party could add two or three House seats to the four they already have.

Virginia party officials hope to pick up at least one House seat. With state elections coming next year, they look for possible party realignment of "Historical proportions" in the next few months, if the Republicans can win the tough U.S. Senate race in November.

Tennessee Republicans are watching the Public Service Commission race, the state House of Representatives, and th U.S. House races to see if the Republican tide there is continuing. The state has become one of the party's bedrock areas in the "new South."

Alabama features a race between Winton M. Blount, Republican and former postmaster general, and veteran Sen. John Sparkman, who once ran on the national Democratic ticket with Adlai E. Stevenson. Entry of a third candidate, John Leflore of Mobile, for the predominantly black National Democratic party of Alabama, has tipped the race to Blount, local observers say.

Mississippi Republican officials see hopes of electing a number of Republicans to the now all-Democratic House delegation. Three of the Democrats are retiring, and one of them, William M. Colmer, is actually campaigning for the Republican candidate, Trent Lott, who is Colmer's former administrative assistant.

Louisiana has recently completed its state elections, but on the federal level, Republicans are hoping to pick up a Senate seat in a three-way race featuring former Gov. John J. McKeithen as an independent candidate. At least one Republican, Dave Treen, could add a House seat.

Staff Report Of Fire Damage

Lagunitas School District trustees will receive a staff report on the extensive fire damage to Lagunitas School when they meet at 8 p.m. today at San Geronimo Valley Elementary School.

Trustees will meet first in a closed-door session at 7:30 p.m. to discuss hiring of an additional teacher for the open classroom program. Two recommendations for the position have been made.

Also on the agenda is a recommendation to hire personnel for the district's music program. Other business includes review of next year's budget.

Equipment Taken

Electronic equipment and stereo tapes valued at $250 were taken Saturday from a car parked on Glenaire Drive, San Rafael, owner Richard Blaine Wallace of 3 Glenaire Drive, told police yesterday.

OBITUARIES

Artist Dies In Fall At Home

A 40-year-old artist died Saturday morning after falling 14 feet from a rafter of his unfinished house on Mesa Road in Bolinas.

The man John Phillip Boyce Jr., mounted the rafter at about 12:30 a.m. on returning home from a party, according to coroner's deputy Donald L. Cornish. He slipped and struck his head against a metal stairway 14 feet below. The coroner's office was unable to explain why Boyce was walking on the rafter.

He was taken to Marin General Hospital emergency room, where he died of head injuries at 3:36 a.m.

He was a native of Ann Arbor, Mich., and a resident of California since 1956. He lived in Marin County for the past four years.

He was a self-employed artist and carpenter.

Boyce is survived by his mother J'Willva M. Boyce, of Costa Mesa, Orange County.

time on issues of public interest.

7. The town's redevelopment agency should prepare a status report including a report on what legal commitments have been made to consultants who will plan for redevelopment. This should be done before any further commitments are made.

8. Residents are dissatisfied with current traffic control and enforcement in the town.

The groups which met to study the various concerns in the morning sessions also agreed to try to continue to work in areas of planning and development, open space, communications and citizens participation and town services.

They will ask the council for recognition as official fact-finding and advisory citizens groups for the town.

There were other recommendations by the study groups which were not voted on as resolutions during the afternoon session because of a lack of time to consider them.

But all the recommendations will be included in the report of the town meeting which will be prsented to the council at a later date.

Other suggestions approved by the groups included: a town newsletter, a poll of citizens on what they are willing to pay for open space, some form of control of growth in the town, redrawing school district boundaries to conform to neighborhoods, fact sheets on ways and means of undergrounding utilities and active recruitment of volunteer firemen.

The residents also asked that a representative group of citizens from Corte Madera and Larkspur explore the feasibility of combing town services for the two communities.

Rohnert Park Development Before Council

Plans for a massive 680-acre residential development will be considered at the Rohnert Park City Council meeting at 7 p.m. today.

Shapell Industries of Northern California will present tentative plans to develop the area in the northern section ok Rohnert Park. Plans for homes, apartments and townhouses could boost the population by 8,000 people.

The firm's rezoning request has not yet been approved by the planning commission, but approval on the general concept of the plan will be sought.

Mrs. Butler died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 83.

She was a native of Fort Madison, Iowa, and had lived in Marin for the past 17 years. She resided at 164 Los Angeles Boulevard.

She is survived by five daughters, Margaret Chapin and Elinor Shaw, both of San Anselmo, Catherine Sullivan of Rohnert Park, Mary Lou Shister of San Francisco and Mrs. Donald Davis of Arizona; two sons, Frank Butler of San Anselmo, and William Butler of Fort Madison, Iowa; a sister, Marie Schier of North Arlington, New Jersey and 22 grandchildren.

Burial will be at Fort Madison, Iowa.

NOT ENOUGH GARBAGE

Piggie Isn't Going To Market

By SUSAN WATTERS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — The all-American hog, a pioneer in solid-waste disposal, is finding good garbage hard to come by.

Since incinerators, landfills, garbage disposals and trash compressors compete for your table scraps farmers who recycle garbage into bacon are feeling the pinch. Many hog farming experts fear a garbage rush eventually will push most Eastern hog farmers and their multi-million-dollar swine industry out of business.

One lifelong hog farmer from Blackstone, Mass., says the growing garbage shortage is hitting him hard. The impact of the growing trend struck his farm in July when a Boston suburban town opted for landfill disposal instead of giving its table scraps to the hogs.

"It really hurt me when the town ended their contract for me to pick up their garbage," says Frank Strycharz. "I invested a lot of money to process and cook my garbage according to state law. But when a contract runs out, you're left hanging on a limb."

Strycharz said converting to grain is not an option for him. "We Eastern farmers don't have the cultivated soil to sow seed like they do in the West," he explained. "So garbage is just about all we can feed our hogs."

Farmers in Pennsylvania and states farther west have been able to grow grain to keep their swine industries growing while Massachusetts and New Jersey, the two biggest garbage-feeding states in the nation, have had to squeeze through leaner years.

While 1970 saw the highest nationwide hog crop since 1942, trends in these two Eastern states were not so promising. In Massachuestts, where permits issued to feed garbage have dropped off considerably, hog-farming crops fell by almost 8,000 hogs from 1968 to a total of 52,000 hogs in 1970-71.

And in New Jersey, where a $14-million hog-farming industry means big business, the hog crop from 1968 to 1970 dropped 13,000 to 84,000.

In Pennsylvania, the picture changes. While garbage permits issued there have almost halved from 1968 to 1972, the hog crop picked up over 10,000 new pigs. The chief factor, said Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture James McHale, "is that we're in a better position to get grain at cheaper prices since Pennsylvania isn't a grain-importing state."

In the Midwest, which produces some 73 per cent of all hogs and raises 87 per cent of the nation's corn, garbage is no problem. "In a town like Dubuque, Iowa, one hog producer could probably use all the garbage that population could produce," said Clarence Wilson, editor of the New England Agricultural Magazine.

Eastern hog farmers committed to garbage feeding indicate several reasons for the decline in their industry. A major one is that austerity-minded municipalities pulling in the spending belt have judged separate garbage collections to be unnecessary. Many Massachusetts towns have dropped the two-pickup system — one for garbage and one for other trash.

In Portland, Maine, officials say they will drop their separate garbage collection, which now goes to feeding hogs, in January, 1973. Instead, disposal sites will take on that city's refuse.

And in southern New Jersey, John Lee Womack of the New Jersey Livestock Cooperative Association says almost every town has converted to a single trash-garbafe pickup to cut municipal costs.

Another problem hog farmers are facing in urban areas is that many communities have banned "piggeries" from their towns. Hog farmers face the same problem as municipal dumps — "no one wants a garbage dump in his town."

"With suburban and induatrial development, hog farms are being zoned out of most town," said Edward M. Dwyer, a Massachusetts Department of Agriculture official. He said most people don't even know a hog farm is nearby till they see it in the winter when the leaves fall. Then the hog farm becomes a "public nuisance" and by town meeting time in March, neighborhood opposition has organized to zone the local hog farmer out.

And as hog farmers are forced to move farther out of metropolitan areas, the costs of transporting garbage out continue to rise.

Other factors hurting the Eastern hog farmer:

—Pressures from grain-feeding hog farmers — who want to change the image of hogs eating garbage and who fear that garbage that accidentally remains uncooked will cause hog-cholera epidemics — have convinced eight states to prohibit feeding garbage to hogs. These states include Wisconsin, South Dakota, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Virginia, Alabama, and Missippi. New York has banned feeding garbage after 1980. And in eight other states, legislation prohibiting feeding garbage is on the books. These states are Arizona, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Texas.

—Development pressures in towns and increased land taxes have pushed hog farmers, like other farming landowners, to consider selling their sites to developers.

—Relocating hog farms has become more difficult as local zoning laws become more rigid.

—And, the national trend toward convenience foods that are packaged and pre-trimmed to diminish household garbage, along with increased use of garbage disposals, has cut into the supply and quality of garbage feeding-waste materials.

But despite these drawbacks, several Masschusetts cities and towns still see hog farmers as their only means of garbage disposal. Bay State cities like Quincy, which has been unwilling to build a costly municipal incinerator, and Boston, which has not upgraded its incinerator, still use hog farmers to dispose of their garbage.

So, while state solid-waste programs push for conversion from garbage pickups to incinerators and sanitary-landfill operations, hog farmers still fill a municipal need.

And while state agriculture officials see garbage feeding disappearing within the next 20 years, Massachusetts officials have prefered to let natural trends of economics, development, and antipollution legislation make the final decision in this state.

Buffalo Bill's Guns Auctioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Buffalo Bill Cody's derringer pistols were sold at auction Sunday for $8,500.

A California dealer, who was not identified, bought the matched weapons at a sale held by Sothby Parke-Bernet of 133 lots from the 16,000-gun collection of the late William Renwick of Tucson, Ariz.

According to the history of the weapons, Cody, the famous western hunter, scout and wild west show producer, gave the pistols to Louis A. Barker, who later gave them to Renwick.

Something Old, Something New.

First Federal SAVINGS & LOAN

It's an old tradition, in a new location. First Federal Savings and Loan Association, long known in San Rafael for friendly community service, now takes great pleasure in offering that same service from its new offices, on College Avenue, in Oakland.

We've happily found an interesting example of turn-of-the-century architecture and completely restored it to its prime Victorian-Early American condition, from foundation to shiplap siding and roof cornice. New, but traditional. Inside we've installed an Oakland-based staff, to provide the traditional services we've always proudly offered.

Our traditional service starts with Free Safe-Deposit Boxes, with no minimum savings-balance required. (We were the first to offer this community service in Northern California.) We also offer Free Travelers Checks and, of course, Free Parking. Then, there's our convenient Savings-by-Mail, on First Federal Savings Accounts, which we would like to point out will be paying you the highest daily interest rates, compounded daily, permitted by law. There's also the friendliest service in town in Mortgage Loans and Home Improvement Loans, including personally and privately-handled Free Appraisals on older property, a service many companies are not inclined to trouble with. Then there's new Construction Loans, Certificates of Deposit, Government Bond Redemption, Payment Services on Tax and Insurance Premiums and Loans, and Free Collection Service on Second Deeds of Trust. That's our traditional service. You'll want to come see our new location. We are making a donation to the Dunsmuir House Reconstruction Roofing Fund, in the name of each visitor who signs our Guest Book during our Grand Opening Celebration. Visit us soon and put your name on a new shingle for Dunsmuir House.

Washington School Strike Ends

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Teachers in the District of Columbia voted today to end a nine-day strike and let 141,000 Washington public school students go back to class.

The teachers voted to accept a tentative agreement worked out Sunday by negotiators of the 3,500-member Washington Teachers Union and the Board of Education with the help of a federal mediator and Mayor Walter E. Washington.

Details of the agreement were not announced immediately.

Union president William Simons still had a court appointment to see if he would be imprisoned for contemp of court. Superior Court Judge Robert Campbell ordered him and other members of the union board jailed last week, but delayed sentencing while negotiations continued.

The union also was fined $50,000 and $10,000 for each day the strike continued in violation of a court order.

School officials said announcement of the tentative agreement came too late for classes to resume today at the city's 188 schools. They have been shut down since Thursday. Officials, however, said schools will be open for teaching personnel.

The major issues in the dispute, which began Sept. 19, involved a pay increase, improved working conditions and restoration of teaching posts slashed from the school board budget.

But the majority ignored the court order prompting Campbell to levy a $50,000 fine against the union and jail terms for Simons and other members of the union's executive committee if the strike did not end. He also said the fine would increase $10,000 each day the strike continued.

The union officials were scheduled to appear before Campbell today to show cause why they should not be held for contempt of court.

In other school strife:

—The fall term at the Community College of Allegheny County, Pa., will begin today, one month late, after striking faculty members voted over the weekend to accept a new, two-year contract.

—Washington County, Pa., judge Alexander Curran was scheduled to hear arguments today in a suit filed by a parents group seeking to end a teachers strike in the Charleroi schools. He ordered round-the-clock negotiations in an effort to settle the dispute before the hearing. Strikes also continued in six other Western Pennsylvania school districts.

—No progress was reported Sunday in strikes affecting schools in Racine, and Muskego-Norway and Fox Valley Tech Institute in Wisconsin.

—A temporary restraining order was issued in Burlington, Mass., requiring the school board to close its schools this week unless a strike by 470 teachers was resolved.

—About one-fourth of the 1,200 maintenance workers in Mobile, Ala., schools began the second week of a strike. They want union recognition and higher pay.

Window Smashed, Jewelry Taken

Watches and costume jewelry valued at $200 were taken. Police said an officer had walked through the store at 4:20 a.m. and returned at 5 a.m. to find the window smashed.

Hunter Struck Dead By Lightning Bolt

TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) — A 30-year-old man was struck by a bolt of lightning and killed while deer hunting with a friend in the Donner summit area near here, the sheriff's department said.

The Placer County sheriffs office said Robert L. Sith, of Wilton, Calif., died Sunday after being hit during an electrical storm. His companion, Mike Shaw, reported the accident to rangers and then was taken to a local hospital in shock.

Court Opens, Faces Tough Questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Facing tough questions involving abortion and freedom of speech, the Supreme Court opened its 1972-73 term today in a four-minute ceremony.

"I have the honor to announce that the October, 1972, term of the Supreme Court is now convened," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said.

After admission of eight attorneys to practice before the court, the nine justices adjourned to their private conference room where they will consider a backlog of several hundred appeals that have accumulated during the summer. The 1971-72 term ended June 29.

As assistant marshal, Robert R. Wilkins, intoned the traditional "oyez, oyez", the justices entered a refurbished chamber with new lighting and a freshly painted multicolored ceiling.

For the first time, the four court pages included a girl, Deborah Gelin, 14, of Rockville, Md.

About four days will be consumed in deciding which of the hundreds of appeals to accept for argument and decision and which to reject.

On Oct. 10, the results will be announced in a thick sheaf of orders. Written opinions are not likely to be forthcoming until November, at the earliest.

Passenger Plane Struck By Shell

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—A Communist 82-mm mortar struck a passenger plane in the southern coastal province of Kampot early today, killing nine persons and wounding 20 others, the high command reported.

Two shells were fired as the Cambodia Air Commercial DC3 aircraft touched down at the Kampot airfield, 93 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. The second shell hit the plane causing, considerable damage.

The wounded, who were rushed to a hospital in Phnom Penh, included the pilot and copilot, both Taiwanese, a command spokesman said.

Rock Stolen

A 200-pound lava rock was stolen from her front garden Friday, Sue Margaret Dranichak of 160 Wilson Way, told Larkspur police. A matching rock on the opposite side of the driveway showed signs of attempted theft, said police, but the thieves had given up the try.

EMERGENCY — A United Air Lines 727 jetliner with 99 persons aboard veered off the runway when its landing gear collapsed yesterday at San Francisco International Airport. The plane came to rest after hitting a radar tower. Six passengers were treated for minor injuries.

(UPI Telephoto)

727 Lands Without Landing Gear

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A United Airlines jetliner returning to San Francisco when a trouble light blinked on, veered off a runway and hit a radar beacon yesterday when its landing gear collapsed. Nine of the 95 persons aboard received minor inuries.

The Boeing 727 was evacuated within 40 seconds of coming to a stop and left a trail of debris littering the field. The airport was closed for about 90 minutes, with some incoming flights diverted to Oakland airport across San Francisco Bay.

"I was surprised to find the aircraft was so demolished," said one woman passenger, and added she wasn't scared because the crew "were so calm and cool."

"You knew it was an abnormal landing...you felt yourself going off the runway," said Connie Mayer, a stewardess, one of the seven crewmembers aboard the Los Angeles-bound flight.

"I started yelling get your heads down. When we landed, the girls started yelling 'come this way.'" One exit was blocked by the radar beacon.

Kyras Stinson, a passenger on the plane, said the 88 passengers were instructed to grab their ankles and put their heads down into their laps as the plane came in to land.

The pilot, who declined to give his name, described the evacuation as "normal emergency procedures that everyone is trained for."

Nine persons were taken to the hospital, but all released within a few hours.

The incident began when a light went on in the cockpit warning of overheating in one of the cargo pits when the plane was about 30 minutes out of San Francisco.

A United spokesman said the reason for the light going on and the collapse of the right landing gear was not yet known.

Federal investigators and airline specialists were on the scene shortly after the accident, which, the spokesman said, did not appear to have caused serious damage to the plane.

About two hours after the crash, an inspector left his car in gear and the engine running about 50 yards from the plane. The car apparently slipped into gear, rolled forward and smacked into the rear stairs of the jet.

Scientists Have The Fastest Gun

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—It really is the fastest gun in the world, not to mention the West.

And scientists at the California Institute of Technology say their new design—which will fire bullets at speeds up to 30,000 miles an hour—will be able to tell them some important facts about the center of the earth.

The "gun" will shoot plastic bullets at adjustable speeds at core samples of different rocks and minerals. It will be able to simulate in the target the great temperatures and pressures that exist beneath the earth's crust.

By measuring and comparing the shock waves from these experiments, explained Dr. T. H. Ahrens, associate professor of geophysics, "We hope to be able to determine whether silicon or sulphur is the dominant element, in alloy with iron, in the earth's core."

Sir Alec To China

LONDON (UPI) — The Foreign Office said today Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home will visit China Oct. 20 to Nov. 2.

Port Paralyzed By Tug Strike

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ship traffic through the world's largest freshwater port was severely curtailed today by a tugboat workers strike against the city's four major towing companies.

About 200 crewmen walked off the job at midnight Sunday when their old, three-year contract with the firms expired.

Alfred Coory, director of the Philadelphia Marine Trade Association said the strike would affect about 30 large tugboats. Only a small number of tugs were expected to be operating today, mostly pushing small barges.

Reporters Present New Award To Butz

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has added a new award—the "Wounded Steer"—to his collection. Reporters presented the stuffed animal to Butz after he promised farmers that he would "fight like a wounded steer" against government price ceilings on beef prices.

The National Potato Council on Friday gave Butz its "Gold Potato" award—a gold-colored replica of a baking potato mounted on a plaque—for his "contributions to the potato industry."

BIG BUSINESS — The 100th anniversary of the start of mail order business is commemorated with an 8-cent postage stamp. In Chicago, Aaron Montgomery Ward, the man who started it all, is being honored with the placement of his bust in the Merchandise Mart Hall of Fame.

The Mail-Order Industry —Long Since Remote

By NANCY IRAN PHILLIPS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHICAGO — The mail-order industry and its founder are being honored here with the issuance of a commemorative postage stamp and the placement of a bust of Aaron Montgomery Ward in the Merchandise Mart Hall of Fame.

The sculpture of Ward joins busts of seven other giants of retailing in the plaza of the mart, one of the world centers of wholesaling. The postal service is issuing the stamp to honor the entire industry, one of its best customers.

With a stamp depicting the rural post office in a country store of a century ago, the mail service is recognizing that in 1971 more than 300 million pieces of mail were traceable to this industry. Today direct mail advertising and selling provides more than a third of the revenues of the postal service.

Ward's alone has spent some $100 billion with the post office since its beginning. In combination with Sears, Roebuck & Co., which entered the business in 1886, the two issue 13 million catalogs a year. Originally catalogs were mailed, but today, because of high postage costs and the weight of the catalogs, many of them are picked up at the companies retail stores.

Estimates of today's mail-order volume run into the tens of billions, but the figures are hard to pin down because of the diversity of the business, which ranges from catalog sales to direct-mail letters. And often the catalog sales of the "big five" are reported only in the total sales of the companies.

Industry sources say that Ward's last year had a 7 per cent increase in catalog sales, or a total sales volume of some $600 million from the catalog. Sears, leader of the mail-order merchants, reported 22 per cent of their $10 billion sales in 1971 from the catalog — approximately $2.2 billion. Spiegel, part of Beneficial Corp., and J.C. Penney Co. are said to represent some $300 million each in annual sales last year. Aldens figures now are part of the Gamble-Skogmo financial report and are not revealed. The five companies are thought to represent a total of $4 billion in sales last year.

Forbes magazine reported recently that all five were profitable in catalog operations last year. A Sears executive pointed out that capital expenditures for that firm's catalog business have risen from $17 million in 1969 to $67 million in 1971.

Edward S. Donnell, president of Montgomery Ward, a part of Marcor Corp., told a press conference recently that the mail-order business is growing at a rate as rapid as retailing in general. "And its growth was never stronger," he declared. He pointed to the growth of pick-up stores, where today the consumer who selects merchandise from a catalog may go to order it or pick it up when it arrives. Many of these are franchise operations.

In these days of consumerism, Ward's points out it began offering "satisfaction guaranteed or your money back," when it started in business.

This principle has been followed by the industry, which today also includes many specialized catalog services. The big ones are Breck's of Boston; Sunset House, Beverly Hills; Spencer Gifts, Atlantic City; Helen Gallagher Foster House, Peoria, Ill.; and Miles Kimball, Oshkosh, Wis. Only Miles Kimball is an independent organization. The others have been purchased by conglomerates in recent years. Most recent was the purchase of Haverhill's of San Francisco by Time, Inc., in October 1971, another sign of the sales potential these firms represent.

According to Ted Leyhe, vice-president of Miles Kimball, convenience is the largest single factor in the consumer's reason for purchasing by mail. "He doesn't have to park and shop," he said. His customers come from a cross section of the United States, including big cities and rural towns. The merchandise that sells best is "that which requires some explanation."

He used as an example a cherry pitter, which a shopper might ignore on a table in a store, but which has interest when it is photographed and described in a catalog.

A spokesman for Helen Gallagher Foster House points out that since they offer selling with their own "Extend-a-Charge" as well as Master Charge and Bank Americard, and now employ a reverse Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS), their business is growing and the term "mail order" is not appropriate as "catalog sales."

Though Ward started his business to serve members of the grange, to save them money by making quality merchandise available to them directly, today's mail-order customer is not confined to remote areas. J.C. Penney, for example, has started its catalog business with its retail stores as the ordering center.

Grape Festival Nears End

By BARBARA HOSMER

The Grape Festival, one of Marin oldest traditions, is moving toward its yearly climax on Saturday, with the help of some 1,500 Marinites.

One is Mrs. Gibson Crawford, who as president of the Sunny Hills Guilds' Governing Council and member of both the Sunny Hills board of directors and Terra Linda Guild II of Sunny Hills says, "I devote myself to one organization at a time."

Now, like the other women in the 37 guilds, she is into the final stages of erecting and running the one-day combination giant festival, bazaar and fair which has for 73 years been geared to family fun. Recipient of the proceeds which ran some averages some $25,000 to $30,000, is Sunny Hills in San Anselmo and San Francisco which offers residential treatment for adolescents with emotional and behavorial problems.

THE VOLUNTEERS have already laid out the field near the Marin Civic Center for the festival day and last weekend they began construction of the 50 plus booths. Each guild produces its own booth, under the direction of the Grape Festival chairman, Mrs. Frank Huntington of the Peacock Gap Guild, and her committee.

"We started a year ago November with a brainstorming meeting of guild representatives to plan this upcoming festival," Kay Crawford explained.

The women developed a new committee of representatives of the guilds, many of whom are new to the festival. "That way we get fresh people with new ideas," she said.

Then the guilds started to work on their products to be made by them and marketed at the Grape Festival. The chairman works with the guilds to develop new handcrafted products and ideas. The workshops are held throughout the winter until June or through the summer and at the same time each guild holds fund-raising parties or activities to get money with which to buy materials for the products their booth will sell.

"THIS WAY all the products for sale are paid for before the festival," Mrs. Crawford said. Any monies left over go toward the Sunny Hills program.

The public relations, printed signs and brochures are handled by three chairmen, while the community chairman is contacting groups such as the military branches, the Boy and Girl Scouts, and others who will participate in the festival.

Transportation from the parking area to the festival must be arranged, food booths, cleanup, equipment, utilities, and entertainment planned.

THE PLANNING has gone on since last November, says Mrs. Gibson Crawford, but the Grape Festival is just beginning to take physical shape on the grounds near the Marin Civic Center Lagoon. As president of the Sunny Hills Guild Governing Council, she is one of 1,500 volunteers, mostly women, who will run the Saturday event. Mrs. Frank Huntington is chairman.

This year the emphasis will be on youth, Mrs. Crawford said. The festival will give the Marin County Youth Award to the youth volunteer of the summer during the afternoon, and the entertainment will come from youth groups.

Young people from Demolay, Rainbow, Job's Daughters Girls Scouts and Boy Scouts, church groups and Marin high schools will help on the grounds.

THE SUNNY Hills Junior Auxiliary women will run the Gameway with appeal to all ages.

The resident youths from the Sunny Hills program itself will sell their ceramics, glasswork, crafts and sculpture in their own booth.

"They will find out what's saleable. It's a form of Vocational training," Mrs. Crawford explained.

Though the emphasis is on youth, the festival-goers are asked to come in turn-of-the century costumes if they wish, in keeping with the old-fashioned country fair idea begun last year.

And there will be apple pie — if you get there early enough.

What's new this year? More macrame items, more hand-churned ice cream and more homemade candies on the Chocolate Mile Row Sweet Shops, new boutique and decorator items, and some semi-antique cars for viewing only.

"Our things are more for the home than articles at the Marin County Fair, for example," Mrs. Crawford said, adding that admission is free, parking plentiful and a shuttle bus to take festival-goers to the scene. Last year some 10,000 persons came to view and buy wares ranging from paper flowers and pinatas to jewelry, toys and food.

Festival hours Oct. 7 are 10 a.m to 5 p.m.

Marin Women

Marny Clifford— Capital Hostess

By PAT BALMES

"In Washington most hostesses have staffs; not many do the cooking themselves like me. I love to cook like some people love to paint," said the author of "Marny Clifford's Washington Cookbook," who has entertained presidents, vice presidents, congressmen, Supreme Court justices and foreign officials.

Mrs. Clark Clifford has been hostessing famous figures since 1945 when her husband was appointed Naval aide to President Harry Truman. Soon afterward he became the first counsel to the President.

Clifford, who left the government in 1950 to form his Washington, D.C. law firm, served as presidential adviser to both Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

In 1960 he handled the governmental transition between the outgoing Republican and incoming Democratic administrations.

Then Clifford returned and became secretary of defense in President Johnson's cabinet in 1968, when Secretary McNamara resigned.

His wife was houseguest at one of Belvedere's handsomest homes when she visited her friend of 20 years, Mrs. Merritt Ruddock. Marny Clilfford i; touring major cities to promote her just-published cookbook or recipes collected from wives of Washington's famous men.

ADMIRING MRS. Ruddock's open kitchen, divided from their smaller dining room by a breakfast bar so both afford a sweeping view across Richardson Bay to Sausalito, she said, "I am always afraid I will miss something in my kitchen. I am at a dead run half-a-city-block because the kitchen is on the far end of the house from my guests. California's exposed kitchens are the answer."

In Bethesda, Md., the Cliffords' rambling white 1700s farmhouse enclosed by trees gives an illusion of isolation, she said. They hosted the farewell luncheon for President Johnson there, inviting 70 of his friends and Cabinet members.

"Since our dining room only seats 20, at large parties we start with a buffet and guests sit anywhere. We have a lot of TV tables stacked on the porch," she said.

In the summer the Cliffords entertain simply on their back lawn by setting up four round tables for 32 to 40 guests.

"Outdoor parties have to be instantly convertible to indoors because of sudden showers. Embassies always have tents set up for this emergency," she said.

HER DINING room table is prepared indoors with an emergency set of her prettiest serving dishes and eating utensils to serve guests indoors if it rains.

"I have everything possible done the day before: flowers, cigarettes in their boxes, place cards and an alternate seating plan in case of cancellation. I cook the day before if possible; many dishes improve in the refrigerator overnight," she said.

She tries to anticipate guests' idiosyncrasies by such thoughtfulness as putting a dish of raw vegetables for dieters amid calorie-laden canapes.

Once she planned a dinner party for opera star Mary Garden who, upon arrival, wanted only her usual dinner: chocolate ice cream and coffee. A servant was dispatched and the party saved.

AS A YOUNG wife in St. Louis Mrs. Clifford, a serious pianist, helped start the opera guild. One of her first parties honored opera star Giovanni Martinelli. At the last minute she learned he didn't like his beer cold and was frantically trying to warm the cans on radiators when an early arrival slipped down a full flight of stairs and her dog was being sick on the living room rug.

WASHINGTON HOSTESS Mrs. Clark Clifford, wife of the secretary of defense in President Johnson's administration, was the houseguest of Mrs. Merritt Ruddock of Belvedere last week while on tour to promote her new "Marny Clifford's Washington Cookbook," containing favorite dishes of Washington's famous persons.

Then she seated Martinelli in a chair which once belonged to Daniel Webster. Its legs collapsed and he was dumped on the floor. But it broke the ice and the party was a success.

She jokes about her "middle-age spreads," dinner parties to which she invites 30 friends to "bring your own" specialty dishes for her buffet table.

The party she remembers as most fun was a "summer" lobster party given in February. She served guests dressed in their summer clothes a hot weather meal from picnic baskets to brighten the bleak winter.

Aboard the Presidential yacht "The Honey Fitz" she supervised its Filippino staff to prepare luncheons for visiting foreign ministers' wives.

One of her parties became famous celebrating eight successive New Year's Days when Republicans were in the White House. Guests sat on the floor to watch a satirical review of the year written, acted and sung by Clark Clifford and the couple's three daughters.

"DEAN ACHESON and Pearl Mesta sat on the floor and Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed had a favorite place under the piano," recalled Mrs. Clifford.

"We never have had to do official entertaining — but I enjoyed it. People from other countries are fun and fascinating. It is sad that Washington is a transient city. You make friends with these embassy people. You come to love them and they are yanked out of Washington," she said.

Her friend Puan (Mrs.) Sri Ong, wife of the Malaysian ambassador organized a cooking course for her friends, and Mrs. Clifford and other Washington hostesses, notebooks in hand, trailed her around the embassy kitchen. Tips she learned on oriental cooking appear in "Marny Clifford's Washington Cookbook."

Many recipes were collected on her foreign travels. Others are family favorites of New England cooking, especially seafood.

When she decided to write her cookbook two years ago she shyly asked her hostesses for recipes of their delicious dishes. They were flattered and almost always happy to share her prized recipes.

HER BOOK includes a beef soup created by Mrs. Hubert Humphrey's father, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's pears in cointreau with frozen cream, Ambassador David Bruce's "Sauce Archiduc," Mrs. Richard Nixon's pumpkin pie, Mrs. Johnson's enchiladas, Mrs. Eisenhower's "Frosted Mint Delight" and Mrs. Truman's "Blarney Stones."

Occasionally a recipe is a secret, but Mrs. Clifford could guess at the ingredients and tested them until consistency and taste were as she remembered.

"Marny Clifford's Washington Cookbook's" red, white and blue dust jacket was designed by former Belvedere resident John Falter.

"The title is presumptious enough without using a presidential eagle, so he drew a funny one," she said.

Upon her return to Washington she plans to take a course in Chinese cooking.

Miss Shattuck Set To Judge Annual I-J Recipe Contest

Home economist Virginia Shattuck is clearing the counters of the kitchen in her San Rafael home, preparing to test the recipes submitted by readers to the Independent-Journal Recipe Contest.

As she has in past years, Miss Shattuck will be the judge of the winning recipes, for which entrants will divide $235 in prize money.

Virginia Shattuck said that she believes the contest is a stimulant to the average cook to use a more creative approach to food preparation. She added that in judging the recipes she looks for originality, taste appeal of the dish, completeness of the recipe, including size of pan and its thickness, and appearance of the finished dish.

Winning recipes will be featured in the I-J annual Holiday Cookbook to be published with the newspaper Nov. 3.

Miss Shattuck, who has been a Marinite since she moved to San Rafael from Everett, Wash., in 1947, was for many years home economist with the North Bay Division of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., presenting programs throughout the North Bay area. She is an authority on cooking schools and a lecturer on foods. Miss Shattuck is also a past president of the Bay District of the California Home Economics Association.

At her home in San Rafael, where she keeps a jump rope handy for home excercise, Miss Shattuck said about today's style of food preparation, "There's not as much individualism in cookery today, food preparation isn't as inspired in the average household, even though there is more talk about gourmet food."

HOME ECONOMIST Virginia Shattuck trims a pie pastry in the kitchen of her San Rafael home. Judge for the Independent-Journal Recipe Contest, she will test possible winning recipes in the kitchen to select the final prize winners.

She agreed that the women's liberation movement has had a good effect on today's cooking, "because it will probably tend to encourage men and children to take a more active role in the family's food preparation."

I-J readers may enter the recipe contest in the categories of meat, appetizers, soups, relishes, desserts, fish and seafoods, cookies, holiday candies, salads, breads, sandwiches, special buffet dishes and punch. Contest deadline is Oct. 9. Entry blanks are available from Marin stores. See advertisement on page 39.

Junior Theater Costume Sale

A Halloween costume sale will be held Tuesday and Wednesday by the Junior Theater of Marin at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Youngsters will have a choice of costumes from the junior theatre summer productions in various sizes and styles.

The sale will be held on the stage of the amphitheater.

Proceeds will go to the Junior Theatre ofarin program.

ON THE AGENDA

Gerners To Be Honored Guests At Novato Creek Park Picnic

Lee Gerner and his wife will be the guests of honor at a picnic at Novato Creek Park, which Gerner designed and landscaped as a volunteer. The event will be held Thursday at noon, by the Novato Federated Women's Club. It will be preceded by a meeting at 10 a.m. in the community room at the Novato Library. Peg Coady will be a guest speaker on the role of citizens in developing the Pioneer Memorial Cemetery.

Mrs. John Kernan is reservations chairman for the picnic, to which guests are invited.

OPPOSING VIEWS on Marin County ballot measure "A", concerning establishment of a regional park district, will be a feature of the business meeting of the Sausalito Woman's Club beginning at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

The board of directors will meet at 11:30 a.m. Both sessions are at the Sausalito clubhouse.

A representative from the organization, "People for Parks and Open Space", will present arguments in support of the ballot measure, and a representative of the organized opposition urging defeat of the measure, will offer rebuttal arguments.

Mrs. Emmet L. Rixford and Mrs. Clyde Trudell are the day's welcoming committee; Mrs. Edmund Jacobson Jr. and Mrs. John L. Weber are tea chairmen, and Mrs. George H. Folsom is flower arrangement chairman. Mrs. Frank Pasquinucci and Mrs. William V. Lynch, will pour tea.

THE MILL Valley Community Church Club has asked the Tamalpais Quartet to perform at the noon luncheon Wednesday in the parish hall.

Musicians in the quartet, all members of the Marin Youth Orchestra, are Dan Smiley, violinist; Mary Helen Weinstein, violinist; Steve Levintow, viola, and Jed Barahal, cello. For the Triple C club they will play selections by Mozart and Schubert.

Mrs. James Cruickshank is program chairman, and Mmes. W. F. Gordon and M. L. Welsch are reservations chairmen.

THE CIVICS and Conservation Section of the Outdoor Art Club will visit the nature education facilities which have been developed adjacent to Audubon Canyon Ranch in Bolinas.

The art show will open at 7 p.m. and the art auction will begin at 9 p.m.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'Don't Call Me Archie' Gives Us Another Chance; We Flunk

MRS. BOTTEL:

Several years ago you infuriated a number of us Concerned Americans by your silly disbelief in our statement that the peace symbol was not only anti-Christ (the broken cross signifying allegiance to Satan) but was also a communistic sign! You stupid "liberals" can't see the writing on the wall!

But I am giving you another chance. Enclosed is a mimeographed sheet, restating the truth about the peace symbol — that it is the "witches foot," a broken cross, turned upside down, promoted by those opposed to Christianity.

And — here is the clincher: this announcement, which has appeared in numerous publications, says, "One of the nation's most sophisticated magazines, "The New Yorker," said in a recent article that the so-called peace symbol was adopted by various youth organizations on direct orders from the Communist Party." It is part of their long-range propaganda campaign to attract youth into subversive communist-directed programs ... to encourage them to express contempt for adults, for authority and for the ideals of patriotic Americans.

Now, Mrs. Bottel, can you argue with an ultra-liberal magazine such as THE NEW YORKER ? — DON'T CALL ME "ARCHIE" UNLESS YOU MEANT IT AS A COMPLIMENT

READERS ALL, INCLUDING "DON'T CALL ME ARCHIE":

The "battle of the peace symbol" is so old and bewhiskered that it rates no further comment ... well perhaps a small aside: Several sources, including the Encyclopaedia Britannica, link the symbol to the semaphore signs for N and D and say it rose to prominence as a peace emblem during the 1958 nuclear disarmament demonstrations in England.

I'm printing 'DCMA's" letter, however, for two reasons: 1. To set the record straight, re "The New Yorker;" and 2. To demonstrate how far a phony claim travels simply because so many people believe what they read without checking!

But not this skeptical columnist! I sent the mimeographed sheet with the alleged "New Yorker" quote to the magazine's editor, and back came his letter which said in part:

"We did not publish any article on the peace symbol, nor did we — in any connection — make any of the statements in question." He traces the first erroneous report to an editorial in a southern religious journal. "On June 3, 1970," he continued, "we wrote the editor of this publication, asking him to let us know on what page and in which issue of "The New Yorker" these statements are supposed to have appeared. We have had no reply."

Yet soon afterwards, the false editorial was picked up and run in a veterans' magazine — and it's been circulating ever since!

Wouldn't it be absolutely spiffy if good rumors lasted that long? — H.

NOTE TO "DON'T CALL ME ARCHIE": Sorry I flunked my second chance with you. Can't promise I'll do better next time, but keep reading: I'm good for your adrenalin. — H.

Newlyweds On Trip To Rocky Mountains

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Crespi are on a wedding trip to San Diego and the Rocky Mountains following their marriage Sept. 23 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael.

The former Allison Frasier of San Rafael chose here sisters Bettina Frasier of San Rafael as maid of honor and Mrs. Edward Labasan of Petaluma as her bridesmaid at the wedding.

Dennis Rocha of San Rafael was the best man, and the ushers were Daniel Tobin of Stockton and Pat LaRocca of Daly City.

The couple will live in San Rafael when they return from their wedding trip.

Allison is a graduate of San Rafael High School. Mrs. Victoria Bettini of San Rafael is her local grandparent.

Stephen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Crespi of San Francisco and the brother of John Crespi of New York.

Stephen is a graduate of Wyandotte High School in Kansas City, Kan., and attends Skyline College in San Bruno. He is employed with the Bechtel Corp. in San Francisco. Mrs. Paula Crespi of San Francisco is his grandmother.

Joelle Allen Marries Thomas Edward Harris

Joelle Allen became the bride of Thomas Edward Harris of Mill Valley Saturday in a ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Allen, in Stinson Beach. A reception followed at the Allen home.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. Leon Edward Harris of Mill Valley and the late Deborah Dame Harris.

Joan Susanna Allen was her sister's maid of honor, and Lorrel Ann Crebassa was the bridesmaid.

Jerry Kerson was best man, and the bride's brother Peter Bishop Allen and the bridegroom's brother, David Leon Harris, ushered.

Joelle is a graduate of the Katharine Branson School. She attended California College of Arts and Crafts and is a student at College of Marin. She is also the sister of H. Wheatley Allen. Mmes. Frank Howard Allen of Greenbrae and Edward Wheatley Bullard of Kentfield are her grandmothers.

Thomas was graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended College of Marin. He is employed by John Tate, Inc., in San Rafael. Diane Marie Harris is his sister.

Drawing Class Slated For Center

A class in basic drawing will be held Tuesdays for six weeks starting Oct. 10 at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Richard Vance will instruct from 1 to 4 p.m. at the studio.

Registration is made through the center office.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

Save On Cost Of Moving By Doing It Yourself

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Do you want to save on moving costs? There's a sure way to do it. Rent a van and do your own moving.

You will save 50 per cent and sometimes more over what you would have to pay a commercial mover to do the job.

Of course you would have to do your own packing and loading. That takes time and effort. But more and more people are making that effort.

Rental vans are also popular with college students in the spring and fall as they move books and bikes, stereos and camping equipment from home to campus and back again.

There is room for three to ride in the cab. They often team up for the move and take a car in tow.

"It shows the independence of young women today," said one van rental executive.

Many retirees moving to another state are do-it-yourself movers. The saving is substantial. The cost of renting an 18-foot van from Washington, D.C., to Florida would normally come to about $200. If the move were made by a commercial mover, it would probably cost between $1,500 to $1,600.

This is the dollars-and-sense way of looking at it. There are other considerations of course. One family may prefer to hire someone to do the moving and consider it worth the money. Another family may need to save the money. It depends on the circumstances.

However, there is a lot to be said for do-it-yourself moving these days, apart from the money involved.

Commercial movers, unfortunately, are not always able to pick up your household goods on the promised day, and the arrival of the load at your new address is even more uncertain.

THERE MAY BE logical reasons for these delays. Even so, there you are with no furniture. You may go to a motel, or roll out a sleeping bag in your empty house.

Consumer complaints of poor service, damaged goods, and delays still come pouring into Congressional offices, the White House and to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Steps have been taken to tighten regulations governing this aspect of interstate commerce, but problems persist.

Rental companies stress the fact that when you rent a van and drive it yourself, you are the boss. You move out on your own time schedule and move in when you arrive, as your household goods will be right there with you.

Again, it should be stressed that it's not quite that simple or easy. Packing is hard work. But, like all do-it-yourself projects, there are directions "in the package."

Hertz, for instance, has a 29-page "Moving Guide" that does everything but take you by the hand. Cartons, wardrobe boxes, and other necessary equipment for packing your goods will be supplied by the rental company — not free, but the cost is minimal.

MANY TRUCKS have a ramp for easy loading and hydraulic lifts for heavy appliances like refrigerators.

When you call the truck rental company, tell them the number of rooms you have, whether this includes the recreation room, or furniture which may be stored at another address.

With this information, and your destination, the company will be able to give you an estimate of the rental cost, based on mileage and the estimated number of days on the road. You buy your own gasoline.

You will pay a deposit of $40 or $50, which will be refunded when you reach your destination. You may charge the cost of the move on any of the major charge cards. If you pay that way, no deposit is required.

The empty van is turned in to a company representative at the end of your journey.

Most insurance companies covering rental vans require that the one renting the van be over 21 years of age. But that need not deter you, if you bring an adult with you to sign the contract. In case of damage to the van, the one who signed the rental agreement is responsible, of course.

Anyone with a valid driver's license may drive the van. Most vans are easy to drive and have automatic transmissions. One thing to keep in mind is the overhead clearance. Going through an underpass when you can't quite clear it tears off the top of the van.

The one who rents the van is responsible for damage in cases like this. Also for scratches and any other damage from low-hanging tree branches, another unexpected hazard.

ONE MOTEL chain has recently raised the clearance height of its portico to allow for incoming cans. And Hertz is coming out with a longer, lower van.

Van companies caution new drivers to watch the gasoline gauge when on the turnpikes. Be sure to have enough gas to make it from one exit to the next. Trucks get eight to 10 miles to the gallon, compared with the 15 or more for most passenger cars.

U-Haul, with one of the busiest cross-country rental services, has a hot line to Phoenix, Ariz., if you run into any trouble en route. The number is on a sticker in the back of the truck. The toll call is free. There is 24-hour service at the end of the line.

Ryder was one of the first nationwide truck rental companies to offer one-way rental service to do-it-yourself movers in 1968. It also has representatives located strategically across the country.

Marin Couple Wed In Church

Marriage vows were exchanged by Priske Schafer and Peter John Kelly at a noon ceremony Saturday at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley.

The wedding reception was given at Fort Mason in San Francisco.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Schafer of Mill Valley, and the granddaughter of Mrs. John Henry Bogan of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom is the sn of Mrs. Frank Kelly of Tiburon.

Mrs. Michael Cleland of San Rafael was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Peter Schafer of Mill Valley, the bride's sister-in-law, and Karen, Kathy and Patti Kelly of Tiburon, the bridegroom's sisters.

Kevin Kelly of Berkeley, the bridegroom's brother, was the best man. Assisting wedding guests to their places were Gary Sprattling of San Francisco, William Wallace of Stockton, Thomas Brandi of San Francisco and Patrick Schafer of Mill Valley, the bride's brother.

The bride was graduated from Tamalpais High School, attended the College of Marin, and was graduated from Sonoma State College. She is employed at the Solano County Mental Health Department in Fairfield. She is also the sister of Mrs. Paula Bell of Oakland, Philip Schafer of Crescent City and the late Peter Schafer.

The bridegroom is a graduate of St. Ignatius High School in San Francisco, and of the University of San Francisco, where he also received the doctor of jurisprudence degree. He is an attorney with the San Joaquin County Public Defender's office in Stockton.

The couple will live in Stockton.

ANAIS NIN'S STRUGGLE

Author Tells Of An 'Inner Voyage'

By BARBARA HOSMER

Quickly creating a personal realm of the vast Redwood High School Gym, author Anais Nin spoke about the "inner voyage" she has taken to unite her feelings with those of others.

"Culture has put such a taboo on intorspection," but it is vital to the self, she told the student and adult audience seated on chairs, bleachers and floor at the Friday night program sponsored by Women on the Move and College of Marin.

Referring to the now famous "Dairies" which she has been writing since the age of 9, Miss Nin explained, "In the Diaries I was able to go deeply enough into my personal life to reach other people. I found that it was not just my diary, but other women's as well."

Miss Nin said that now she felt as if she had reached her peak as a writer, but "not without a struggle." She spoke about factors in that struggle, much of which she recorded and reacted to in her Diaries, which she continues to write in her Southern California and New York homes.

THE FRENCH-born author said that in the times when she grew up, "women were told they should be the helpmate in everything" and not to develop individuality. "I was told that it was more important to be the wife of a novelist than to be a novelist. And I was a very good assistant to artists," said Miss Nin, who was a close friend of Henry Miller, Lawrence Durrell and other now famous, both in Paris and New York.

"And I noticed that women who were artists stopped partway through." She said she and they were playing the part of "the muses" rather than being creative themselves.

"I knew as a child that I had to model myself not on books written by men but by women," she said, adding that she had always been fascinated by women such as Joan of Arc.

But, she said, the liberation of women must be a mutual liberation, not in an isolated chamber. "I had to learn psychology from men — the soul, philosophy were invented by men — we have little to follow in images of creative women.

"All these are the handicaps, dependencies, that women have had. . . " Women weren't allowed to study psychology and other things until recent times, she said.

BECAUSE WOMAN'S world was structured to the house and family, her world became more personal. She developed a sensitivity to the personal relationship, Miss Nin said.

Yet society said that hers was a minor world, a minor theme. "We have to struggle against that," the author said.

"It was a period of alienation which we still have in which it was easier to express hostility, hate and violence. We need women's personal qualities."

Of her writings, Miss Nin said, "I didn't pursue the ugly, the mean — it is a chore for me to write about these things. I put my faith in individual growth instead."

Dr. Otto Rank, with whom she was in analysis and with whom she later studied in New York, believed that a person has two births. "The second is that we ourselves create ourselves," she said.

"THE WAY I resolved my conflicts was to take them all in, say 'yes' to all and integrate them — as artist, writer, woman. Many things helped me to make the inner voyage. The loss of one parent and change of country made me realize that roots have to be within the self, not in family or country. The center of being had to be within oneself."

She said a person has need of a "spirit house" within to withstand the pressures of outside. But reality and the inner self must be integrated, not isolated, she said.

Miss Nin said men have rationalized away the feminine part of their nature, adding that they have disguised their reactions of sensitivity and emotion in favor of objectivity.

"Those are masks that men had to wear in the world. Women have remained a little less masked and are called more irrational, emotional. Yet scientists are beginning to realize that intution guided discoveries — intuition guided Einstein.

"WHAT WE seek now is a balance between male and female principales. We need each other."

Miss Nin said that war, religion and race have been used to separate people. Qualities more highly developed in women can help "fuse things," she said. She recounted the story of a debate by the French Academy when it was considering Colette for membership. "After all, they said, she had written about very trival things — love."

"The whole process of creative life is one of fusion," and that the inner life must be fused with reality, Miss Nin said. She added that her road has been through psychology, and that at this point women could find value in a woman analyst.

To women's need for liberation she gave an unqualified "Yes," adding that it always takes both the noisy and the more reflective types to make a revolution. "I am one of the reflective ones."

To grow you must first look at the things that are preventing your growth, she said, and it is a continuing process.

HAMILTON AFFAIR

Mrs. Hap Arnold Honored In Luncheon

By KAREN PETERSON

Mrs. Henry (Hap) Arnold of Sonoma, wife of the former Air Force general, was honored guest at a luncheon Thursday commemorating the 25th anniversary of the Air Force. The luncheon and program was presented by the Officers' Wives Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

"It's like coming home," said the petite, white-haired Mrs. Arnold. "I've been in the Air Force for nearly 40 years and it's glorious. The old spirit still goes on."

Mrs. Arnold, who is in her 80s, watched as the September "Air Force Now" movies series celebrated the history of the Air Force. The Pentagon requested that Mrs. Arnold be present to see the movie, which spotlighted an interview with her husband.

Hap Arnold, who learned to fly with the Wright Brothers, was one of the pioneers of the flying corps. He was chief of the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1938, commanding general of the Army Air Force in 1943, five-star general of the Army in 1944 and, by an act of congress — the first and only such commission grant in the Air Force — named General of the Air Force in 1949.

After retiring, Mrs. Arnold and her husband moved to Sonoma, where he was a cattle rancher and served on the board of directors of National Geographic magazine.

"We had a full life," Mrs. Arnold said. "Life is so full that you don't realize that it is passing so quickly."

They were married in 1912 and, due to a rule that said pilots must be single, he gave up flying . . . reluctantly, she added. They moved to Panama where Mrs. Arnold saw the first tug go through the canal in 1913. Later, her husband became commanding officer of the 7th Aero Squadron in Panama.

"Hap already knew how to fly when we met so I didn't go through the agony of watching him learn. We were like pioneers," she said. "There was a strong feeling of togetherness among the fliers. Wherever we went we knew everyone because there were so few fliers then. There was a strong bond between the women as well as the men."

"Hap loved the air. He loved everything about it. And he was so close to his fliers. He mourned for every boy that had been lost."

The Arnolds lived in the Philippines and Panama. Between 1919 and 1922 he was the air service officer in San Francisco. Mrs. Arnold remembers her stay at the Presidio and the anticipation she felt when the men had to land on the unlighted field. "I'd stand at the fence rail and watch when the plane couldn't land. It'd turn around and I wouldn't know if I'd see it again. That's what brought all the women so close."

There was strong competition between the branches of the armed services then. It was not until after World War II, she said, that the public began to appreciate the fliers. "There was a great difference between the two wars. In the first, fliers were freaks. In the second, the fliers were more popular; people were on our side."

Mrs. Arnold has three sons, all of whom were West Pointers. Two were in the Air Force, and was in field Artillery. Two are now retired.

The program included a short speech by Mrs. Arnold, the movie and a skit by Del Stewart of Mill Valley who, as "Jane West," did a nostalgic dialogue of one of Mrs. Arnold's favorite stars of the 1930s, Mae West.

PARIS SPREE

Making The Most Of Awesome Task

NEW YORK (UPI)—On the theory that many women want to boast a Paris wardrobe, two young New York matrons are taking on what sounds like an awesome task—steering 150 women on a shopping spree in the French capital.

But the prospect excites rather than scares the two who dreamed up the idea in the first place.

"We just wonder sometimes why someone else hadn't already thought of it," said Sheila Tronn Cooper. "Paris is still the name in fashion and most women want to be able to say, 'Well, I buy all my clothes in France.'"

Mrs. Cooper and her partner, Penny Morell Hochman, plus their 150 shoppers will depart New York on Sunday and return five days later.

The women will see, try on and buy clothes at informal fashion shows each morning at one central point—a hotel near many of the high fashion houses. Their afternoons and evenings are their own to sightsee, shop more or whatever.

Cost of the trip itself, $350, covers transportation, hotel and morning meals. Each shopper pledges to purchase at least $200 in clothes and accessories through the women during the trip. (Cash or travelers' checks, no credit extended).

All the clothes are the ready-to-wear, assembled from various French manufacturers and boutique collections. Included are dresses, coats, costumes, sportswear like sweaters and pants, and accessories.

No outfit will cost above $100 but the two women figure that if a woman is going to Paris to shop, she undoubtedly will go well above the pledged $200 total purchase requirement.

The two said that the women will be getting bargains.

They've arranged on two previous scouting trips for the manufacturers to give discounts of 30 per cent from regular retail prices there, which they called far lower than if the clothes were imported by U.S. stores.

The Cooper-Hochman profit comes in tha difference from wholesale to markup.

The women call their service "Nothing to Wear, Ltd.", gleaned naturally from every woman's complaint at one time or another when she looks in the closet and comes away muttering about its doleful contents.

European Unity Suffers As Norway Rejects Market

By TAKASHI OKA
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

PARIS — "Somehow Europe seems smaller again," a dispirited advocate of European unity said on hearing of the Norwegian people's decisive rejection of membership in the European Community.

It was not so much physical space he had in mind, this observer explained, although of course Norway's island-studded coastline from north to south is as long as the distance from Oslo to Rome.

It was rather the setback, even if temporary, to the concept of enlargement that has lifted European hearts since Britain, Ireland, Norway, and Denmark applied for membership in what has been a tight little community of six compactly grouped nations — France, West Germany, Italy, and the Benelux countries.

After the long, cold winter of the De Gaulle years, Europe seemed on the move once more — more spacious both in territory and in ideas, preparing to look out on the world instead of turning inward upon itself.

The Norwegian voters' 53.9 per cent majority against membership in the recent referendum will not of itself change the community's thrust toward enlargement.

But the British are disappointed that their close ally will not be joining them in the community. Even more disappointed are officials of smaller countries like Belgian, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg. A Belgian diplomat in Oslo remarked, "With their no, our hope of enlarging the camp of small nations confronting the larger ones has vanished."

Vincilione Property On Agenda

The Larkspur City Council will discuss how to enforce a temporary restraining order on the controversial Vincilione property at its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

(Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire on Sept. 14 turned down a bid by the Tiscornia Estate, run by the Vincilliones, to force the city to give them a grading permit for the top of Little King Mountain.)

Councilmen are also scheduled to discuss a grading plan and bicycle path for the property, and continue a public hearing on rezoning a strip of land fronting on Magnolia Avenue and facing the Vincilione's flatland site from R-3 to S-study district.

Other items before the council include a petition from the Larkspur Town Meeting asking that San Quentin Peninsula rezoning be held up until general plan studies are completed, and the resignation of Arthur M. Sestak from the Architectural Review Committee.

Food For Thought

MANILA (UPI)—Governmental family planners are looking into "sili" (hot pepper) and "gata" (coconut milk) as possible stimuli for the unusually high birth rate in the Bicol region of southeastern Philippines. These two food ingredients are the favorites of Bicolanos whose birth rate has increased 4.03 per cent this year.

Sonoma Dancers Won Acclaim, Suffered Misgivings On Trip

By BONNIE BARD

The Sonoma State College Dance Workshop won acclaim from audiences and critics in Yugoslavia this summer, but only after a trip filled with misadventure that left the dancers wondering if they'd ever get there at all.

The 22 dancers, led by director Sandra Dunwoody, were the first non-professionals invited to perform at the internationally prestigious Ballet Biennial in Ljubljana.

Others on the festival program included the New York City Ballet, Bolshoi Ballet and London Royal Ballet.

"The whole trip was really incredible," said Nancy Lyons, assistant director. "It was really a great learning experience and some of the bad things . . . well, we can laugh at them now."

The first major problem arose even before the troupe got out of the U.S. The group had flown from Oakland to Chicago to get a connecting flight to Frankfurt, Germany.

"First, one flight was canceled and then they had a bomb scare on the second flight," said Dr. William O. Cord, tour coordinator. Federal air marshall had to search all luggage and the dancers spent hours opening personal luggage as well as containers for costumes and their unusual props.

Karla Populus of Cotati blithely opened a box for inspection that contained 40 cans of "Silly string," an aerosol spray toy used in one of the dance numbers.

"This stern-looking woman marshal didn't know what Silly String was and suspiciously asked questions," Mrs. Dunwoody said. "As Karla attached a nozzle to one can, the pressure caused the string to fly all over the Marshal. You wouldn't have believed the look on her face."

As others in the group doubled over in laughter, Miss Populus calmly asked the stricken woman if she wanted to see what was in the other 39 cans.

But after nearly a four-hour delay, the group was finally on its way.

After a few days in Munich, the troupe had reservations on a train for Yugoslavia. "I went a day ahead of time to the train station to make sure our reservations were still okay and was assured everything would be fine," Cord said.

"Well, the next day we went to get on the train and it was just packed," he said. "I mean people were literally hanging out the windows."

The reservations clerk had failed to mention it was a national holiday and the many Yugoslavians who work in Germany would be going home for a short vacation.

"That train ride was unbelievable," Cord said. Robin Jackson of Mill Valley, technical director, said he spent the entire trip standing in the open door to the men's room.

"We shouted back and forth at each other and passed the word that when Dr. Cord yells 'jump' we were all to get off the train," Mrs. Dunwoody said. "So, when he yelled 'jump,' off we went — luggage and everybody going out the windows."

As the jammed train pulled out of the station the Americans didn't even know what country they were in or when another train might come along.

"There we were, sitting on our suitcases in a drizzling rain," Cord said. "I was afraid the whole trip might end there." Undaunted, though, the group broke out cheese and wine and had a picnic.

Fortunately, another train came along in an hour, the group boarded and happily discovered later it was bound for Yugoslavia.

The group played its first performance in Celje before going on to the festival and were greeted with large posters all over town advertising their appearance.

"We were a little concerned to see the word 'nave' scrawled across every poster and wondered if it meant 'Yankee go home' or what," Cord said. "Later, we found it simply meant 'tonight,' and we breathed a little easier."

The Celje theatre was an ancient structure like other buildings in the city founded centuries ago by the Romans.

"We were dancing there and a whole piece of floorboard fell loose," according to Melinda Chenoweth of Laguna Beach. "If we hadn't covered the stage with a carpet we would have fallen straight through the trap door."

"It was really fun trying to tell the stagehands that we needed the floor fixed," Mrs. Lyons said. "Not only couldn't they understand our language, but they had been nipping on a bottle backstage."

"We had a terrible thing happen during the performance at Ljubljana, too," Mrs. Dunwoody said. A parachute used as a prop by another dance group was suspended above the stage, but thin wires had fallen loose and nearly strangled the dancers.

"The wire was nearly invisible and I looked around and saw David (Stone) really beetred in the face," Mrs. Dunwoody said. "Luckily the theater had a blackout and we could get unraveled and the audience didn't notice a thing."

In rehearsals at the college, the group decided it would be proper to have the short dialogue portion of the program given in Slovenian, and Miss Populus spent two months learning the speech to make certain the dialect would be correct.

"When we got there, Karla asked our interpreter if he would listen to her speech to make sure it was right," Mrs. Lyons said.

"She almost fell over when he complimented her on her perfect Russian. The Yugoslavians would have been very offended by Russian; so Karla worked night and day for two days to do the speech in Slovenian. She deserves a super medal for it. The people were really touched."

The dancers played to packed houses in the 550-seat auditorium while the renowned Bucharest Ballet drew only a half-audience.

"The people were really amazed by our dancing," Mrs. Dunwoody said. "They had expected rock and roll. They think everything American is rock and roll."

Mrs. Lyons said audiences were surprised that the dancers actually had fun performing and included pantomime and light numbers in their program.

"They were impressed with the spirit we put into our dances," she said. "We're not great technically, but because we're young we put ourselves into it."

MUSIC REVIEW

Mrs. Palmer Debuts As Conductor, Pianist

By WILLIAM CLARK

Melba Potter Palmer, until now known in Marin as an organist only, last night made her debut as a pianist and conductor as well in a tour de force performance at a "Sunday Evening Musicale" at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Opening the concert as a pianist, Mrs. Palmer chose one of the most formidable works of the Romantic repertory, the Prelude, Chorale and Fugue of Cesar Franck. Through careful control of dynamics and attention to nuance of detail, she avoided anticlimaxes in this lengthy piece and achieved moments of mystical grandeur. Her musicianly grasp of the large structure and her technical proficiency mark her as a pianist of no mean accomplishment.

A delightfully innocent and whimsical quartet for flutes by Pierre Max Dubois was played with remarkable polish by Lynn Becker, Nancy Hall, Louise Horen, and Mary Setrakian. Under Mrs. Palmer's direction, these young people performed with professional ease and certainty. They were joined by Sandy Ongaro, Melody Palmer and Elizabeth Willis in "Sursum Corda" by Max Rairigh and Ravel's "Pavane."

The major work of the evening, "L'Ascension," a suite for organ by Olivier Messiaen, was deeply religious composition, inspired by Biblical and liturgical quotations and speaking of contemporary frustrations, dilemmas and ambivalences which faith must transcend. Mrs. Palmer's reading of the score was masterly, an impeccable performance which penetrated directly to the heart of the matter.

With Jean Langlais's "Hymn of Thanksgiving" we were into a world beloved of organists, a world of thunderous chords, sharp contrasts, constantly changing registrations, and triumphant conclusions. Mrs. Palmer tossed it off like child's play as her final offering.

ART REVIEW

Mill Valley's Art Festival Deserves Much Applause

By ADA GARFINKEL

There was much to applaud about the Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival this year, staged in the round at Boyle Park on Saturday and Sunday.

A circular information booth acted as the hub — as well as a lost-child and first-aid depot and meeting place — with exhibit areas spoking out in "streets" from A through L. This not only utilized every inch of the small park, but made it easy to locate various exhibitors from the printed program.

Added to this was the splendid weather Saturday and the high caliber of work due to diligent prescreening. Visitors were attentive, amused, and interested enough to make purchases.

Festival officials estimated that 3,000 to 4,000 persons attended the show each of the two days.

Among the more spectacular work was that of Paul Greenwald of San Rafael, whose visionary hierarchy of papier-mache sculptures of Cloud People included real ferns in the king's crown, and other plants and candles resting on the outstretched palms of the queen, and other members of the royal court.

Also strictly for fun were "Finster the Dragon," "Plenty of Horn" and a hilarious "Retired Supeman Suit for Back-Packers," all of sheetmetal, by Jeff Thomas. Recycling old hubcaps and tin cans with an acetylene torch, Loren Stolley creates wall plaques, flowers, fronds, and vases, chandeliers, and murals. And the resurgence of stained-glass art in the Tiffany technique as practiced by Richard Darden and Arthur Hoffman, produced some very worthwhile pieces.

In between clusters of children walking on stilts, crowds of spectators munching on ethnic and other foods, a button-vendor with his wares suspended from his neck while playing a recorder, other noteworthy displays emerged. One of them was Richard Koobation's handsome saltware functional pottery with porcelain applique design, the sand-paintings of Jan Peterson, the stitchery paintings of Mary Lou Goertzen, Brent Bushnell's tightly constructed prints, and Bob Boreman's handsome serigraphs.

The Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival Purchase Award was made to Susan Boulet of Berkeley for "Puppeteer," an oil pastel in a circular format, inspired by medieval legends from childhood memories.

A special Florence Packard Memorial Award was made in pottery and was given to Waltraud Weber of Berkeley, for a 15-inch stoneware vase in brown, buff, and soft gray.

An award by the Mill Valley Art Commission for overall excellence by an individual artist was granted to Gene Flores of Santa Cruz for his kinetic sculptures of cor-ten steel. One of them — "Horned Beast" — is to be on display at the Mill Valley City Hall for the month of October. Honorable mentions in this category were awarded to Sandra Schindler of Mill Valley for her exhibit of autobiographical mixed media paintings, and to Mort Kohn, Ross, for his lusciously colored abstract watercolors.

Candidates Debate

A debate between Michael R. Peevey and Gary T. Giacomini, candidates for Marin County supervisor in the fourth district, will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at Stinson Beach Community Center. The meeting will be sponsored by the Stinson Beach Progressive Club.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Question: Do you ever discover any strange coincidences about birthdays? C.K.

Dear K: I certainly do. Oct. 2 is a good day to answer your query, because it produced one of the oddest coincidences in history. During World War I, two soldiers took charge of vast armies fighting each other, Gen. Ferdinand Foch on the side of France and Gen. Paul von Hindenburg for Germany. Both rose to the rank of field marshal. Each became his counrty's supreme commander. Both were born the same day — Foch on Oct. 2, 1851, and Von Hindenburg, Oct. 2, 1847.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

1. GROUCHO MARX, 82 today, had been ordering "Duck Soup" and "Animal Crackers" from bewildered nurses at Century City Hospital, Los Angeles, after landing there in mid-September. Recovery was assured, since Groucho quipped, "This place is like a rerun of my old TV show, but the doctors won't gamble." He was referring, of course, to: (A) "Let's Make a Deal"; (B) "The Price is Right"; or (C) "You Bet Your Life."

2. WILLIAM (BUD) ABBOTT, who zoomed to comedy stardom with Lou Costello, was born 74 years ago today. Tax troubles in the late 1950s cost him his ranch property, home and life savings. But nobody could take away those memories of his halcyon radio days, when he and Costello starred on the: (A) Kate Smith Show; (B) Major Bowes Amateur Hour; or (C) Kraft Music Hall.

3. GRAHAM GREENE, English author, is 68 today. He is so talented that two universities awarded him honorary degrees. One of his most famous novels was made in the movie: (A) Goodbye, Mr. Chips; (B) The Third Man; or (C) Arsenic and Old Lace.

ANSWERS

1. C (You Bet Your Life); 2. A (Kate Smith Show); 3. B (The Third Man).

David Anderson
Mrs. Marilyn Dineen
Shirley JoAnn Giorgi

(Send local birthdays to Birthday Editor, Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Calif. 94902, at least four days before the date of the birthday. Include name to be published and telephone number of sender; print legibly.)

Best Hand In 10 Years, But South Takes A Licking Anyway

"What ghastly luck!" South exploded after playing today's hand. "This is the best hand I've held in 10 years, and here I am taking a licking on it." West had no complaints about his luck: In fact, he knew that luck had nothing at all to do with South's failure to make the grand slam.

Opening lead — ♠ K

SMALL TRUMP

South won the first trick with the ace of spades and led a small trump to dummy's queen. East discarded a spade, and the sad news was out. Declarer had to lose a trump trick.

As North later pointed out (partners always point these things out), the grand slam was unbeatable if South played the hand properly. The important point was to win the first trump trick in the hand that had two top cards instead of in the hand that had only one top card. In other words, South should have won the first round of trumps with the ace or king.

NO PROBLEM

There would be no problem if both opponents followed suit on the first round of trumps. Declarer could continue with a trump to dummy's queen and another trump to his remaining top card, if necessary, to draw the missing trumps.

If one opponent has all four trumps, South discovers the bad news when the other opponent fails to follow suit. If East shows out, as in the actual hand, South can lead a low trump from his hand to take a finesse with dummy's nine. Then he draws a third trump with dummy's queen and returns to his hand to draw the last missing trump.

If West shows out on the first round of trumps, South next leads a low trump to dummy's queen and then returns dummy's nine of trumps to finesse through East.

RETAIN POSITION

The point of winning the first trick in the double honor hand is to retain a finessing position against either opponent if you get bad news on the first round.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two hearts, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K Q 10 6
♥ - J 8 5 4
♦ - 8 3
♣ - 9 7 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two no trump, the negative response. Show your weakness first and raise the hearts later. A positive response usually leads to a slam auction, and you cannot afford to give partner that much encouragement with so little strength of your own.

MIDDAY CRASH DRAWS THRONG

Spectators watch as a wrecker operator drags the remains of a convertible from the drainage ditch on Freitas Parkway near Las Gallicas Avenue. Driver John Michael McNamara, 16 and passenger George Denison McNamara, both of 2200 Lucas Valley Road, Lucas Valley, were treated for minor injuries at the Kaiser Hospital in Terra Linda and released. San Rafael police said McNamara told them he was eastbound on the parkway at 12:30 p.m. yesterday at about 60 miles an hour, when he braked for a curve. He said the brakes did not hold; the car plunged into the deep ditch, ran up the other side and fell back onto its top. (Independent-Journal photo)

Petaluma Plans To Be Reviewed

Plans to widen East Washington Street will be reviewed at the Petaluma City Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at city hall.

Plans include widening the street to four lanes from Lakeville Street to Highway 101.

The council will also consider the recommendation from the recreation, music and parks commission that the city develop Lucchesi Park before diverting funds to the county-owned, Shollenberger River Park.

Novatan, 19, Dies As Auto Crashes

The California Highway Patrol reported that the body of the youth, Thomas Richard Sanchez, of 16 Clemente Court, had to be pried from behind the steering wheel of his wrecked car.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Novato General Hospital at 1:20 a.m.

According to the patrol, he was driving west on Novato Boulevard at about 12:15 a.m. when he failed to negotiate a curve in the road. His car crossed the westbound lanes, ran into a tree and came to rest on a slight embankment near 3600 Novato Boulevard.

A passenger in his car, Pamela Lee Turner, 20, of 300 Sunset Parkway, Novato, was reported in fair condition with scalp wounds and multiple cuts and bruises at Novato General Hospital.

After the crash, according to the patrol, Miss Turner said she didn't know who was driving or that an accident had even occurred.

Sanchez was a native of San Francisco and a resident of Marin County for about five years.

He was unemployed.

Sanchez was the 28th traffic fatality recorded in Marin County this year, compared with 25 by this date last year.

He is survived by his mother and father, Jeanette and John Sanchez; his sister Lynn, all of Novato; his brother John of an Francisco and his two grandmothers.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. A Rosary service will be held at Keaton's Chapel of Marin at 8 p.m. today.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Tower Leveled By Explosions

CEDARTOWN, Ga. (UPI)— The FBI has joined the investigation of two pre-dawn dynamite explosions that leveled the transmitting tower of Radio Station WGAA Sunday.

"It definitely was dynamite," a Polk County deputy sheriff said. "It rocked the whole town. We got a lot of calls— people thought it was a sonic boom or something. We were real lucky—it happened when no one was at the station."

There were no reports of injuries but the WGAA building was damaged, as were some of the homes situated about 150 yards away.

Larkspur Man Burned As Auto Explodes

A Larkspur man was badly burned Saturday when the car he was tinkering with exploded, enveloping his body in flames.

David Lyle Boese, 24, of 328 Williams Avenue, was reported in good condition this morning at Marin General Hospital where he is recovering from second and third degree burns.

Diane Pope, of the same address, told police he was working in the garage about noon Saturday when she heard an explosion and saw him running across the lawn enveloped in flames.

She said she helped him muffle the flames, then rushed him to the hospital while a passerby called the fire department.

Boese told her he saw gas leaking from his car but before he could wipe it up, it ignited from a water heater's pilot light.

Damage to the two-bedroom house owned by Sally Crabtree of 2396 Las Gallinas, San Rafael, was estimated by fire officials at $7,500 to the building and $5,000 to its contents. Boese's foreign car was gutted.

School Board Will Study Student Right

Board policies on student rights and on the use of athletic fields will be considered by Fairfax School District trustees at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow at White Hill School.

Also on the agenda are heating and theft problems at Deer Park School, the sale of excess property at White Hill School and whether to take a position on Proposition 14 on the November ballot, the Watson initiative to limit property taxes.

New Subdivision Before Board

Revised plans for the controversial Martinelli Farms subdivision north of Point Reyes Station will be considered Tuesday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The board, scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. at the Marin Civic Center, was to have considered the new plans last month but agreed to delay the matter at the request of the developer, Lawrence J. Walters of Inverness.

(Walters made the request and was first turned down but the board reconsidered after it became bogged down in proposed rezonings in the Tamalpais Valley area.)

Walters, whose revised plans show 68 residential lots on the 260-acre parcel owned by Elmer Martinelli was turned down by the board earlier this year when he proposed 51 ranchettes of two to five acres each.

The board, in rejecting his plan, suggested he revise it showing more open space.

He did, but the county planning commission rejected the plan and recommended even more land be designated as open space. The matter is scheduled to come before the board at 3 p.m.

The Marin County Supervisors' agenda also includes:

GRADING — Introduction of an ordinance regulating grading, excavating and filling. The county currently has an interim ordinance prohibiting most grading and filling except by permit. The ordinance is the result of complaints of illegal road grading by West Marin land developers.

HOTEL — A request to delay the county's abatement order against the historic Olema Hotel which has been ruled a fire hazard. The owner of the hotel is negotiating its sale to a group interested in restoring it. The request asks that abatement be delayed until at least Dec. 26.

HAMILTON — A report on the cost of an environment impact study on joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base. The study would take six to eight months at a cost of about $50,000.

REDEVELOPMENT — A legal opinion from the county counsel's office indicating San Rafael's plans for redevelopment may not meet legal requirements. According to the county counsel, redevelopment is for severely blighted areas.

MAMOTH — A legal opinion from the county counsel's office on the effect of the "Friends of Mamoth" court decision which ruled all construction proposals must include environmental impact studies.

Transit Job Shift Due Hearing

The Marin County Transit District board, meeting tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. at the Marin Civic Center, will consider a proposal to place tha district's staff within the county's department of public works.

The proposal, suggested last-month by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, amounts to a compromise between those urging a full-time district manager be hired and those satisfied with the present half-time situation.

Currently, Acting District Mgr. James B. Robertson serves the district board half-time and the remainder with the public works department as a traffic engineer.

The proposal puts Robertson in charge of a new division called "Transit-Traffic Division" which would integrate both half-time jobs.

Robertson, who has agreed to a $2,100 per year cut in salary, no longer would be responsible directly to the transit board but to Ray W. Foreaker Jr., director of public works.

The reorganization recommendation also includes a proposal that an unfilled position of assistant civil engineer be placed under the new division to aid Robertson.

5-Year-Old Girl Named Poster Child

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) —Paula Pfeifer, 5, of Tulsa, Okla, has been named the 1973 March of Dimes National Poster Child. She will represent the voluntary health organization in its 35th annual fund raising drive that begins in January.

Paula has gone through a series of operations and extensive orthopedic treatment to correct birth defects. She has now entered kindergarten. About one million infants are born with birth defects each year.

2 Arrested In Weapons Smuggling

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Police Sunday arrested militant Jewish Defense League (JDL) leader Meir Kahane and another JDL official in attempts by the right-wing organization to smuggle weapons abroad for attacks on Arabs.

Kahane and Josef Schneider, league secretary, were taken into custody Sunday and jailed overnight. A police source said Kahane could be held for up to two days without a court order and that an order for longer detention of Schneider would be sought today in district court.

Kahane was questioned today at a police station in suburban Rishon Le-Zion and the source said a remand order for the American rabbi would be requested if he did not cooperate with police.

Kahane has said he would refuse to help police investigators unless the government drops its cases against JDL members and supporters charged with attempting to smuggle arms and munitions in packing cases of machinery for anti-Arab operations in Europe and elsewhere.

Developer's Appeal On Town's Agenda

A developer's appeal to rezone eight parcels on Paradise Drive from single-family to multiple-unit use will be heard at 7:30 p.m. today by the Corte Madera Town Council.

Karl Treffinger, a San Francisco architect, wants to rezone the parcels from 5170 through 5188 Paradise Drive from R-1-A (20,000-square-foot minimum size per lot) to R-2 (4,000-square-foot minimum lot for each dwelling unit).

The town's planning commission denied the rezoning by a 3-2 vote on Aug. 14, as recommended by its staff, and Treffinger appealed to the council to overturn the commission's action. The present zoning is "anachronistic and improper" for the parcels, he said in a letter to town officials.

He objected that the commission failed to consider "the positive visual contribution that the proposed project will make."

Residents of the neighborhood opposed the rezoning before the commission, and have protested as well to the council.

Also on the agenda of the council, which will meet in the town hall, is a proposed policy to allow only buildable land to be counted in acreage considered for rezoning.

Other business includes construction of tennis courts, a staff report on complaints of debris and trash on the H. Koch property, and a position on Proposition 20, the coastal initiative on the November ballot.

Report Slated On Headstones

A report on the status of the headstones at Pioneer Memorial Park Cemetery will be given to the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

At its last meeting, the commission asked the staff to get comparative costs of setting the headstones upright or flat in the ground. The staff will make this report tonight. The commission had voted that restoration of the cemetery would be its first priority.

Other items to come before the commission include tennis classes at Pioneer Memorial Park, a report on the status of development of parks and the annual report of department activities by director Edward W. Adams.

Tam Board In Closed Meeting

A closed meeting will be held by Tamalpais High School District trustees at 7:30 p.m. today in the faculty lounge at Redwood High School.

Board secretary Marion Higgins said the session was to "discuss employing personnel." It will be followed by the regular board meeting at 8 p.m.

Trustees, faced with reports of inadequate controls on expense account spending, are scheduled to revamp policy to limit spending and maintain records. Also on the agenda is a request for $3,000 for partial landscaping at Tamalpais High School.

Mrs. Crosby To Act In ACT Productions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Kathryn Grant Crosby, the 38year-old wife of crooner Bing Crosby, has signed up to appear in two plays opening in San Francisco late this month.

She will appear with the American Conservatory Theater, San Francisco's professional repertory company, as Lise in Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" and as an aspiring film actress in John Guares' "The House of Blue Leaves." Mrs. Crosby performed in movies and on stage as Kathryn Grant before marrying Crosby, now 68, in 1957.

Motorist Is Arrested After Tiburon Collision

A Kentfield woman was reported in satisfactory condition in Marin General Hospital today following a two-car accident in Tiburon, which led to her arrest on suspicion of drunken driving.

Sharon Lee Jones, 31, of 241 McAllister Avenue suffered neck injuries in the accident at 11:30 p.m. Friday. A passenger in her car, Harlan Russell of Los Angeles was treated at the hospital for minor scrapes and bruises.

Tiburon police booked Mrs. Jones in absentia at Marin County Jail. She is to appear in Marin Municipal Court following her release from the hospital.

Investigators said Mrs. Jones was westbound on Tiburon Boulevard near Jefferson Court when her auto hit a guardrail and swerved across the center line, striking an auto driven by Marsha Ann Fickert, 23, of Tiburon, who escaped injury. Mrs. Jones's auto then careened into a utility pole.

Injured Cyclist Is Hospitalized

A 15-year-old Morro Bay youth was reported in excellent condition today in Marin General Hospital following a motorcycle accident yesterday near Smith Ranch Road in San Rafael.

SUMMER IN INDIA

Alien Life, New Family

By MARLENE FREEDMAN

Until this summer, George Plank was a San Rafael High School student who had never been farther from home than Nevada and Oregon.

All of a sudden, he was eating with his hands, cleaning his tongue and observing Hindu customs.

The 16-year-old son of Dr. John F. Plank, superintendent of San Rafael Schools, he spent the summer in India on an American Field Service scholarship.

"I never heard of the city they said I was going to, Ahmedabad. I had to look it up on a map," the sandy haired teenager recalled as he reminisced about his atypical summer.

After an orientation session in New York with 60 other scholarship recipients Plank flew on to Bombay where he spent five days getting his first taste of living with a family of another culture.

Then, he was at his destination, Ahmedabad, a textile city of 1.7 million population by the border of West Pakistan.

Along with a life completely alien from his own, Plank acquired a whole new family —mother, father, sister, brother, cousins, aunts, uncles and two sets of grandparents. "I felt so much a part of the family," George said, "that I called them 'mama' and 'papa.' "

His "brother," Parag, was also 16, "supposedly a freshman at college but since their school system is only 11 years, it was equivalent to being a senior in high school, like me."

His "sister," Isha, was 12, and he acquired 22 other relatives living in the city.

"That was my favorite custom of theirs, treating cousins like brothers and sisters and treating aunts and uncles like a second set of parents. We saw all of them every day. Here, I see my cousins about once a year."

George confessed that as he was preparing to go to India, he was worried about the reception he would receive as an American. "I thought about our fleet in the Bay of Bengal, about Vietnam. . .I was worried."

But not once in his two months there did he encounter an anti-American experience, he said.

All the teen-agers he met —all of whom learned English in school — questioned him about the presidential election, the situation in Vietnam and the government's feelings towards India. But no one was hostile.

He attended some classes with Parag and said the school facilities suggested America's buildings in the 1940s. The biggest contrast he noticed was the large size of classes — about 140 students — and "there was never any student discussion. . .they spoke only when they were called upon to answer a question."

He traveled to some surrounding areas, but since our summer is India's monsoon season, rains restricted them.

Parag took him to several dances where Plank was amused to hear American rock music, including the Beatles. "In fact, once we were planning something at our house and we had a choice of having a sitar player or other music. I thought a sitar would be nice, but Parag wanted a record player with what they call 'pop' music, rock."

Parag was sports-minded, active in badminton, tennis and swimming, and his father was a retired cricket champion well-known throughout India.

Plank said he spent a lot of time discussing Hinduism with his "mother" who attended temple every morning and prayed in a place of worship she had set aside in the house.

They followed the Hindu practice of vegetarianism and George said although he lost 15 pounds, he enjoyed their meals of soup, vegetables "and something like a soft tortilla."

He joined his hosts eating with his hands, and even took up their custom of cleaning his tongue in the morning.

During the full moon in August, he attended a ceremony in which his adopted sister and cousins each put a ceremonial string bracelet on his wrist as a symbol of good luck. According to custom, he said, he is to wear them until New Year's Day, which on their calendar is Oct. 17, and then throw them in the river to cast off evil spirits. "I'm going to throw them off the Golden Gate Bridge," he said laughingly.

He rejoined the other AFS travelers in New Delhi where they attended a reception at the home of India Prime Minister Indira Gandhi whom he found friendly, viewed the Taj Mahal and then returned home. "Beirut. . .London. . .Paris. . .I feel like a world traveler," he said, surrounded by a conglomeration of souvenirs. "But," he added with sparkling eyes, "We didn't get off the plane."

He was given a gala welcome by his American family. His mother cooked curry and reported, "I cheated, I made lamb even though he was a vegetarian over there" and everyone wore Indian saris and pajama-type trousers.

That was followed the next day by an all-American barbecue picnic. "Just to balance it off," chuckled his mother.

SOUVENIRS — George Plank, a senior at San Rafael High School displays some of the purchases he made last summer in India, objects that take on an exotic flavor in the family living room. During his stay with an Indian family, these things seemed more ordinary.

THE PLEA BARGAIN

A Controversial Way To Replace Trials

By LARRY MOWELL
(First of two articles)

"We believe that the recognition of the legal status of the plea bargain will serve as a salutary timesaver as well as a means to dispel the procedural obscurantism that now enshrouds it." — Mathew O. Tobriner, justice of the California Supreme Court.

Despite the image of Owen Marshall and Perry Mason saving their television clinets with brilliant courtroom oratory before a buzzing audience, sympathetic jury and gavel banging judge, the key moments in most criminal cases are no longer in the courtroom.

More and more the highly structured, rigidly regulated, time consuming public jury trial has been replaced by a brief meeting of prosecutor, defense attorney and judge which produces a guilty plea from the criminal in exchange for what he considers a fair sentence promised by the judge.

That technique is what Justice Tobriner called the plea bargain. Others who don't like the marketplace ring of the phrase choose more esoteric names like sentence negotiation, settlement conference or pretrial conference.

But by any name, it is a controversial, misunderstood process by which three out of four felony cases are disposed of in Marin Superior Court.

The figure is as high or higher in other courts across the country. For example, in the Bronx, according to the New York Times, 2,067 persons were convicted of felonies in the first eight months more of 1971. Of these, 1,969 pleaded guilty after a plea bargain.

The justification for plea bargaining is simple: It saves time, precious courtroom space and money. Presiding Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick said that because of plea bargaining the backlog of civil cases was cut from 930 to 826 in only six months.

And Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, in a letter to the chief justice of the state Supreme Court, wrote, "We can't try more than 10 per cent of the felony cases which are filed. This means that the balance of them must be settled, or the cost of the whole judicial system will have to get completely out of hand."

Despite the judges' belief that plea bargaining is a must, they think the public doesn't like it, largely because of the sentences which result.

"I think they have a feeling that somebody is giving away the courthouse," said Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Though it has been the rule rather than the exception for only a couple of years, plea bargaining has always been part of the court scene.

It was hidden behind a ritual incantation in which the defendant pleading guilty said he had received no promises although judge, prosecutor and defense attorney knew there was a deal.

That was the method until 1970 when the state supreme court — in an opinion by Justice Tobriner quoted above — cut through the sham and made plea bargaining legitimate.

Despite its wide acceptance by judges as a timesaver, plea bargaining has been damned by others as an insidious system which warps American justice and lets the criminal off with a lighter sentence than he would receive after trial.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, who in many cases pushes for longer sentences than the one negotiated, is a staunch opponent of that brief meeting in the judge's chambers that so often results in conviction.

Insofar as it leads to reduced charges and shorter sentences, Bales said it breeds contempt for the judicial process, not only by the criminal, but by the victims, police and the public.

Former federal prosecutor Peter L. Zimroth, writing in the New York Times, raised several other objections. Not only does the secret discussion tend to obscure from the populace questions of police legality and public morality, but it places a huge burden on the defendant, he said.

The defendant, if he wants to take advantage of bargaining, must decide for himself the sometimes subtle questions that determine guilt and innocence. If the proferred sentence is enticing, innocent men with weak defenses may plead guilty.

"Put crudely, the name of the plea-bargaining game is reduced sentences. One way or another — through explicit deals with the prosecutor or the judge or simply through the unwritten la of criminal justice — the defendant buys a reduced sentence by selling his constitutional right to be tried," Zimroth wrote.

Not so, said Marin's public defender, Harold J. Truett. In most cases, the defendant is willing to admit his crime to avoid risk of a maximum sentence on conviction.

From the judge's standpoint, according to Judge Broderick, the object of plea bargaining is to evalute the case and the defendant's criminal record, then arrive at a sentence that would be likely after a trial.

Judge E. Warren McGuire rejected the notion that a tougher sentence might be given a man merely because he insisted on a trial. Saying sentences should be similar whether a result of plea bargaining or of trial, McGuire declared, "The guy can't be jolted just because he exercised his right to a trial."

The plea bargain is unusually struck while a defendant is awaiting trial, then ratified in open court. The judge makes a finding that the felon is indeed guilty and has pleaded guilty "freely and intelligently," then sets a date for sentencing.

The plea negotiation is consummated at the time of sentencing unless the judge is convinced by a probation report of subsequent arrests that the defendant deserves a stiffer sentence.

In that case, the judge allows the defendant to withdraw his guilty plea and stand trial on a plea of innocent.

The process applies only if the defendant is guilty, according to the judges. "If you've got an innocent client, you can't plea bargain," McGuire said.

Maybe, but a deputy public defender told the Independent-Journal recently that he negotiated a plea for an ex-convict charged with assault with a deadly weapon because he had a weak case and the man faced a very long prison term instead of a jail term if convicted.

The deputy said he was convinced his client was innocent.

2 Bay Area Waiters Win In Sweepstakes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two waiters are among the lucky persons in the San Francisco Bay Area who learned over the weekend they had won a total of $234,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes.

James Gee, of Oakland, was one of seven Americans to win $130,000 in the results announced Saturday. He had bought a ticket on Negus, the horse that won the Cambridgeshire at New Market, England. Gee, a 1940s immigrant from Canton, China, said he would use the money to send his three children to college and pay off a home mortgage.

He said he had been buying Sweepstakes tickets for over a decade.

Adelio Micor, of San Francisco, also a waiter, won $26,000 for his ticket on the third-place horse in the Cambridgeshire, Vedyvas.

An 82-year-old Oakland woman, Edith Bellingall, cashed in on her ticket on number two horse Roy Bridge to the tune of $52,000.

Petaluma Bomb Threat False; Rifle-Wielding Man Arrested

A rifle-wielding Petaluma man who claimed to have a bomb created a wild scene Saturday afternoon in a Petaluma shopping center.

Hundreds of persons watched the two-hour drama played out at the Washington Square Shopping Center and witnessed the arrest of James Richard Burke, 48, of 717 North McDowell Boulevard.

Police said Burke entered the Safeway store at the center at 2:20 p.m. with a foreign made rifle slung over his shoulder. He went to the meat department where he demanded to see his estranged girlfriend, Starling Delday, 38.

When he couldn't find Mrs. Delday, Burke reportedly waved the rifle around shouting angrily and scaring shoppers out of the store. When police arrived a few minutes later they found Burke in a camper-truck in the parking lot and wrestled with him a few minutes before subduing him.

As officer Dolph Camilli started to get into the truck, Burke warned, "For God's sake, don't touch the truck. I have a bomb in it." He said he had attached three vials of nitroglycerine to a can of gasoline and had rigged it to a battery and timing device set to explode at 3:17 p.m.

Within 10 minutes police had completely evacuated the Safeway and other stores in the shopping center. Deputies from the sheriff's department and California highway patrolmen sealed off traffic at East Washington Street and McDowell Boulevard. Traffic on Highway 101 was also blocked.

Bomb experts from the Presidio of San Francisco and the sheriff's department spent an hour gingerly inspecting the truck and suspected bomb only to find it was simply a can filled with gasoline.

Burke was booked into Sonoma County Jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, brandishing a weapon and making a false bomb report. He was scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Police said Burke appeared to have been drinking heavily and had been in the vicinity of the shopping center most of the day. Young members of the Rainbow Girls operating a benefit car wash at a nearby service station said Burke had his camper washed only minutes before entering the Safeway and said he had seemed disturbed about something.

S.F. Rally Opposes Peking-Tokyo Ties

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Peking's new ties with Japan have been denounced in a demonstration here by some 300 residents of the largest Chinese community outside Asia.

A pint of white port wine, a cooked chicken and burning joss sticks were placed in front of scrolls on stage eulogizing the "tens of thousands of compatriots massacred by the Communists."

"The local Chinese are bitterly against the conspiracy of Tanaka and Chou En-lai," C. C. Dunn, consul general for Nationalist China, said here Saturday. "A diplomatic relation between Japan and Communist China means a war again to all freedom-loving Chinese who are loyal to the Republic of China at Taiwan."

Workshop Set On Wild Life

A free all-day workshop on wildlife will be held on Oct. 28 at the College of Marin.

Hosted by the Marin Rod and Gun Club, the session will be sponsored by the California Wildlife Federation and conducted by the Wildlife Society and the American Fisheries Society.

The program, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., was designed to inform people who write and talk about wildlife.

Registration is being handled by Milburn N. Zell of San Anselmo.

Speakers will include Richard Teague, assistant director of the state Agricultural Extension Service; Mert Rosen, a pathologist with the state Department of Fish and Game; Edward Schneegas, chief of the Wildlife Management Branch of the U.S. Forest Service; and Eldridge Hunt, chief of game management for the state Department of Fish and Game.

The moderator will be Richard Hubbard of the U.S. Forest Service office in Fresno.

Marin ACLU To Hold Proposition Forums

Three forums on propositions on the November ballot will be held this month by the Marin chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union at the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera.

All three will start at 8:30 p.m.

The first, this Wednesday, will have Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-S.F., discussing the antibusing initiative, Proposition 21.

San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto will discuss the marijuana, obscenity and privacy initiatives; Propositions 19, 18 and 11 respectively, on Oct. 11.

Sen. George Moscone, D-S.F., will speak on the death penalty initiative, Proposition 17, on Oct. 19.

LARGE, MODERN DUPLEX

Almost like 2 separate buildings, on a large level lot. Separate entries with entry halls. 2 large bdrms. in each unit. All elec. kitchens. Hardwood floors, air conditioning. Living room with beam ceilings and brick fireplaces. Big yard. Separate laundry rooms. Big courtyard for extra parking plus garages. Both units have downstairs storerooms that could easily be expanded to make family room or 2 extra bdrms. in each unit. 1 unit has new w/w carpeting and has been completely repainted, would make excellent owners' unit. Ideally located. Quiet neighborhood off Sir Francis Drake Blvd. $54,950.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PROPERTY DELINQUENT FOR NON-PAYMENT OF ASSESSMENT BOND NO. 24 HARVARD AVE.-PRINCETON AVE. SERIES 6091, FOR IMPROVEMENTS IN THE COUNTY OF MARIN, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Default having been made in the payment of the following named coupons, 1-2-68 Prin. $88.17, 1-2-69 Prin. $88.04, 1-2-70 Prin. $88.04, 1-2-71 Prin. $88.04, 1-2-72 Prin. $88.04, 1-2-68 Int. $38.79, 7-2-68 Int. $36.21, 1-2-69 Int. $36.21, 7-2-69 Int. $33.62, 1-2-70 Int. $33.62, 7-2-70 Int. $31.03, 1-2-71 Int. $31.03, 7-2-71 Int. $28.45, 1-2-72 Int. $28.45, 7-2-72 Int. $25.86 and the holder of said bond having demanded in writing that the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, State of California, proceed to advertise and sell the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond. Now, therefore, I give notice that I will on the 18th day of October, 1972, at the hour of 10:00 a.m. of said day, sell at public auction, the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at my office in the Marin County Civic Center at San Rafael, California, unless the amount due on said bond and the accrued interest thereon together with the cost of publication of this notice, are paid, and that I will so sell the same to the person who will take the least amount of said lot or parcel of land and pay the full amount of unpaid principal and interest on said bond together with the cost of publication. The lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond and to be sold, is more particularly described, to-wit:

The amount due on said bond up to the date of this notice is as follows: Due on the principal thereof $1,320.73; due on account of interest $469.99; due on account of penalties $264.10; total amount due on said bond $2,054.82.

In order to avoid this sale, payment of the total amount above named will be required, together with the cost of publication made before such payment and the additional interest accruing up to the date of payment. Bond may be reinstated upon payment of amounts due, principal, interest, penalties, and fees, in the manner provided by law.

In the event of sale, such sale will include interest in addition to the above total amount due, accruing up to the date of sale, the cost of publication of notice of sale, and $1.00 for the isuuance of certificate of sale.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Food's For Health, But To Many It's A Prestige Thing

Food supplies the essential nutrients for health. But to the average consumer, it means more than this. With increased purchasing power, he can select a variety of edibles from the 8,000 items in many supermarkets. He now may be able to afford more luxury items. In this category, steaks, among the most expensive, give status to the person who serves them to his guests. This does not mean that sirloin is more nutritious than other meats; it is just an example of a prestige food.

According to Dr. E. Neige Todhunter, white flour was a status food when first milled because it was expensive. It resisted spoilage and made fine cakes and breads. The same applied to white rice, even though brown rice protected against beriberi. Status as pertains to food also enters the picture in other ways. For example, hamburgers are fine for family meals, but when guests are expected, we have a beef or lamb roast.

MANY ELABORATE dinners and parties are symbols of hospitality and friendship. Food also offers an outlet for emotions. Loneliness and boredom may be relieved by continuous nibbling. Snacking is one of the causes of obesity. During the past few years, so many cults and food fads have appeared, it is now believed that they represent a revolt against the establishment, pollution, and modern technological procedures.

Children also see ood as a source of something for nothing. They hound mom for cereal with the "gift" in the package or box top that allows them to send away for a special item. For them, food can also be a reward for being good.

DR. TODHUNTER shows how symbolic food is to the life of man. We write a "bread and butter note" or speak about "the cream of the crop," "milk of human kindness," and "salt of the earth." In other words, it has become an intimate part of everyday language. These psychological and emotional reactions to food could be just as important as its nutritive value.

ROUGHHOUSING WITH BABY

Mrs. K. C. B. writes: A friend of mineclaims that an infant or a baby can develop brain damage if one holds the child by the legs and back, turned upside-down, for a few minutes. He says the harm occurs as the blood rushes to the head. I do this frequently with my 9-month-old son. He seems to like it and doesn't cry. I won't do this until I hear from you.

REPLY

Holding the child upside down for a few moments does no harm. But don't drop him. An accidental fall is where the brain damage enters the picture.

NAPOLEON SYNDROME

D.S. writes: What is the condition that causes delusions of grandeur in an older person?

REPLY

WINGLIKE EARS

REPLY

Plastic surgery.

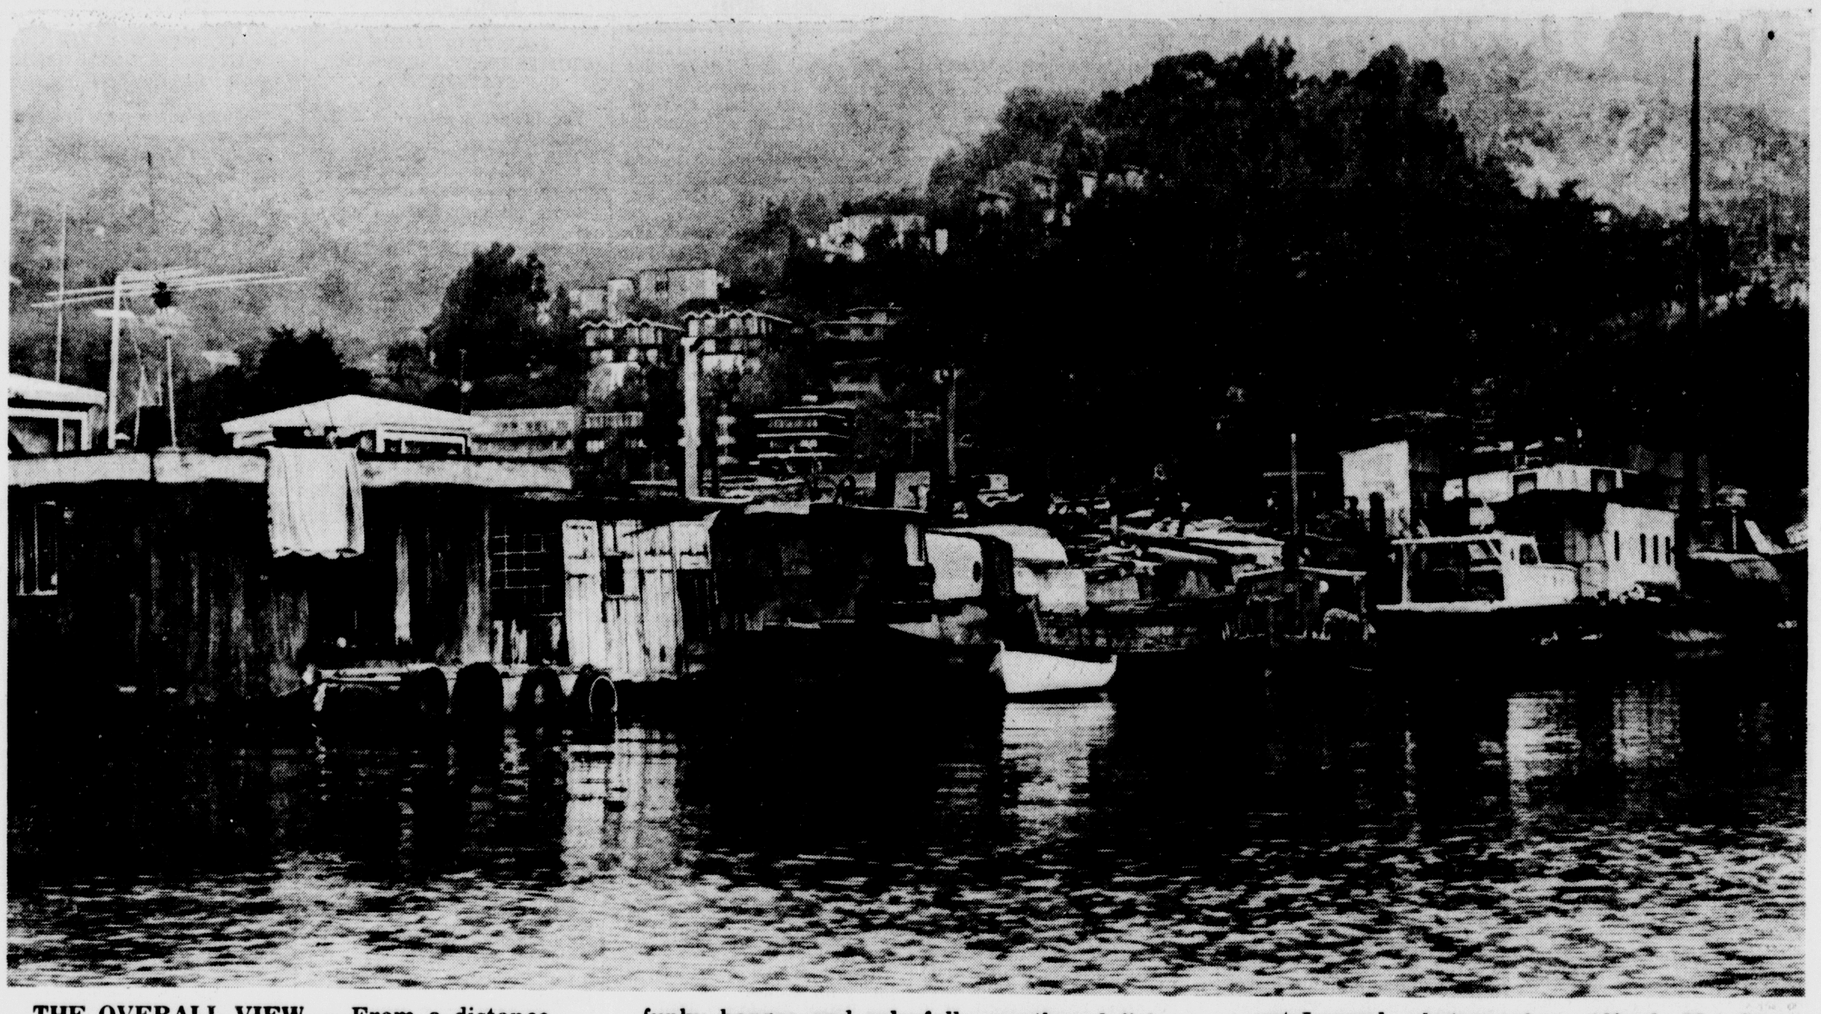
No. 1456 Oct. 2, 1972

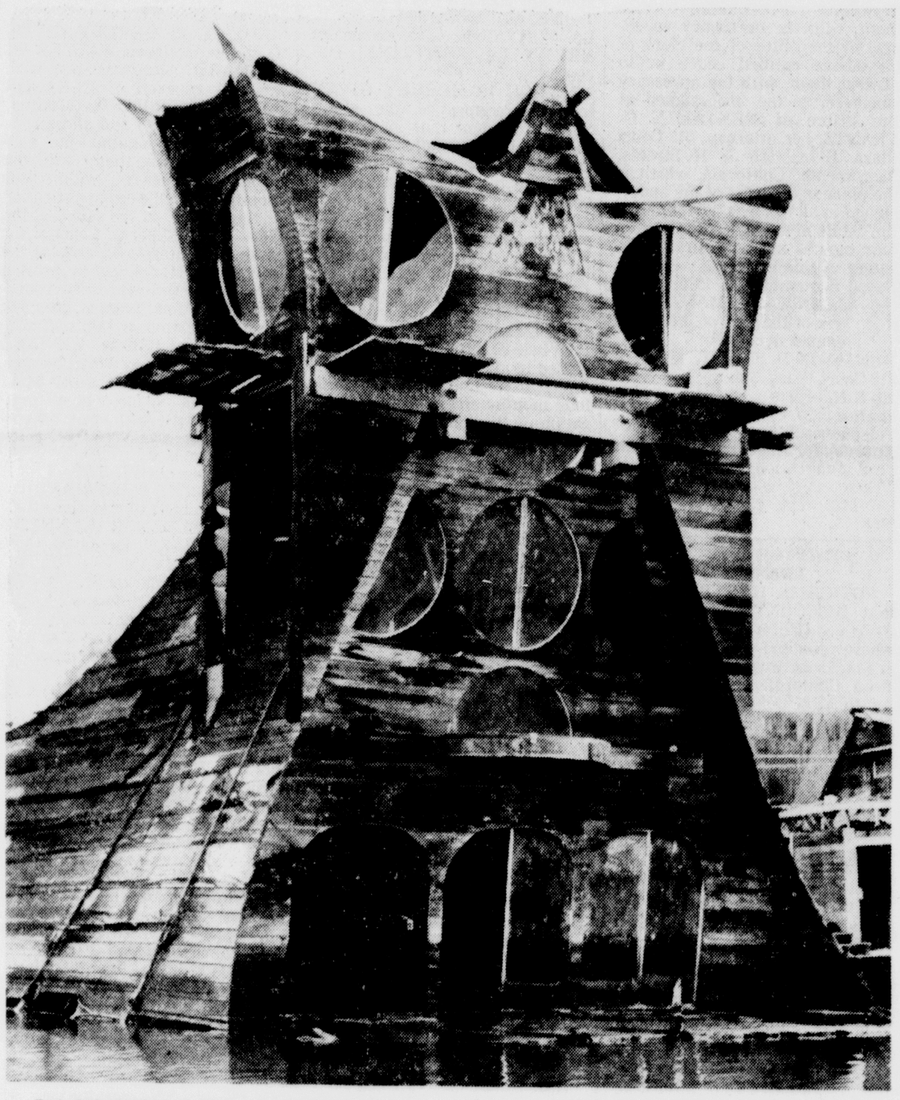
RAW SEWAGE — Even some of the plushest houseboats have inadequate sanitary facilities. This unconnected drain pipe apparently spews untreated sewage onto the side of the boat and down into the water.



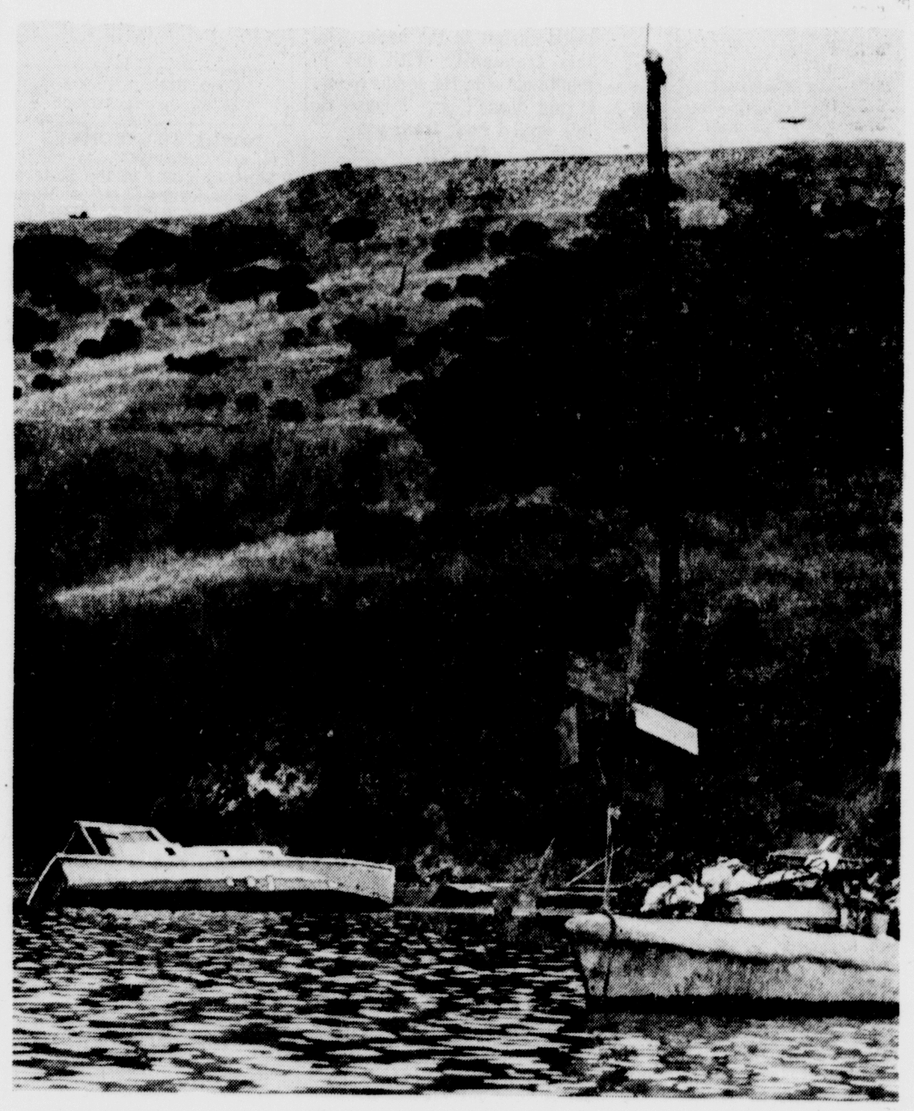
THE OVERALL VIEW — From a distance, Sausalito's waterfront community appears to be an exotic collection of elegant houseboats, funky barges and colorfully weathered fishing trawlers which nestle together beside the piers in Richardson Bay. But, as Independent-Journal photographer Alfred M. Arn moved in for a closer look at the scene, the seamier side of life on the bay becomes apparent.

The Inelegant Waterfront

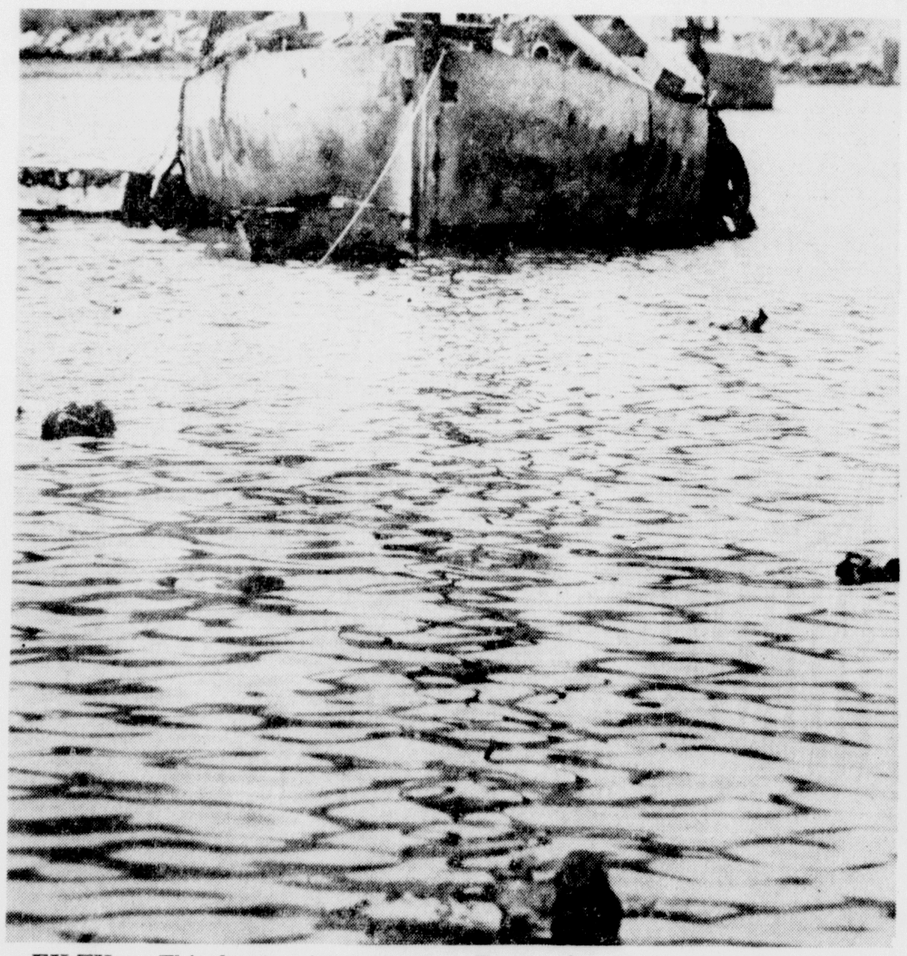
UNDERWATER — Like an iceberg, this wooden piling presents a real threat to sailors and water skiers because at high tide it is completely submerged. This piling is located about 25 feet offshore near Zack's restaurant.



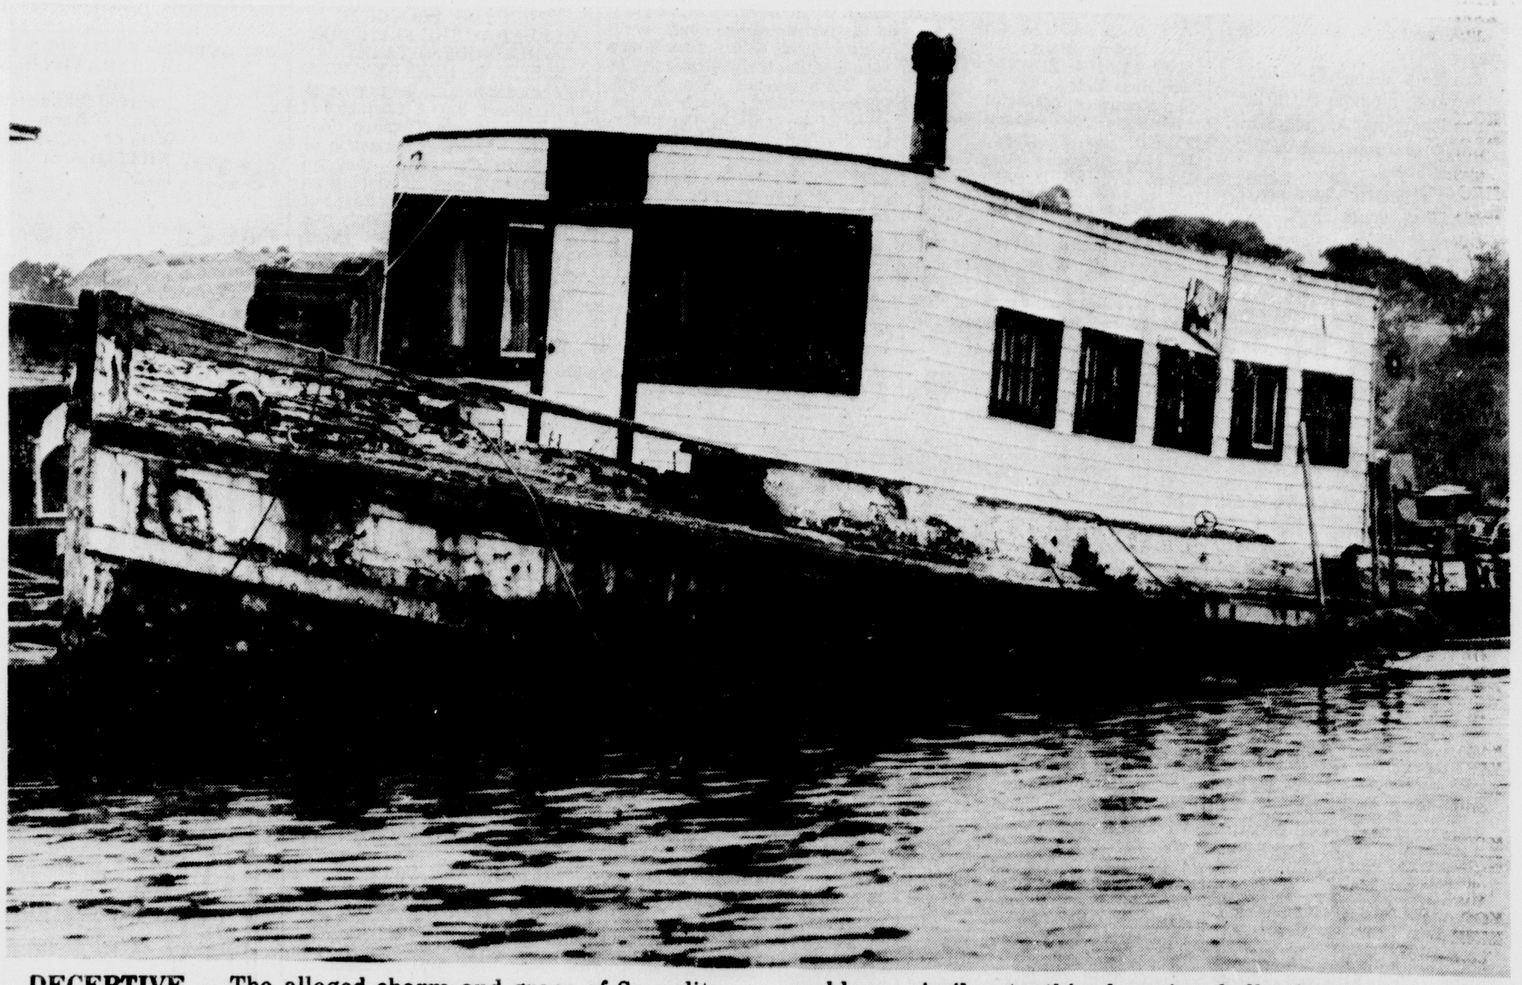
UNFULFILLED PROMISE — Thousands of dollars and enormous amounts of creativity were poured into many of the avant garde structures along the waterfront. Unfortunately, many of these unusual homes have fallen into disrepair, like this one, whose ground floor has sunk below the water line.



NAVIGATION HAZARDS — The Coast Guard has recently urged boat owners not to anchor craft such as these in Richardson Bay. Yachtsmen have complained of getting fouled in anchor lines and crashing into abandoned boats.



FILTH — This boat, with its yet to be finished cement hull, leaves a trail of empty bleach bottles and cement bags trailing behind. From the shore, the bay often looks unblemished, but actually it is littered with garbage and floating debris.



DECEPTIVE — The alleged charm and grace of Sausalito houseboats has reached almost legendary proportions, but more often than not the "charming" houseboat has problems similar to this decaying hulk. City and county officials have tried for months to condemn several of the most unsafe and unsanitary of the dwellings.

Priest Blesses Fishing Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco fishing fleet, bobbing up and down under grey skies at Fisherman's Wharf, was the focal point Sunday for hundreds of Italian-Americans who gathered for the annual blessing of the fishing boats.

"Oh Lord ... bless all these boats that are in back of me," intoned Father Louis Masoero as he walked along the wharf. "Bless the fishermen, and bring them back safely every time they go out to earn a living."

The fishermen, their wives and other participants followed Masoero in a long procession.

'Freedom Schools' In Michigan Are Closed

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI)—Pontiac's so-called "freedom schools," established last year to accommodate parents who didn't want their children to participate in a court-ordered school-busing program, have closed down due to shrinking attendance.

The schools, officially known as neighborhood academies, had attracted only about 20 students this fall, as compared with 300 at their peak last year, said Mrs. Elsie Bigger, coordinator of the academies.

According to Mrs. Bigger, the attendance decline was due primarily to parents switching their children to church-connected private schools or moving to different school districts.

The academies opened at 14 separate locations, mostly private homes, last Oct. 1, a short time after the opening of Pontiac public schools was ordered by U.S. District Judge Damon Keith of Detroit.

The program involves the busing of some 23,000 students to integrated schools.

Second Son Is Born To Nobel Winner

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nobel Prize novelist Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn's wife Natasha gave birth to their second son several days ago, a literary source said Sunday. The child has been named Ignat.

Solzhenitsyn, 53, said earlier this year that he was willing his 1970 Nobel Prize insignia to his other son, Yermoli, because he had given up hope of receiving it on Russian soil. Soviet authorities refuse to allow presentation of it because they regard it as a political reward for what they say are his anti-Soviet writings.

Marin City 'Out-Reach' Banquet

The Marin City Church of God's Mission Out-reach program will hold its second semi-annual "Help Banquet" at 8 p.m. Saturday in the IDESSI Hall, 511 Caledonia Street in Sausalito.

According to Pastor Fred Small, the banquet will feature entertainment by the Crandel Brothers Quartet, gospel singers.

Proceeds will go toward the program which provides "rescue and counseling for people who are down and out," Small said.

Each Monday night, Out-Reach sponsors a free hot meal at Smitty's Place in the shopping center in Marin City and gives free clothing and other practical necessities to those who need them.

Mission Out-Reach also helps support interdenominational youth Out-Reach programs in Marin County and Sacramento.

Reservations may be made by telephoning Small or writing him at P. O. Box 516, Sausalito.

Illinois Drunk Driver Law Takes Effect

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois' new "implied consent" law goes into effect Sunday, giving police the right to test the breath of drivers they suspect of being drunk.

The law will permit the state to suspend the driver's license of a motorist who refuses to take a breath test after he is arrested on drunk-driving charges—on grounds that a person who obtains a driver's license inherently is agreeing to such a test, if necessary.

The law was passed by the 1972 state legislature and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie signed it into law last June. It was to have taken effect July 1, but 425 breath-testing machines for the state could not be delivered, and the new effective date became Oct 1.

The new law was fought in the legislature by persons saying it violated a motorist's constitutional rights by forcing him to testify against himself. Supporters said driving was a privilege and the driver had the responsibility not to endanger others.

A person arrested for suspeced drunken driving will have 90 minutes to decide to take the test. The suspect who agrees will blow into a tube attached to a machine able to determine the amount of alcohol in the blood.

The test will be given twice, within 15 minutes, and a person whose alcohol level is one-tenth of one per cent—which can be reached by some with three highballs in one hour—will be considered drunk.

The person who refuses to take the test could have his license suspended for three months the first time and six months for the second arrest.

Fills New Slot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has named Paul F. Lawrence of Sacramento to fill a newly created position on the Education Management and Evaluation Commission.

TRADITION FROM THE WEST

From Rabbit's Fur To Felt—A Stetson

By David Gunston
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Fine. And don't forget the sombrero, the top hat, the coolie hat, the trilby, the Stetson.

That's 10, and of these only the Stetson is named after its inventor. Which is fitting because both in history and use it's easily the most interesting and romantic of all hats. And thanks to countless books and films about the American Old West, it is undoubtedly one of the world's best known.

There is no mistaking the Stetson, with its soft felt slouch crown and very wide brim. It began as a simple idea in the mind of John B. Stetson, and although he was delighted to see his hat become world-known, he would probably be surprised at its continuing fame.

It has become a trendy headgear many miles from Colorado, a fashion hat, a leisure hat, and it is even worn by airline stewardesses.

The son of a Philadelphia hatter, John Stetsson went to the West in 1860 for his health. One evening on a camping trip in the chilly Colorado prairies, he and some friends were discussing the best type of clothes for the area.

Their talk put the germ of an idea into Stetson's mind. Next ay, with hatchet and knife, he made some rabbit fur into crude felt and shaped it into a high, wide-brimmed hat — one that would keep off sun, rain, wind, and cold. He wore the world's first Stetson himself as he wandered about the country, and his strange new headgear became the subject of much amused talk in the mining camps and on cattle ranches.

Then one day a big figure of a cowboy rode up and asked Stetson if he could try to hat on. The hatter agreed. He liked the look of it on a real, typical Westerner. So did the cowboy, for he bought the hat for $5.

Eventually Stetson returned home to Philadelphia and the ordinary hat trade. But he never forgot that striking picture of the horseman wearing his hat. The image stayed with him. He knew the West was opening up and that ranchers and cattlemen had no special kind of hat.

So in his little shop he made a few big hats to the same design in natural-colored felt. He decided to name his hat "The Boss of the Plains," and he sent his samples to various dealers out West.

Within three weeks the West had adopted the Stetson as its very own special hat. Cowboys loved it and would wear no other. The Texas Rangers quickly took it up. Sheriff's and badmen, ranchers and farmers all found it admirably suited to their climate and way of life. "The Boss of the Plains" swiftly took over. Orders poured into Philadelphia for more.

In less than a year Stetson founded his own factory making no other kind of hats. Before long he began to hear of uses for the Stetson of which even he had never dreamed. Its owners used it for beating out grass fires and fanning sluggish camp-fires into life; shooing troublesome cattle into line; drinking out of from mountain streams.

The Stetson felt good; it looked good; it served its purpse as no other hat could; and yet, even with a bit of dust, it was fine for wearing to the local Saturday barn dance or a wedding.

The hat's only disadvantage to its inventor was that its owners got so attached to their Stetsons that they seldom bought new ones, preferring to keep them as they mellowed and weathered, for they never wore out. And what if one did attract a few bullet holes in its crown? To the true Westerner that only made it a more prized possession.

Johnson Field Goal Lifts Novato Past Terra Linda

By LEW CODDINGTON

This is a story of how a second-string placekicker from Pasco, Wash., moved to a new town and made hundreds of friends in one night.

His name is Craig Johnson. He is now a senior at Novato High, and Saturday night he kicked a 23-yard field goal with just 24 seconds remaining to give his school a 15-14 football victory over Terra Linda.

About 2,500 fans watched at San Rafael High, and went away shaking their heads at how a good Terra Linda team could be 0-3 on the year and 0-1 in the Marin County Athletic League. Defending co-champion Novato's figures are just the opposite.

"I was confident of making it," said Johnson, who booted a 35-yarder last week for the Hornets, plus one last year for Pasco High, where he was the No. 2 kicker. "There was a good line in front of me, and Tom Conklin is a good holder."

Novato kicked on first down because it had used up its last time out, according to winning coach Al Scott.

Three minutes earlier, Johnson punted 54 yards to Terra Linda's three-yard line. Novato's defense held, and a short punt by the Trojans was returned nine yards by Mike Rennier to the 29.

The two teams scratched and clawed all night for yards, and came out roughly even, as Terra Linda had a total offense of 144 and Novato 122. Breaks and defense decided the contest.

Novato scored in the second quarter when Mark Magers crunched three yards, following a fumble recovery by Tom Hoog on the Trojan seven. Terra Linda retaliated later in the period on a 42-yard pass interception return by Scott Logan, and Pete Corbett kicked the conversion.

Novato regained the lead on its first possession of the third period, driving 40 yards in six plays after a short punt. Joe Powell swept left end on a pitchout for 33 yards to the six, and two plays later, Conklin went one foot on a quarterback sneak for the score.

Late in the period, Terra Linda quarterback Jeff Leaird apparently ran 52 yards for a touchdown, but a clipping penalty brought the play back, and the drive died. In the fourth quarter, Leaird did score on a four-yard keeper, and Corbett's kick made it 14-12, Terra Linda.

A two-point conversion after Leaird's score would have made it impossible for Novato

49ers Jump Back In Title Race With Win

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—To the San Francisco Forty Niners, it was a boost that put them back in the National Football Conference's Western Division race. But to the New Orleans Saints, it was just anther loss in a season that stretches before them like along, cold Russian winter.

"Defensively, we played a hell of a football game," said Forty Niner Coach Dick Nolan San Francisco's 37-2 trouncing of the Saints Sunday.

"We were a different football team out there than when we lost to Buffalo last week," Nolan said.

That the Forty Niners were, indeed, a different team than the one the Bills upset last Sunday was undeniable, but whether the glory should go to San Francisco's defense or the blame to the Saints' offense was not so clear.

Saints quarterback Archie Manning, who hit only 13-of-35 passes for 70 yards, was intercepted four times, sacked five times and watched his own receivers drop six passes.

"I'd have to think a long time before I could say anything good about the offense," said Coach J.D. Roberts. "We just didn't move the ball. What more can you say?"

Not much. San Francisco quarterback John Brodie threw two touchdown passes, Vic Washington ran four yards for another score, and Bruce Gossett kicked field goals of 14, 16 and 27 yards as the Forty Niners riddled the Saints defense.

Brodie's touchdown passes went to Gene Washington late in the third period and Ted Kwalick with 10:55 left in the game, and were followed by a 32-yard touchdown return by Mike Simpson in the fading minutes of the game, Washington's four-yard run in the first period, and Gossett's three field goals and four extra points.

The Saints' only score came in the third quarter on a safety resulting from a Jim McCann punt blocked by New Orleans' Joe Williams.

San Francisco wide receiver Dick Witcher called the victory "a big win for us—number one because it's a conference game and second because they're (the Saints) not what you'd call a tough team to beat and in the past we haven't played as well as we could against these type teams."

The loss left the Saints winless at 0-3 while boosting San Francisco's record to 2-1.

DOWN YOU GO — Scott Logan (32) of Terra Linda High School, looking like a wrestler going for a pin, threw ballcarrier Mark Magers of Novato to the ground Saturday night for a short gain, while Trojans Rich Nicholes (30) and Steve Withers (36) rushed up to give support. Novato won, 15-14, in a key Marin County Athletic League football game at San Rafael High.

AFTER TIE, 17-17

Chargers Glad, Raiders Sad With Tie In Oakland

OAKLAND (UPI)—They say in pro football that a tie is like a kiss from your sister.

Well the 17-17 standoff the San Diego Chargers and Oakland Raiders played to Sunday didn't quite measure up.

The Chargers, who started the season with a disastrous loss to the San Francisco Forty Niners, seemed more than happy with the tie, while the Raiders seemed down and out.

"If we had a minute left and the ball in our hands," growled John Madden, the Raiders' coach, "I'll guarantee we would have gone for a victory."

What Madden was referring to was the situation that existed after George Blanda missed a 37-yard field goal—a kick that could have given the Raiders a 20-17 victory. The Chargers took over with 1:08 remaining and ran off three running plays, seemingly content to have the clock work its way down to the final gun with the ball in their possession.

Harland Svare, the San Diego coach who is trying to rebuild his club into a contender after years of ineptitude, didn't want to talk about the tie but the smile on his face told it all.

You couldn't blame Svare all that much because a foulup, which he called an "administrative error," almost gave the Raiders the game. When you come that close to losing, sud-

San Marin Beats Drake In Football

In a game in which touchdown passes and penalty flags wafted through the air in about equal numbers, San Marin High School got more of the former and less of the latter Saturday afternoon and defeated Drake, 28-19.

The two teams combined for 395 yards passing, and three different quarterbacks threw five touchdown passes, including such exotic distances as 79, 61, 50 and 30 yards. However, the rivals were hit for a joint 200 yards on 19 infractions, with 105 of the yards belonging to Drake.

The victory before about 1,500 fans at Novato High game surprising San Marin a 3-0 record and a share of the Marin County Athletic League lead at 1-0. Drake is 0-3 and 0-1.

"I thought Greg Pater made some key receptions for us," said San Marin coach Bob Martin. The junior split end, who stands only 5-foot-6 and weighs just 15) pounds, caught four passes for 138 yards and a 50-yard score.

San Marim used two quarterbacks, both left handed and both efficient. Starter Hoza Wright achieved the first three touchdowns, including two within 1:02 in the third quarter to give the Mustangs a 22-7 lead, and reserve Mark Moore tossed for the other score.

"I removed Wright (in the third quarter) so I could use him on defense," said Martin, mindful that Wright was an all-league defensive back last year. "Moore is a good quarterback, and he did a good job."

The first time San Marin got the ball, Wright fired 36 yards to Pater for a big gain, and then 30 yards to sophomore wingback Wayne Roach for a touchdown.

In the second quarter, Drake quarterback Tom MacAusland (who threw for 221 yards) rifled a 79-yard score to flanker Dan Trimble, and the margin was cut to 8-7, San Marin, at halftime.

TARS TOP SIERRA, 16-14

Marin Snaps 16-Game Loss String

It's over.

College of Marin, which had seen its footall losing streak grow like some kind of monster to 16 games and 719 days, Saturday said "enough" and rose up to defeat Sierra College in Rocklin, 16-14.

Due Bessee caught a 28-yard pass from Kevin Donohoe midway through the third quarter to provide the winning touchdown, culminating a 65-yard, eight-play drive.

It was a costly score. Bessee was hit after he crossed the goal line, suffered a broken ankle, and will be out for the year.

Although John Loane kicked a 22-yard field goal, the Tars trailed in the second quarter, 14-3, when they got a break. Donohoe's desperation pass with 13 seconds left went off Bob Daniele's hand, was touched by a defensive player, and caught by Neal Given for a 41-yard touchdown.

"I was really pleased with the play of (linebackers) Chris Fenton and Leo Fahy, (tackle) Pat Karinen, (safety) Mike Massolletta and (end) Bessee on defense," said Read. Massolletta broke his nose during the game, but is expected to play next week.

Marin moved inside the Sierra 20 four times in the first half, but couldn't score, and had another T.D. called back on a penalty. Sierra also had a score whistled back.

The last Tar victory came Oct. 10, 1970, a 39-13 romp over San Joaquin Delta ok Stockton. Marin was 0-9 last season.

Boston-Detroit Series Slated To Decide A.L. East Champion

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Say a word for the American League schedule makers—and another for Bowie Kuhn and Marvin Miller.

The season has come down to winning two of the next three games for Boston and Detroit, which meet head on at Tiger Stadium tonight, tommorrow night and Wednesday afternoon —certainly a schedule maker's dream.

But remember, too, what Commissioner Kuhn and player representative Miller did last spring when the national game was mired in its first baseball strike. They, the owners and the players, desperate to get on with the season, decided to cancel all games up to the point of the settlement and have the teams play uneven schedules.

That decision may now cost Boston the AL East pennant.

Should the Red Sox win only one of its three games against the Tigers, both clubs will finish with 70 losses. But because Detroit will have played one more game than Boston the Tigers, with a half-game advantage in the win column, will go into the playoffs against West Division champion Oakland. Only a sweep by the Tigers can allay the notion that an even schedule would have meant a pennant tie, if not a Boston pennant.

Baltimore is out of the race but the Orioles were very much part of it Sunday as they de-

Newcombe Is Redwood Tennis King

ALAMO, Calif. (UPI)—John Newcombe of Australia increased his tour earnings to $78,000 Sunday as he defeated Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-1, 6-1, 7-5, in the singles finals of the Redwood Bank International Open Tennis Tournament.

"I can't play much better than I did in the first two sets," Newcombe said after he won $10,000 for the tournament. He took the sets with errorless ease but Drysdale, who won $5,000 for second place, didn't see. "I really didn't notice if Newcombe was playing that well," he said. "When you're playing as dismally as I was, you concentrate on your own game."

Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., defeated Ismaiel El Shafei of Egypt and Brian Fairlie of Australia by scores of 7-6, 6-4 to take the doubles championship.

FOR THE A'S

Holtzman Gets 19th In Win Over Royals

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Ken Holtzman, who could win only nine of 24 games last season, pitched his 19th victory of this season Sunday for the Oakland Athletics, beating the Kansas City Royals 4-2.

Holtzman, who was traded to the A's by the Chicago Cubs, gave up only four singles in the seven innings he worked. He has lost 11 and probably won't get a chance to pitch again before the playoffs.

Oakland loaded the bases in the ninth on singles by Reggie Jackson and Mike Hegan and a walk to Sal Bando. Tenace then belted a two-run single.

Kansas City scored its first run in the opening inning on a walk, a stolen base and a single. Their other run was in the ninth when Ed Kirkpatrick singled in Steve Hovley. Relief pitcher Bob Locker was working then.

The A's, who have clinched the American League West championship, are idle today and finish off their regular season with Tuesday and Wednesday games at Anaheim against the California Angels.

They will play either Detroit or Boston in a series for the league title starting Saturday in Oakland.

Marathon Runner Dies After Race

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Larry Vollmer, 31, of Eugene, collapsed and died Sunday morning after finishing a halfmarathon (13 miles) here in a race sponsored by the Oregon Track Club.

A doctor on the scene administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation but Vollmer was pronounced dead on arrival at a Eugene hospital.

Marin Catholic Gridders Beaten

The Proctor brothers of Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa proved too much for Marin Catholic High to handle Saturday in Greenbrae.

The Proctors, Bernard and Gil, scored three touchdowns between them as Cardinal Newman blasted the host Wildcats, 31-8, before some 800 disappointed fans.

Sophomore Bernard Proctor scored the first two Cardinal touchdowns, giving the visitors an early 14-0 lead. The first tally was on a 11-yard pass from quarterback Ed Grogans. A few moments later Proctor broke loose around right end for an 80-yard touchdown.

In the next series, Marin put together its best drive. Fullback Russ Knudsen ran the final 18 yards, culminating a 56-yard march by the 'Cats. However, a Gil Proctor 15-yard touchdown run gave the Cards a 21-8 halftime lead and the momentum was back with Cardinal Newman for good.

remaining in the third quarter. When Steve Baldocchi recovered a fumble on Drake's 43 instants later, Wright connected with Roach for 28 yards to set up a five-yard T.D. run by Dave Azevido.

Moore entered at this point, and skillfully directed the Mustangs down to the Drake three before the drive ended in a fumble. On the next series, he permitted no such mistakes, and guided San Marin 61 yards in 11 plays, tossing eight yards to Craig Leaf for the score that put the game out of reach at 28-13.

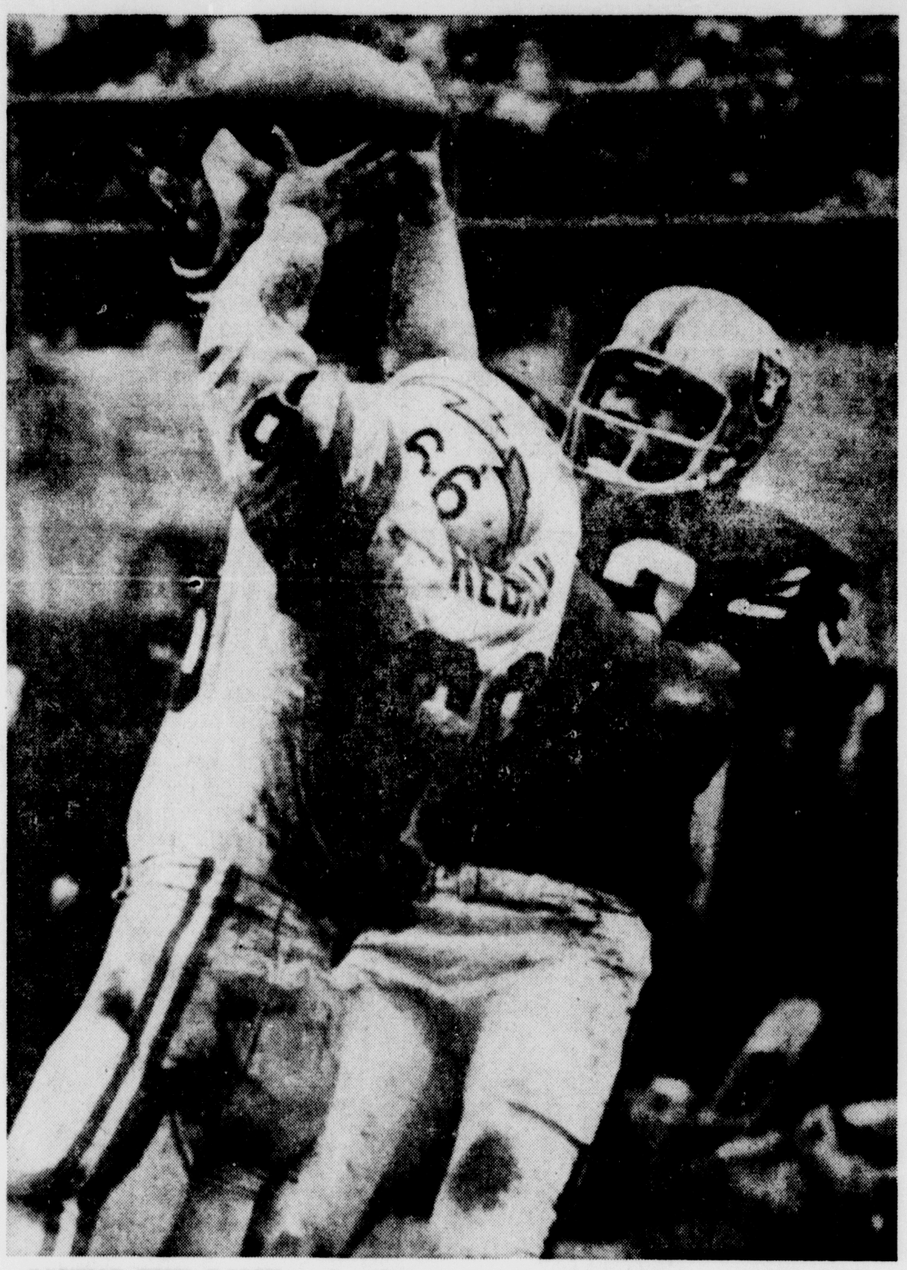
Three Bowl Wins

Penn State's football teams have won three major bowl games in the last four years. The Nittany Lions won in the Orange Bowl in 1969 and 1970, and last Jan. 1 turned back Texas 30-6 in the Cotton Bowl.



SAVING THE GAME — San Diego linebacker Rick Redman (66) virtually saved the day for his team yesterday by knocking down a fourth quarter pass intended for Oakland halfback Charlie Smith in the end zone during the waning moments. The incompletion at the Oakland Coliseum was followed by an unsuccessful 37-yard field goal attempt. Oakland and San Diego tied, 17-17.

RAIDERS

denly a tie looks awfully good.

What happened was this:

The Raiders, with the help of an interference call against Bryan Salter, had the ball on the San Diego 32 and brought on Blanda to boot a 40-yard field goal that tied the score at 17-17 with 4:28 remaining.

San Diego took over on its own 20 but in three plays got as far as the 34. It was fourth and two and the Chargers lined up for the expected punt. But Cid Edwards, the up back, changed the call at the line and took the snap himself with the idea of running for the first down. He didn't make it, giving the Raiders the ball at the 34 with 2:05 left to play.

The fact the play worked earlier in the game and led to the Chargers' nirst touchdowr didn't change the situation one bit in Svare's eyes.

"That was an administrative error," said the San Diego coach. "Edwards, on his own, called the audible, and I almost died. We had the game won and then I thought, we've lost it."

Oakland tried to go in for a touchdown, which would have given the Raiders a victory, but Daryle Lamonica couldn't move the team and Blanda was called in to try for a 37-yard field goal. He missed, his try veering off to the right, and Svare heaved a big sigh of relief on the sidelines.

The Raiders started as if they meant to blow the Chargers off the field. Lamonica hit Raymond Chester with a 23-yard touchdown pass the first time Oakland got the ball and a few minutes later, Marv Hubbard capped a 45 yard, seven play drive, initiated by a fumble recovery by Willie Brown, to make it 14-0.

But the San Diego defense, Svare's pride and joy, stiffened and held off the Raiders except for the field goal Blanda made in the last quarter. The Chargers scored on a one-yard smash by Edwards before the intermission to trail by seven and added a fourth quarter TD, scored by center Carl Mauck when he fell on Edwards' fumble in the end zone, and a 42-yard field goal by Dennis Partee.

Novato Duo Grabs 4th In Synchro Swim

Michelle Foley and Kil Lilly of the Novato Pisceans teamed up with a "Summer of '42" theme to place fourth in duet routines yesterday at the Pacific Association, Amateur Athletic Union Novice Outdoor Synchronized Swimming Championships in the Novato High School pool.

It was the highest placing by any of the Marin County swimmers representing the Pisceans and Dolphins of Marin.

In team competition, Diane Feyh, Laura Stanton, Rita Cunningham, Karlin Clay, Sue Smith and Sheryl James of the Pisceans were fifth, while best showing in solo competition for the Pisceans was made by Michelle Foley, sixth.

Clemente Gets Some Rest After Belting 3,000th Hit

Combined AP & UPI

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Pirate rightfielder Roberto Clemente is taking off the rest of the regular season after becoming the 11th player in the history of major league baseball to collect 3,000 career hits.

"I'm glad it's over," said Clemente after reaching the goal Saturday in the Pirates' 5-0 victory over the New York Mets. "Now I can get some rest."

Clemente's 3,000th hit — a ringing double to left-center — came in the fourth inning off rookie John Matlack. The leadoff blast sparked a three-run inning that pushed the Pirates to victory.

After leaving the contest in the fifth inning, Clemente said he would not play in the Pirates' last three regular season games, resting, instead, for the National League playoffs next weekend.

More Baseball

ARLINGTON, Tex. — Ted Williams resigned Saturday as manager of the Texas Rangers, effective at the end of the season, ending a four-year career at the helm of the team which began when it was based in Washington.

Williams, a Hall-of-Fame slugger, was manager of the year in 1969, but this year saw his young team struggle along with the worst record in the major leagues.

Golf

BETTENDORF, Iowa — Deane Beaman fired a 4-under par 67 Sunday to win the $100,000 Quad Cities Open, finishing with a 72-hole total of 279.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Tommy Bolt Sunday scored his fifth straight victory in the U.S. National Seniors Open Golf Championship.

But Bolt had to come from behind on the final round with a five under par 65 to score a one-stroke victory with a 72-hole total of 274.

By shooting 33-32—65 over the Tropicana Country Club course, Bolt edged J. D. Taylor, the third round leader. Taylor carded 32-36—68 for 275.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Kathy Whitworth just keeps getting richer on the ladies pro golf tour, pocketing first prize money of $3,750 Sunday by winning the Portland Classic to run her 1972 earnings to $56,772.32 and her record pro mark to $335,488.26.

Tennis

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Top-seeded Billie Jean King defeated Margaret Court, 7-6, 6-3, Sunday to win the singles crown in the Virginia Slims Phoenix Thunderbird Tennis Open.

ALBANY — Jimmy Connors Sunday defeated Roscoe Tanner, 6-2, 7-6, to win the $8,000 championship prize in the Golden Gate Pacific Coast Tennis tourney.

St. Vincent, Tomales In Grid Wins

Bede Bolin's two short touchdown dashes led St. Vincent High School of Petaluma to its first football victory of the season Saturday night, 20-13, over visiting Middletown, a non-league foe.

In other weekend Southern Sonoma football action, Tomales also got its first victory with a 38-0 pasting of host Clear Lake in a non-league game.

IN PRO FOOTBALL

Miami Unbeaten Team

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

And now there is only one.

Six teams entered Sunday's National Football League action undefeated and when all the passing, running, kicking and fumbling was over, only one remained — but just barely.

The Miami Dolphins are the only unbeaten team in the NFL today after Bob Griese threw a three-yard touchdown pass to reserve tight end Jim Mandich with 1:28 remaining Sunday for a 16-14 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

The Dolphins rallied from a 14-6 deficit in the final period on Garo Yepremian's 51-yard field goal, his third of the game, and Griese's TD pass. But the biggest play involved a Minnesota player, sub defensive tackle Bob Lurtsema, who incurred a 15-yard penalty for roughing the passer when the Vikings apparently had stopped Miami's final drive.

Minnesota led 14-10 when Griese's pass intended for Paul Warfield nearly was intercepted by Bobby Bryant on a second-and-eight situation but Lurtsema was flagged for hauling down Griese after the pass.

Miami's victory gave the Dolphins undisputed possession of first place in the American Conference East since the Houston Oilers knocked off the previously unbeaten New York Jets 26-20. Green Bay dumped Dallas 16-13, Cleveland clubbed Cincittati 27-6, New England stunned Washington 24-23 and Atlanta crushed Los Angeles 31-3 to take care of the remaining unbeatens.

Elsewhere, Kansas City ripped Denver 45-24, San Francisco clobbered New Orleans 37-2, Detroit bombed Chicago 38-24, Baltimore blanked Buffalo 17-0, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 25-19 and Oakland tied San Diego 17-17. The New York Giants are at Philadelphia tonight.

Dan Pastorini led Houston to two first half TDs and the Oilers converted Jet miscues into four field goals by Skip Butler in the second half to upset heavily-favored New York.

Leroy Kelly ran for one TD and Mike Phipps passed 68 yards to Frank Pitts for another as Cleveland stunned Cincinnati and former coach Paul Brown.

Jim Plunkett threw a 24-yard TD pass to rookie Josh Ashton with 4:12 remaining for the winning score and Curt Knight missed two short field goals in the last minute and a half. Knight did connect on a field goal that would have tied the score at 24-24 but the Redskins took a roughing the kicker penalty instead and were unable to move. A safety accounted for Washington's final two points.

Dave Hampton and Art Malone rushed for 264 yards as the Falcons beat Los Angeles for the first time. Hampton had a 56-yard TD run, Bob Berry threw 38 yards to Ken Burrow for another score and Tommy Nobis returned an interception 29 yards for a third TF to highlight the rout.

Mike Livingston, subbing for the injured Len Dawson, threw three TD passes in the second half to lead the Chiefs over Denver and John Brodie's two TD passes sparked San Francisco over the Saints.

Quarterback Greg Landry ran for three scores as the Lions whipped Chicago and John Unitas passed for one score and set up Sam Havrilak's run for another as Baltimore shut out the Bills for the third straight time.

AFTER 6-2 WIN

Giants Nearing End Of Season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants close out season play with a two-game series beginning Tuesday against the San Diego Padres on the heels of a three-game sweep of the Atlanta Braves.

Sam McDowell, "just getting by with junk" for the last four innings, led the Giants to a 6-2 victory for the Braves Sunday afternoon. He pitched seven innings and allowed five hits before being relieved by rookie Elias Sosa in the eighth.

The veteran pitcher had arm trouble for much of the season, but has won his last two starts to boost his current record to 10-8.

"I had real great stuff early, but my arm was dead over the last four innings," McDowell said following the Atlanta game. "I was just getting by with junk but fortunately I had very good control and was able to pitch to spots."

Gary Matthews drove in a pair of runs with a homer and a single and Dave Rader added a two-run single for San Francisco. The Giants jumped on loser George Stone for two runs in the first, with Chris Speier and Matthews belting run-scoring singles.

Jim Willoughby (6-4) was scheduled to start from the mound Tuesday and Ron Bryant (13-7) was expected to get the nod for the final game on Wednesday.

St. Louis Wins, 4-1

The St. Louis University soccer team scored three goals in the first half Saturday afternoon and went on to defeat the University of San Francisco. It was the second straight loss to St. Louis for USF, which fell last Thursday at San Rafael High, 1-0.

GOLF TITLE IN NOVATO TO RANDIG

Al Randig, who is a machinist in his shop in San Mateo and a machine on the golf course in Novato, yesterday won the Indian Valley men's championship with a 6-and-5 victory over Lloyd Abrams of Novato.

Randig, a member of the club for some 10 years, won his first championship. He was runner-up last year and represented Indian Valley in the county Tournament of Champions, finishing third.

Donohue Takes Cup Series Race

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Mark Donohue's recovery meant a very serious setback to Team McLaren Sunday when the veteran from Newton Square, Pa., won the $75,000 Canadian-American Challenge Cup series event at Edmonton International Raceway.

Donohue, who injured his left leg back in June while making practice runs for the Road Atlanta event, won his first Can-Am race this season for the Roger Penske group and set a track record in the process.

Donohue guided his turbo-charged Porsche 917-10 to an average speed of 109.87 miles an hour as he covered the 200 mile, 80-lap course in one hour, 50 minutes and 26.091 seconds to better Denis Hulme's previous best of 105.84 m.p.h.

The win, coming in the seventh of nine Can-Am races this year, put a serious crimp in Team McLaren's ability to continue a dominance of the series that extends back to 1966, its inaugural year.

Donohue, who took the lead for good from Hulme on the 31st lap before a record crowd of 30,000, said afterward it was good to see the Porsches ending the domination of the Can-Am series by Team McLaren. "They've had it their way for so many years. This is a good thing for the series."

Petty averaged 95.816 m.p.h. in his blue Plymouth as he won for the eighth time on the North Wilkesboro track. His last previous victory at the circuit occured last April in the Gwyn Staley 400.

The victory was worth $30,400 to the 33-year-old Smart.

Stanford To Meet Southern Cal '11'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Just as has been predicted before the season started, the Pacific 8 Conference race comes down to its first "crucial" this Saturday when nationally top-ranked and high-flying Southern California comes to Palo Alto to play Stanford.

The tussle between the two rivals always turns into a grudge match anyway —much as the old baseball Giants and Dodgers rivalry. This time there is the added prize of first place in the Pac 8.

For Southern Cal, unbeaten in four games, it's the first tough test of the year, and the Trojans have all the credentials to make it as meaningful a game as possible, perhaps their biggest of the season.

For Stanford, two-time Pac 8 and Rose Bowl champion, it's the first of two consecutive league games against the best in the conference. Beating USC isn't the whole basket because the following Saturday the Cardinals, now 3-0, play the equally tough Washington Huskies.

USC wiped out visiting Michigan State, 51-6, last Saturday while Stanford held on to beat West Virginia, perhaps the best team in the East this year, 41-35. Washington rolled to its fourth straight without a loss by beating Illinois, 31-11.

In other games involving Pac 8 teams, California lost to Missouri, 34-27, Oregon State beat Brigham Young, 29-3, and Washington State lost to Utah, 44-25. On Friday night, UCLA tied with USC and California for first place in the league race (each 1-0), by burying Oregon, 65-20.

In the PCAA, San Diego State defeated Kent State, 14-0, Los Angeles State defeated Cal Poly Pomona, 31-20, Fresno State upset San Jose State, 23-21, Pacific defeated Montana, 24-6, and Long Beach State lost to Fullerton, 27-17.

Met Rookie Wins

New York Met rookie pitcher Brent Strom won 13 games this season before being called up to the majors. He won seven for Memphis and six for Tidewater, Va.

Old Brown's Furniture Store To Be Complex Of Boutiques

A miniature version of San Francisco's The Cannery and Ghirardelli Square is being planned at 30 Miller Avenue in Mill Valley, across the street from the bus station.

A landmark building, the old Brown's Furniture, is being converted into a modern complex of smart boutiques. The old brick and stucco building will be recycled into a redwood and stained glass center for specialty shops, restaurants and exhibition space.

It will be known as The Old Brown's Store. Unusual features will include a covered parking area for bicycles and hitching posts for horses. Completion is set for early next spring.

Among those that have leased space at The Old Brown's Store are two restaurants; Mom's Apple Grave, specializing in trendy men's and women's clothing; a kitchen gourmet shop; a plant and fish shop; a bicycle corner; candle and garden supply shops; a candy store; and a photo gallery.

An activity center will be devoted to working arts and crafts, ith painters, weavers, sculptors and puppeteers plying their trade.

General contractor on the job is Haas and Haynie Corporation of South San Francisco, whose principals are the developers and owners of The Old Brown's Store. Baker and Co. of Mill Valley are the leasing agents for the building.

Architect William W. Kirsch of Sausalito designed both inside and outside the 20,000-square-foot, two-story building. Co-designer is Barry M. Reischmann of San Rafael.

Mrs. Skov Mrs. Nyquist

BETTY SKOV of Kentfield took over today as manager of Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association's newest branch office at 511 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Greenbrae. She was also elected to the position of assistant vice president in the organization.

Mrs. Skov joined Ross Valley Savings 16 years ago, when she started as a jack-of-all-trades, combining the duties of teller, secretary and clerk.

JACQUELINE NYQUIST of Kentfield has been named loan officer in Wells Fargo Bank's San Rafael office. She was formerly assistant cashier.

Mrs. Nyquist joined Wells Fargo in 1927 in the Livermore office and also served in the San Leandro office before coming to San Rafael. She is a member of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club of Marin, Business and Professional Women's Club of Marin, and the National Association of Bank Women.

SOUTHERN MARIN ALARM Co., a new firm dealing in all types of alarms for business and residential, has opened at 346 Linda Way in Mill Valley.

Owner of the business is Peter S. Cook, who worked for Alert Alarm Co. in Mill Valley for six months and was machinist for Automotive Engineers of San Francisco for 10 years before that.

"We're open 24 hours a day and give free estimates on burglar and fire alarms for homes and businesses," said Cook. He and his family have lived in Mill Valley for 17 years.

ELLIS W. GRANT of Kentfield is new director of sales at the 250-room Marriott Inn at the Berkeley Marina. He will head the convention and banquet division and handle Marriott's total marketing program.

Grant has 12 years of experience in hotels and related fields including service at Cal-Neva Lodge at North Shore in Lake Tahoe, Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, and Hilton Hotels of Chicago and San Francisco. He was also vice president of Hall-Wilson and Associates of San Francisco, a hotel representative firm, for three years.

BERGIS-HAGSTROM Realtors at 85 East Blithedale in Mill Valley announced the appointment of Jack S. Martin of Mill Valley to its sales staff.

A retired military officer, Martin has lived in Mill Valley since 1948 and has had a real estate license since 1964.

THE ROBERT BUTLER Co., a real estate brokerage firm at 60 Mitchell Boulevard, San Rafael, has three new staff members: John Huster, Roger Johnson and Tim McLeod. McLeod's name was inadvertently omitted in the announcement published in this column on Sept. 28.

Like the other two, McLeod is also a college graduate. He did graduate work at the State University of Long Beach where he specialized in real estate. He was mapping editor and mapping consultant for a regional planning firm before entering the real estate field.

T. BRENT BURRELL of Novato will be cited for his sales achievements at a Pacific Coast region conference of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. at Stateline, Nev., this weekend.

TIBURON VINTNERS INC. announced the appointment of Herb W. Jacobs of Atlanta, Ga., to the position of chairman of the executive committee.

Jacobs, who has been associated with Tiburon Vintners since 1967, is also president of the Winston Development Corporation of Atlanta. Tiburon Vintners Inc. is a producer of premium California wines.

THE SAN RAFAEL office of Manpower Inc. has been awarded the company's Power Award for 1972. The award recognizes exceptional sales increases and outstanding service by staff members.

Manpower Inc. in San Rafael is located at 1817 Fourth Street and is managed by Marcia Pettijohn. The organization provides temporary help through its 600 offices worldwide.

POOH COMING TO MARIN — Winnie the Pooh and Eeyore will be at Northgate Mall on Saturday morning, Oct. 14, to help celebrate grand opening of the new Sears store. They will be accompanied by Emily Zinser, Disneyland's worldwide ambassador. Children are invited to breakfast with Pooh at 7:17 a.m. Sears' doors will swing open at 8 a.m.

Prices Low In Early Trading

Stock brokers said the market had reverted to the lackluster pattern it followed since Labor Day and foresaw nothing in the news to counteract the aimlessness. Rising interest rates acted as a depressant, analysts said.

Levitz Furniture was the Big Board's most active issue in the morning and was down more than 3 points to 30 1-4 on 285,300 shares. Levitz President Ralph Levitz said Friday he could not understand why the issue dropped more than 13 points in 23 minutes during the afternoon.

However, on Thursday, after the market closed, Levitz had predicted considerably lower third quarter earnings.

Prices also declined on the American Stock Exchange. Loew's Theater warrants led the list, was off 1-4 to 17 3-4 on 63,200 shares.

Sears At Northgate Opening On Saturday

Sears, Roebuck and Co. will formally open its giant new retail store at Northgate Mall in Terra Linda on Saturday, Oct. 14, at 8 a.m., Manager W. H. Sanders announced today.

Official ceremonies will begin at sunrise, 7:17 a.m., with Winnie-the-Pooh, the Children's Party choice for President, making his first Marin County campaign appearance. A special campaign breakfast will begin at 7:17 a.m. for all children as a benefit fund-raiser for Sunny Hills Children's Home. The Pooh breakfast will cost each child 25 cents, with parents admitted free. All proceeds will benefit Sunny Hills. Tickets may be purchased at the Grape Festival on Saturday, Oct. 7, or on Sears' opening day at the breakfast where Sunny Hills volunteers will staff ticket booths.

An eight-piece Dixieland Band will enterain during breakfast, after which Winnie-the-Pooh, Eeyore and Tigger will be introduced.

At 8 a.m., Pooh will launch an airship from his giant "Hunny Pot" to signify the opening of the 225,000-square-foot Sears store.

All children are eligible to register during the Grand Opening celebration for one of two free family vacation trips to Disneyland. They will also receive a special kit containing Pooh for President helium balloons, Pooh posters, and coloring books.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Old Couple Decides To Exchange Stocks

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife and I are 75 and need extra income. We have been advised to sell some McCormick & Co. (OTC) shares and buy 200 American General Convertible Securities (NYSE). What do you think of this exchange? — B.B.

A. The suggested sale of McCormick, which yields less than 1 per cent, makes good sense for you. However, there are a number of alternative investments returning greater income than American General Convertible Securities Fund. In fact the American General Bond Fund — under the same management — currently yields more than 7 per cent versus an indicated 5 per cent on the Convertible Securities Fund. This particular exchange seems to be a good choice for you and your wife. For suggested income funds send stamped addressed envelope to Roger E. Spear c/o The Independent-Journal.

Q. I own shares of General Public Utilities (NYSE) and Lightolier (OTC). The dividend on the latter was discontinued a year ago. What is the outlook for these two stocks? — F.S.

A. Price action for GPU, as well as the entire utility group, has been sluggish over the past 20 months. With growth prospects for the industry limited by heavy financing requirements and the restrictive attitude of regulatory bodies toward rate adjustments, investors have priced the shares on an income rather than growth basis. In the case of General, rate adjustments allowed in 1971-72 were only a fraction of the amount requested. Furthermore a 14 per cent increase in the number of common shares was reflected in first half earnings comparisons. An additional common share rights offering is in the works for December. However, shares have minimal downside risk.

Threat To Democracy In Countywide Plan

Marin's countywide plan will be given its first public hearing Thursday at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chamber at the Civic Center. We expect there will be much discussion, pro and con, of some of its features.

Aside from its provisions for such things as land use, transportation, environment control, etc., the plan contains a proposal for its own implementation which raises a question of how much democracy its creators think Marin should have.

THE CITY-COUNTY Planning Council and county planning department, creators of the plan, put it this way:

"If the plan is to be fulfilled, each of the 12 governments in the CCPC must assign a part of its authority to the council."

These 12 governments are the county and the 11 cities.

The description continues, becoming more specific:

"The council would need to establish a countywide review agency. This agency, made up of council members, would have the final say about developments that matter, not just to the local community, but to all Marin. The agency could reject such proposals, or modify them to make them fit the plan."

There you have it!

THE CITY-COUNTY Planning Council is an appointive body, with some members appointed by the county and some by the cities. Some of its members are elected officials — city councilmen, county supervisors. A majority are not.

The countywide plan proposal would give this appointed body the power to designate some of its own members as a supergovernment with veto power over any development proposal which "mattered to all Marin." The decision as to whether John Jones's new home or By-Cheep Stores new supermarket "mattered to all Marin" would lie within the council. And, since the county planning department is advisory to the council, it would lie also within the county planning department.

The result of such a procedure would likely be chaos. To make it work, the simple way would be to abolish the cities' planning departments.

WHETHER IT could be made to work is not the key issue, however. Maybe it could. But, with such a procedure, what happens to democracy?

The residents of a city elect a city council, with power to over-rule all its appointive boards. The residents of a county elect a board of supervisors, with power to over-rule all its appointive boards.

Yet, under the countywide plan proposal, a board created by an appointive board — two steps removed from the elective process — would have power over the elected city councils and board of supervisors. Its say would be final.

If this is democracy, so was Hitler's "national socialism."

Dear Intelligent Reader

Computers and copiers have made us all objects of flagrant flattery. Almost every day, we receive letters and offers through the mail which are basically appeals to the ego.

For example, because we subscribe to three business magazines, such as an invalid might subscribe to sports magazines, we find ourself the uneasy recipient of letters praising our executive ability and investment skill, and offering tax shelters for those in the $100,000 annual income bracket.

Other letters praise our discrimination in the arts and appreciation of fine music. (All this and we can't even sing do-re-mi on key!)

We are regularly hailed as Dear Fellow Scientist, Dear Concerned Democrat, Dear Concerned Republican, Dear Upholder of America's Morals. No less a personage than William F. Buckley, Jr., through his computer, addressed us as Dear Intelligent American.

If we believe our mail, we are a very special breed.

COASTLINE INITIATIVE

Proposition 20 Support Weak In Populous South

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Living in Marin makes it too easy to assume that fervor for the coastal initiative is statewide.

Judging from the petition campaign that put the initiative on the Nov. 7 ballot, however, the drive to collect signatures did poorly in the five Soutern California counties which have 54.6 per cent of the state's registered voters.

The campaign drew most of its support from the Bay Area, with Marin turning in 13,818 valid signatures — the biggest tally for an initiative in this county in the memory of election officials. Marin also topped all other counties in the percentage (13. of voters who signed the petition.

If this unbalanced response to the drive was a measure of voter support, the proposal is in trouble. And these results were before the massive campaign was mounted against the measure.

THE PETITION needed 325,504 signatures to get on the ballot. Its supporters got 403,815, not counting the 13,518 which San Francisco officials lost until after the qualification deadline.

The nine Bay Area counties, with only 24 per cent of the state's voters, produced 42 per cent of the signatures that pushed the measure onto the ballot. The five big Southern California counties provided only 40.4 per cent, with most of the rest coming from Santa Cruz, Yolo and Sacramento counties.

The explanation for the heavy counts in Yolo and Sacramento was the strong support by university and college students.

In marked contrast to the 13 per cent of voters signing the petition in Marin, the average percentage in the five Southern California counties was under 3 per cent. The five are Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego.

The measure, Proposition 20, would create commissions to plan for the orderly use of the coastline. They would have veto power to stop any project along a 1,000-yard-wide coastal belt during the four years given to draft their plan.

The moratorium on continued scarring of the coastline would be temporary — contrary to scare stories promoted by opponents of the proposition. It would be up to the state Legislature to act on the plan when completed in 1976.

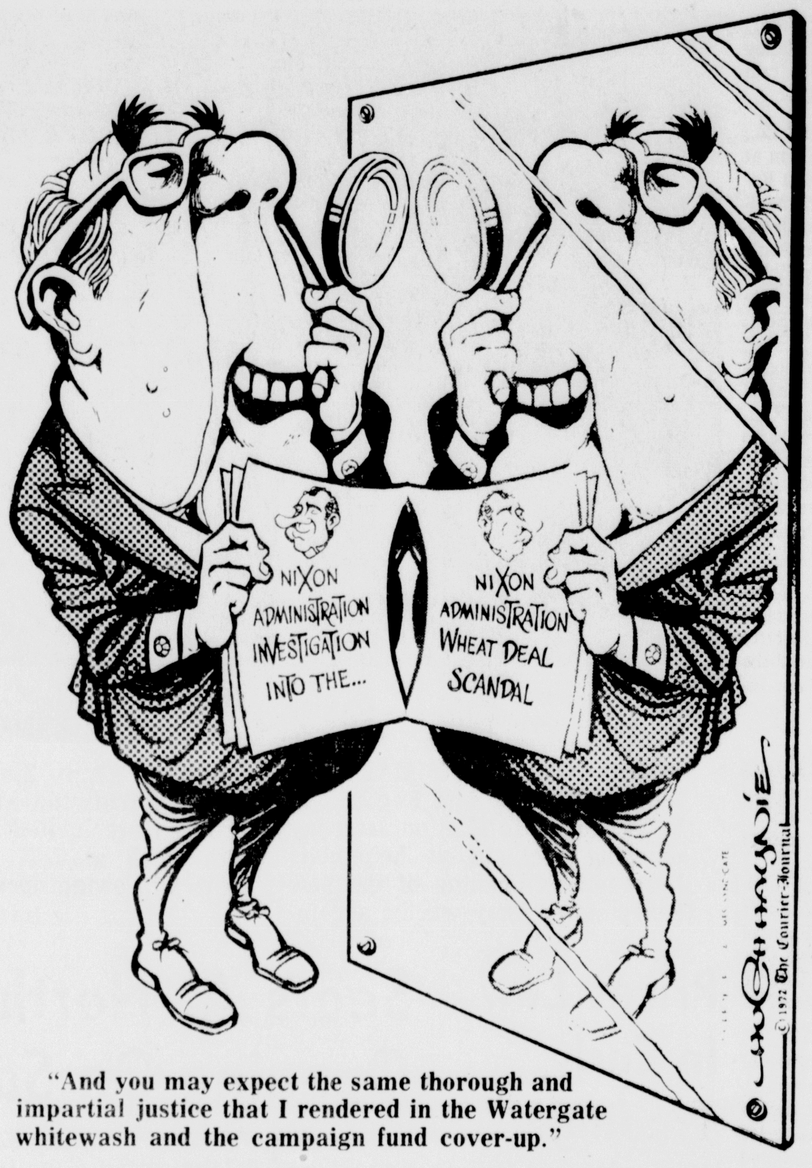
WE WERE LESS than impressed with the sense of fairness shown last week by the Marin Council for Civic Affairs when it tackled the issue of making an endorsement in the Second Supervisorial District race between incumbent Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and challenger Barbara Boxer.

Arrigoni and his campaign coordinator understandably were asked to leave when council directors began debating the issue. Not so Mrs. Boxer's husband, Stewart, who happens to be a council director.

He not only was not asked to leave, but argued for and defended his wife's platform. He also provided the swing vote to force balloting on the two candidates.

No one was present to speak for Arrigoni. The council's failure to get the necessary two-thirds majority to make an endorsement did not make the arrangement any fairer.

"Good evening, my fellow Americans! Unaccustomed as I am to complacent speaking. . "



"And you may expect the same thorough and impartial justice that I rendered in the Watergate whitewash and the campaign fund cover-up."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

How Long Does It Take To Know Marin County?

Good grief! How long does one have to live in Marin to get the feel of Marin? Three generations? Why doesn't Ann Dwyer attend a candidates' night where she can compare Mrs. Boxer's knowledge of Marin with the incumbent's?

True Tax Relief And Watson Initiative

It is important for homeowners over 62 years of age to realize that there is the possibility of a refund on their property taxes every year, if their household income is less than $10,000 per year. The application forms may be obtained at the Assessor's Office, Civic Center, San Rafael, and must be completed and returned not later than Oct. 15. Refunds range from 4 per cent to 96 per cent as income ranges from $10,000 down to $1,000 per year.

This genuine tax relief for senior citizens is in sharp contrast to the phony promises of Proposition 14, the Watson Amendment, on which we must vote Nov. 7. As voters read the pros and cons of this proposition, they should realize that over 70 per cent of property taxes are paid by business and non-residential property owners, with single-family homeowners paying less than a third of the total. This helps put the arguments in proper perspective.

Reader Poses Questions For Lunching Officials

Just a few questions to Councilmen Miskimen, Barbier, and City Manager McCown. And, before I ask them, let me say loud and clear that I have never considered it necessary for public officials, who, as a rule, have fairly good salaries (they see to it every chance they get!) to be wined and dined at the taxpayer's expense.

Do these men, when dining out with their wives at their own expense, opt for places like Harry's Hamburger Heaven or the Doggie Diner? Marin County is not all that far from San Francisco that these men, or their wives, cannot have read or heard about restaurants such as Julius' Castle. Let's just thank God they weren't naive enough to wander into the Blue Fox!

As for the possibility of once again having to "suffer" cold banquet food. How sad! I presume they have read, or heard somewhere, that two-thirds of the world goes to bed hungry at night.

The story is not only disgusting, it's maddening!

Thank you for the food stamp story. As the wife of a man who earned a very adequate living despite his blindness, I'm not too sympathetic to the young and strong asking food stamps.

Lamaze Not Clinic, Does Not Counsel

Re: "Purpose of Lamaze Clinic," I-J, Sept. 8:

We are a center of family growth, including the following services: (1) couple and family therapy, (2) Gestalt dream groups, (3) prenatal yoga, and our (4) Pavlov-Lamaze childbirth classes. We do not consider ourselves a clinic and we definitely do not counsel. No time in our interview with Karen Peterson did we refer to ourselves as a "clinic" or to "counseling." There are several other misrepresentations which we shall now set straight.

Firstly we have one beautiful child. Secondly we live in Cotati, very near Penngrove but nevertheless Cotati. I would correct the "pregnancy is effort" to childbirth is effort —pregnancy is progesterone bliss if the woman is eating well, practicing prenatal yoga and part of a loving relationship with people. . .

Officials' Luncheons Small Item, But. . -

The idea of these gentlemen spending that much money for lunch is absoolutely scandalous. These very same councilmen refused wage increases to policemen and firemen and yet think nothing of spending a ridiculous amount of money on their lunches. Granted, the money is in the budget — as Councilman Harry Barbier told me on the phone on the evening of Sept. 15, and they are entitled to use this money —but ask yourself: who budgets the luncheons expenses for the councilmen? They do this themselves and Councilman Barbier is also on the finance committee as is Councilman Miskimen — in fact, they are the only two on the committee.

I'm sure if they cut expenses and turned any left over funds from their expense account back to the city (and us the taxpayers) it would not upset the budget or the accounting system. It might even put them in a better light with the taxpayers as we would see that each man is making a personal effort to conserve our finances.

As these men represent the City of San Rafael, I propose all luncheons and/or dinners at the taxpayers expense should be held in the City of San Rafael. If they are really as concerned about our city as they claim to be, why not put the revenue into our local restaurants?. . .

I urge all San Rafael taxpayers not to forget this incident on the part of our councilmen and to protest such expenses at the next budget hearings. . .

TODAY'S WORLD

"Beats moonlighting!"

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Defensive driving means handling your car as though all the other autos on the highway had McGovern stickers on their bumpers.

Those Democrats can't help swerving to the left. Even when they signal right.

Which president do they mean? The head of the AFL-CIO? Or the president of your local PTA?

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Both Sides Want Settlement Of Long-Ended War In Korea

The United Nations passes, but the decision to keep Korea off the U.N. agenda is a help, not a hindrance, to the negotiations now in progress between South and North Korea.

Both sides want a settlement to the war which ended 19 years ago.

The goal is unification. It can come only in stages. First, a nonaggression pact. Next, joint economic undertakings.

Neither side wants to be ruled by the other. Some form of federation could be the answer.

THE SOVIET UNION IS IN TROUBLE. Not desperate trouble, but very serious trouble.

The trouble stems from two years of bad crops and bad agricultural management and it extends throughout the whole Russian economy.

The consequences spread. The Kremlin now has to use precious billions of dollars in hard currency or gold to buy American and Canadian wheat. This takes funds from the financing of vital parts of the current five-year plan, which is faltering. It also drains resources from Soviet foreign aid used to implement their foreign policy.

IF ELECTED, NIXON'S GREATEST WORRY. The federal budget is getting dangerously out of control and there is no assurance that a ceiling on spending can be made to stick.

The Nixon budget is headed for its third multibillion-dollar deficit. Each year the deficit is getting bigger. The fiscal '73 deficit was projected to be $25 billion. It will now mount to at least $31 billion.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns warns: "The propensity to spend more than we are prepared to finance through taxes is becoming deep-seated and ominous."

McGOVERN'S NEW CONCERN — THE UNDECIDED VOTE. It's unusually low; from McGovern's standpoint, dangerously low.

The Gallup poll shows the undecideds at 6 per cent. The earlier polls showed 12 per cent. It would be easier for the Democratic nominee to draw from the undecideds than from those once committed.

DO POLLS CREATE A BANDWAGON? The leading pollsters, George Gallup and Louis Harris, say no and the evidence supports them.

The elections of 1936 and 1948 seem conclusive. In 1936, the Literary Digest week after week kept predicting a Landon victory. It didn't promote one. All the polls in 1948 kept forecasting Truman's defeat. Truman's strength kept going up.

The polls don't make voters; voters make the polls.

CONNALLY — NIXON'S GREAT ASSET. The former Texas Democratic governor and former Nixon secretary of the treasury is thus far doing more to re-elect the Prsident than anyone else.

He is piling up the McGovern defectors and he is being greatly assisted by George Christian, who was Johnson's last White House press secretary.

Connally is providing the momentum and the rationale for leading Democrats to break party ranks publicly and thus pave the way for others to do so privately.

Action To Save National Parks Can't Wait On Congressmen

WASHINGTON — From the Everglades to the Olympic Peninsula and at points beyond and in between, you can almost hear the alligators, laurel, bears, mangrove, moose, aspen, herons and their friends breathing a collective happy sigh now that most of the people and their cars are gone until spring. But their relief is highly conditional.

Along the crest of the Blue Ridge, for example, mid-October is the time of bumper-to-bumper traffic, when city dwellers delight in the reds and golds of the Shenandoah National Park without ever setting foot on the ground. And without important exception, every national park in America has become less wild and more paved in the past decade, more accommodating to the portable television-truck camper set than to the mountains, shores and living things that nominated them as parks in the first place.

The democratic-sounding watchword, "the parks are for the people," has come to mean the parks are for the automobile, because people not only tend to arrive at the parks in automobils, most of them do not want to leave their automobiles when they get there. Once on hand, they are less interested in scenery and wildlife than in parking spaces for their campers, coin laundries and organized fun and games. The result is that the parks are overrun with asphalt and carbon monoxide, created for and by cheek-to-jowl people who might as well be that way on a supermarket parking lot — which is what the parks will be if the trend goes on at the pace of the postwar years.

REALIZING HOW FAST things were moving in that direction, the National Park Service commissioned a study on the park system's future carried out by the Conservation Foundation. Its recommendations are both urgent and eminently sensible, and although they have been public barely two weeks, they already are the center of controversy.

The report calls for acquisition of major new parklands near big cities, and restoring some abused industrial or strip-mined areas, for instance, as future parks. No serious argument there. It also goes into park financing, hunting and fishing regulations, the special opportunities in relatively unspoiled Alaska. But what runs up the red flag are its proposals concerning automobile access, park concessions and services, and wilderness areas.

To no one's surprise for a group entitled the Conservation Foundation, it called for sharply curtailed auto use, moving most concessions outside park boundaries and keeping wilderness areas wild. It is blindingly clear that only thus will the parks be preserved as a unique national asset, rather than a vast chain of national parking lots. The value of the report is not merely that it reaches that conclusion — that is familar to everyone who is aware of the parks' plight and cares about it. The report gets there, however, by hammering at an extremely logical point about park use.

The key phrase is that visitors should be willing to experience a national park "on its terms rather than theirs." A park, in the beginning, was a piece of real estate precious for itself. The first one, 100 years ago, was Yellowstone, which meant mountains, geysers, bears and other wildlife in approximately their natural state.

FOR DECADE after decade, people went to Yellowstone, Yosemite, the Great Smokies and the other parks and only gradually "civilized" them in the process. At that rate, relatively unrestricted use could have continued for many more generations without threatening destruction of the parks. But in the past decade, national affluence has sent unpredicted hordes of visitors with much more equipment and money into every park in the system — and with most of them demanding to use the parks on their terms.

That means with campers, toilet and water hookups, laundromats, motels, bars, electric outlets, parking spaces and paved access to once remote sites. The National Park Service, religiously following its "the parks are for the people" policy, catered to those demands. The success of individual park management came to be measured more in number of bodies clocked through entrance points than in the condition of the lands held in trust. The proliferation of concessions and services has drawn more customers, past the overflow point which then demands more concessions and services, in a menacing circle.

That circle must be broken. The recommendations presented to the National Park Service are not just the agenda for a constructive and leisurely national debate. They are instead a mandatory course if the parks are to survive as parks. Yet already, we have some statesmen — such as Republican Representatives John Saylor and Joseph McDade of Pennsylvania and Joe Skubitz of Kansas — all in a snit because outsiders are trying to tell Congress what to do about the parks. Boiled down, their stand is that congressmen know best because they have to be elected every two years.

If the road to re-election is paved across the national parks, why that is already established in the american tradiiton.

Authoritarian vs. Libertarian: A Strange Crossing Of Paths

"Do manners, and etiquette, still exist?" Elizabeth Post has asked with a touch of well-bred anguish.

As the wife of Emily Post's grandson and the author of "The Wonderful World of Weddings," Mrs. Post (one would expect) might answer her rhetorical question with the thundering "Yes" of an Oscar Wilde dowager. Instead, the best she can seem to manage is a sort of weak "Maybe."

"Please, Say Please" begs the title of her new book. And it's all downhill from there in this game but rather wobbly parent's advisory service subtitled: "A Common Sense Guide to Bringing Up Your Child."

SHOULD A PARENT ever say "No!" or "Don't!"? Mrs. Post circles the question cautiously and comes up with one or two cases when these categorical imperatives may be called for. After all, a child "simply cannot put his fingers into an electrical outlet or jump into water that is over his head."

Apart from these extreme cases, apparently, authority is out. The parent must strive for "rapport" and "mutual respect." "Orders" can "only lead to resistance and rebellion."

Exactly how you fold your napkin or acknowledge an introduction — "these questions simply do not seem terribly important anymore," Mrs. Post confesses, surrendering to the Zeitgeist. "What is right for the times," she concludes, "becomes part of etiquette," and the times stress "informality," "Naturalness."

WHAT WOULD EMILY say, with her commanding dicta about "This Way, Not This"? But Emily is no longer the authority one fears; that authority, of course, is now one's child. Mrs. Post is chilling about the fate of a parent who tries to pull his rank. "The smallest toddler's preception is very keen," she warns. His "steady, questioning gaze" will see right through you.

From this scene of abject humiliation (is there a more pitiable sight than a parent being seen through?) let us shift quickly to an experimental kindergarten "somewhere in the Rockies." A New Zealan er named Sylvia Ashton-Warner, who may never have heard of Elizabeth Post (or even Emily), is hard at work with a little avant-garde band of five-year-olds, trying to prove out her theories of "organic" education.

"Spiritually speaking," Mrs. Ashton-Warner intones, "millions of children are murdered annually" by "authoritarian" teachers who fail to appreciate the purpose of education: to keep a child "as interesting as he was when he was born." The rhetoric has a nice familiar shrillness -- for though teachers are taught never to raise their voices, most educational theorists seem to operate at a shout these days.

But "somewhere in the Rockies," among all those sandboxes, Utopia gets horribly smeared with peanut butter and jelly. In "Spearpoint," Mrs. Ashton-Warner tries to explain to herself how junior-paradise went wrong.

AFTER SEVEN months of avoiding dirty words like "discipline" (or even "coax" and "suggest"), she comes to a shattering conclusion: Equality means inverted authority. In her self-propelled classes, the children with their cries of "wanna"-"dowanna" become the tyrants.

As her Montys, Rockys, Odiles, and Candys whack the piano, throw clay, and slam down their Cuisenaire rods in the face of her resolutely fixed smile, Mrs. Ashton-Warner decides: "The collective energy in a group of children" may be "at its best sympathy" but "at its worst mob-rule."

Mrs. Ashton-Warner remains loyal to her original ideal of "a perfect open school, providing both learning and freedom." But at the end of her experiment she sums up: "There can be vanity and danger in inspiration alone."

Having tried total spontaneity, she wonders, in fact, if it may not be hostile to genuine feeling. "Our child no longer feels with love or with hatred," she reports of her little anarchists. "He does not feel at all."

Her thesis seems to abstract the curiosly old-fashioned copybook lesson: Personal freedom is good. But it doesn't necessarily follow: the more freedom, the better.

And so ex-authoritarians and ex-libertarians cross paths on the way to new permissiveness, on the way back to old disciplines. And so Mrs. Post, the onetime arbiter, compassionately advises parents not to "aim too high." And so Mrs. Ashton-Warner, the one-time advocate of "creative" anarchy, ends up proclaiming: "Life is authority. You've got to pay for life. Take what you want from life but pay for it."

Lesson Learned In F86 Tragedy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —On a balmy Sunday afternoon one week ago partying children and parents ordered a "zoo" at Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour, known as "the happy place."

Two young men in gay nineties costumes served the sumptuous concoction, so huge it was brought in on a "stretcher." It was 11 flavors of ice cream and sherbert heaped with five different syrup toppings, whipped cream, nuts and cherries.

Bells rang, whistles blew and sirens wailed when the $8.50 treat was served.

When the screaming and moaning partygoers looked up, they saw an inferno created by an F86 Sabrejet which crashed and burned after an aborted takeoff from an air show.

Twenty-two people, including a dozen children, were killed in the tragedy, the worst of its type in U.S. history.

If there is one lesson to be learned from the horrible calamity, officials in the California capital say, it is that local authorities around the nation should refuse to permit developers to encroach near airports with shopping centers or residential areas.

The runway which the Sabrejet used was aimed directly at the ill-fated ice cream parlor and ended only a few hundred feet from a shopping center and homes.

"There are situations just like this all over the country," said Patrick Melarkey, chairman of the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors.

"You talk about the things to do to prevent this kind of thing —like moving schools and playgrounds out of the paths of airplanes—and people call you a kook," said Sacramento Fire Chief Winston Wilson as he stood amid fire hoses and grime while looking into the parlor's charred ruins, an hour after the bodies had been removed.

"It's unfortunate that it takes tragedies like this to stiffen the resolve of public officials to turn down greedy land developers who would build a service station in the middle of a runway if they could get $50 for it," Melarkey added.

Although it may be many weeks before the specific cause of the tragedy will be known, the makings of the misfortune actually began eight years ago.

Donald Smith was the manager of the Sacramento Executive Airport then. "I first tried to get the city to purchase that land," he said. "I thought we should have it as a clear zone in front of that runway."

The California Division of Aeronautics echoed Smith, but city officials overruled them. "It was a big section and the land was valuable," Smith explained. "It was a financial situation at the time."

"All of a sudden I saw tables flying out of the back room," said Christi Kiehn, 12, whose family had ordered the "zoo." "The wood poles started breaking and everything started floating all over the place."

One family of four was wiped out. Nine members of three interrelated families were killed, leaving two orphaned youngsters.

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry," said Bingham as he was rescued from the burning plane.

'Welfare Load Down' After First Year

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan marked the first anniversary of passage of his welfare reform program Saturday by claiming the changes had succeeded in reducing the number of welfare cases n California while they went up elsewhere in the country.

The reform package sponsored by the governor passed the legislature a year ago but did not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1972 —and some parts of it even later. Since Oct. 1, 1971, Reagan said, the number of welfare cases has declined by 100,872. The decline, however, had set in even before the reform package was passed and is now in its 17th month.

California's welfare caseload reached its highest point in March 1971 when 2,298,440 persons were receiving state aid. The current figure, Reagan said, is 2,077,787.

"The administrative reforms we put into effect in January 1971 and the reforms adopted by the legislature were aimed at eliminating easy access to welfare through loose eligibility procedures, streamlining administration and encouraging family responsibility," Reagan said.

"Merely stopping the previous upward caseload trend would be something to be proud of," the governor added. "The fact we have been able to roll back the caseload to the extent we have is far more than we could have possibly hoped for. And the 17-month decline in the number of Californians on welfare has been achieved in the face of a national trend which continues upward."

State welfare officials have repeatedly said that the declining number of welfare cases is not significantly influenced by the improving economic climate in the state, but critics of the welfare program say the economy accounts for a large part of the improvement by making it easier for welfare recipients to find jobs.

Sheinwold Team Takes Bridge Tourney Semis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)— Teams headed by Alfred Sheinwold of Los Angeles and Roger Stern of New York won semifinal victories in the American Contract Bridge League's championship series Sunday.

The two teams will meet Nov. 3-5 in Lancaster, Pa., to decide the ACBL North American zone championship. The winner of that match will compete in the 1973 World Bridge championships.

The Stern team scored a surprisingly easy victory over a team coached by Oswald Jacoby, winning 342-211. The Sheinwold team won a narrower victory, 232-178, over a team coached by Samuel Stayman.

Orthodox Youth Get Jail Terms

TEL AVIV (UPI)—A judge sentenced two ultra-orthodox rabbinical students to prison Sunday for setting fire to the city's only sex boutique.

In sentencing Yisrael Brandt, 18, to 18 months in jail and an additional 18 months on probation, and Shmuel Weisenstern, also 18, to one year in jail and one year on probation, district judge Eliyahu Meny rejected defense claims the two acted on "moral compulsion" as observant Jews.

The two were convicted Aug. 8 of arson in the June boutique fire and attempting to run down a policeman who witnessed the crime.

The Giant Tankers: Controversial Issue

By FREDERICK A. MORITZ
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — Giant tankers as long as the Empire State Building, "docking" and piping off their thick black crude oil at specially built, deep-water terminals anchored on to 80 miles offshore.

It's still a vision. But reality may not be far off, as American demands for oil continue to grow. Maritime experts say a new generation of supertankers — as long as 1,400 feet and weighing 1 million tons — will handle nearly all major world oil trade in 10 years.

No Atlantic or Gulf port is deep enough to handle such enormous vessels. So federal and local agencies are looking at controversial offshore proposals that please oil companies, but trouble some environmentalists.

The environmental concern: massive oil spills that could be more difficult to clean up in rougher offshore waters, and uncontrolled industrial development near deep-water harbors, which could result in overcrowding, land abuse, and pollution of air and water.

"The supply of domestic crude oil may be gone in 10 years," says Robert Kaighn, a planning official in Philadelphia for the United States Army Corps of Engineers. That, plus declining supplies of Venezuelan oil brought in by small tankers, means more reliance on Persian Gulf oil increasingly steamed in by the larger tankers, he says.

Kaighn and others in and out of government say possible ending of oil import quotas could even more sharply boost dependence on a new breed of supertankers.

For spill-conscious environmentalists, that could be a cruel surprise. Some of them have been fighting the import quotas, arguing they cause an artificial demand for offshore oil drilling — in their view, an oil pollution threat.

The Army Corps of Engineers now is studying six Atlantic Coast areas as well as several Gulf Coast locations in Louisiana and Texas to recommend several possible sites for constructing regional deepwater ports, both off and on shore. Among them: Portland and Machiasport in Maine, Raritan and Delaware Bays off New Jersey, Delaware's Cape Henlopen, and Norfolk, Va.

BIGGER ONES DUE — This huge oil tanker, the Universe Ireland, rated at 312,000 deadweight tons, is one of the largest oil tankers afloat today, but it could be dwarfed by the enormous supertankers being planned for future worldwide service.

The report — including cost and feasibility estimates as well as some alternatives — will go to Congress next spring.

In the next few months the full conclusions of a similar study by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Maritime Administration are expected. Concentrating on shipping and economics, while the corps report gives more emphasis to construction and environmental aspects, it considers two Gulf Coast sites and three Atlantic locations: Sandy Hook Bay and Cape May off New Jersey, and Cape Henlopen in Delaware.

A commerce department spokesman in Washington says the thinking behind the Maritime Administration's study is similar to that of the corps of engineers, but adds the report will urge concentrating first on one superport to serve the Atlantic area.

Critics say the commerce department is in fact pushing for one national superport from which unloaded crude oil could be shipped by barge or land to other points across the nation.

If so, Congress, local governments, and environmentalists could face a new debate over the economic and environmental implications of a national deep-water port — rather than several regional ones.

Spokesmen for the two agencies are reluctant to discuss possible Gulf Coast sites, but Louisiana and Texas are considered front-runners. Louisiana last February became the first state to establish a superport authority, when Gov. Edwin W. Edwards appointed a 46-member "superport task force." In August the legislature replaced it with a nine-member committee to help influence any decision the corps of engineers may make.

But environmental concern in Delaware and New Jersey has dampened prospects for offshore deep-water ports there. A Delaware law now bans such projects, and the New Jersey legislature is considering similar legislation, according to Kaighn.

In Boston last month a similar, "secret," proposal researched by a consulting firm under contract with the Massachusetts Port Authority sparked a flurry of protest when a newspaper revealed it.

Submitted to the Port Authority in 1970, the study suggested a two-phase project — first, a $34-million island pier three miles from shore to receive refined oil products crom tankers of up to 80,000 tons; second, a $17-million to $23-million floating pier six miles out to pipe in crude oil from tankers up to 30,000 tons.

The second phase — including an even more controversial proposal for an oil refinery within 20 miles of Boston — has been played down by the authority. Its board is scheduled to make a recommendation on the proposals later this month.

As the controversy continues, the state's legislative commission on marine boundaries and resources has scheduled hearings on the proposal. Its chairman, State Sen. William M. Bulger of Boston, charges Gov. Francis W. Sargent with failure to produce a coastal zone environmental master plan.

Since the corps of engineers study focuses on crude-oil receiving facilities, the closeness of each site to refineries must be considered. And that's part of the problem.

Maine's geography is best suited for deepwater harbor construction, says Kaighn. But public opposition has already killed proposals for refineries at South Portland and Searsport. A governor's task force now is studying the possibility of a Portland refinery. Without a local refinery, transportation costs would increase since crude oil would have to be shipped to the mid-Atlantic states for processing.

That's an issue the corps study will have to consider, according to Kaighn. Mid-Atlantic offshore sites are closer to refineries but have higher construction costs.

Former Governor's House Burns Down

COLUMBIA, La. (UPI)—Fire destroyed former Gov. John J. McKeithen's huge ranch-style brick home outside Columbia Sunday, according to the Caldwell Parish sheriff's office.

Deputy Fred Grant said McKeithen and his family were home when the fire broke out in the attic, but no one was injured in the blaze. Grant said McKeithen called the fire department immediately, but by the time fire trucks arrived at the scene, seven miles outside of town, the house was destroyed.

Johnson Pleads Guilt To Novato Burglary

A 52-year-old Novato man, whose first trial on a charge of entering a neighbor's home to rape her ended in a hung jury, pleaded guilty Friday in Marin Superior Court to an amended charge of burglary.

Frederick Robert Johnson, after negotiating with Judge Joseph G. Wilson, admitted the count on condition a report be prepared on whether he is a mentally disturbed sex offender. That report is due to be heard Oct. 26.

His trial in July produced no verdict because three jurors thought he was innocent and nine voted him guilty.

That's Imagination

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — A Hampshire schoolteacher reports that when she asked her class to describe "imagination" in brief style, one 11-year-old boy wrote: "A bee's stinger is only a fraction of an inch long. The rest of the 12 inches is imagination."
